Vol. 144 - No. 5

Falls City, Nebraska

Thursday, February 3, 2011

Come Feb. 26, all calls start with '402'

Beginning Feb. 26, local phone calls in the 402 Area Code must be dialed using the area code plus the local 7 digit phone number. The option to dial local numbers using only seven digits will no longer be available.

Telephone numbers assigned and in service in the 402 Area Code will remain the same. New numbers will continue to be assigned from remaining 402 Area Code numbering resources until the available numbers are depleted at which time new numbers will be assigned from 531 Area Code resources.

In implementing Nebraska's new 531 Area Code everyone placing local and long distance calls, in the geography served by the 402 Area Code, will be required to dial 402 or 531 plus the local seven digit phone number to complete calls. Long distance calls that currently require dialing a '1' prior to the ten digit number will continue to require dialing '1' plus the area code and local number as has been done in the past. The Commission warns consumers that dialing '1' plus the local 10-digit number may result in a long distance charge on their landline phone bill.

In addition to changing the way local calls are dialed, all services including automatic dialing equipment or other types of equipment that are programmed with a seven digit number will need to be re-programmed to adapt to the new 10-digit dialing procedure. Some examples are life safety systems, fax machines, Internet dial-up

Sacred Heart trying to celebrate 120 years

This week marked the celebration of Catholic Schools Week, "Catholic Schools — A+ For America." Sacred Heart School attempted to celebrate its 120th year of Catholic education in Richardson County, but the brutal winter weather kept the school doors closed for much of the week.

Students reported to classes Monday, but were dismissed later that morning. School was canceled both Tuesday and Wednesday.

The week began on Sunday with Parish Appreciation Day at weekend Masses, with high school students thanking parishioners for their spiritual and monetary support of Sacred Heart School.

Monday was Volunteer and Community Appreciation Day, with the National Honor Society hosting an open house/coffee at 9 a.m. in the main lobby of the school.

Tuesday was supposed to be Parent Appreciation Day, and Wednesday Honors Day, with the honoring of new National Honor Society members. The events have yet to be rescheduled.

Faculty/Staff Appreciation Day was scheduled for Thursday and Friday is Grandfriends Day. From 8-8:30 a.m., students' grandfriends may visit their classrooms and then walk over with the students for 8:30 a.m. Mass for preschool and kindergarten through sixth grades. This will also be Reading Day for prekindergarten through sixth grades.

Friday will also be Student Appreciation Day. It is Spirit Shirt/Blue Jeans Day as well for all students and teachers.

Dead of Winter

Jason Schock

Mother Nature delivered her very best fury on Southeast Nebraskans and much of middle America this week, starting with a thick sheet of ice Monday, followed by a few inches of blowing snow Tuesday, and Wednesday temperatures that dipped well below zero. All of the above, plus 30- to 40-mph wind gusts made for the worst winter storm of the season. Area school kids were let out three hours into the week and classes were canceled both Tuesday and Wednesday. None of that stopped this brave traveler - who identified himself only as "Sasquatch" - from making a brutal Tuesday afternoon hike downtown, to the Falls City Library.

MAJOR DONATION. After the recent sale of Richardson County Bank & Trust - and retirement of longtime Chairman John H. Morehead - the bank has generously donated its highly valued art collection to the Falls City Library & Arts Center and Stalder Gallery. Sixteen pieces, including the John P. Falter oil on canvas original, "Confrontation," shown here, were donated. "We are so very grateful for the donation of art from the Richardson County Bank & Trust and to the Morehead family for facilitating this transfer," Gallery Curator Christina Wertenberger said. "The Library and Community Foundation of Richardson County is committed to collecting, maintaining and sharing the wonderful works of art in its possession. Our goal of growing the collection is just beginning and this donation will make a huge impact on the collection. It is also our goal to become a collection that can be lent to other art galleries and institutions. Next year we will reciprocate on a loan from the Great Plains Art Museum in Lincoln that was part of the Falter Centennial Celebration. As we continue to grow, it is our hope that we put Falls City on the map for our wonderful gallery exhibitions as well as our superb permanent collection," she said.

Legislative Update

Legislative Update
Senator Lavon Heidemann
January 28, 2011

The Legislature now is in full swing. All the bills have been introduced and the Governor has presented his recommendations for the budget. Every afternoon, the senators break into their various committees and hold public hearings on each bill that has been introduced. In the mornings, the Legislature meets as a whole and debates bills that have been advanced from the standing committees.

The Appropriations Committee, of which I serve as chair, handles the process a little differently than other standing committees. Prior to public hearings on bills, the Appropriations Committee reviews the initial budgets of all the state agencies. We will begin the public hearing process on bills referred to the Appropriations Committee on February 7th. We also allow every agency to come before the Appropriations Committee to present their budget. Following the public hearing process, we again review the budgets of the state agencies. By the 1st of March we must present our Preliminary Recommendations to the Legislature and by the end of April we have to finalize our recommendations for the 2011-13 biennial budget.

This past week, the Legislature gave first round approval to a bill that would make the chemicals used to make the drug commonly known as K2 or Spice illegal. Under LB 19, the penalties for possessing, manufacturing or distributing K2 would mirror those currently in statute for marijuana. This bill was part of the Attorney General's 2011 legislative package.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration recently announced plans to ban the five most commonly used chemicals used to make K2. However, it has been predicted that manufacturers will alter their chemical formulas just enough to ensure they fall outside the ban. LB 19 goes further than the federal ban, as it bans chemical classes, not just specific chemicals.

These synthetic drugs that are sprayed on herbs are 3 to 100 times more powerful than marijuana and cause symptoms such as panic attacks, seizures, and loss of consciousness. At the public hearing before the Judiciary Committee earlier this month, a high school student from western Nebraska testified that he smoked K2 with some friends before school. He had a dream that he was driving and woke up to find he had crashed his pick-up into a tree. He later was told that he had driven past nearby schools and narrowly missed hitting a young student.

Public hearings were held this past week on two bills that I introduced. One of them, LB 130, is intended to give the Education Committee another option when working on the state aid formula for K-12 schools, in the event that our revenue projections were to decrease significantly later this session.

As the Legislature discusses the various issues before us, I encourage you to contact me with your thoughts and suggestions. I can be reached at District #1, P.O. Box 94604, State Capitol, Lincoln, NE 68509. My telephone number is (402) 471-2733 and my e-mail address is lheidemann@leg.ne.gov

A fight for the public's right to know

By Shay Burk
Hastings Tribune

Nebraska newspaper publishers and owners testified against a legislative bill here Wednesday that could potentially push public meeting notices out of newspapers and onto the Internet.

The seven representatives with newspapers from Omaha to Benkelman testified before the Nebraska Legislature's Government, Military and Veteran Affairs Committee on LB444. The bill, introduced by Sen. Bill Avery of Lincoln, would allow city, county and other public bodies to publish their meeting notices online rather than in newspapers.

According to existing state statute, "Each public body shall give reasonable advance publicized notice of the time and place of each meeting by a method designated by each public body and recorded in its minutes."

Generally this means organizations will place a short notice in the local newspaper and post a paper copy of the agenda in the city hall, county courthouse or other public building.

The proposal Avery introduced late Wednesday afternoon would add to the existing statute the following language: "Methods of providing such notice shall include, but not be limited to, publication in a newspaper of general circulation, posting on the public body's website, or posting in a public building in the community."

Throughout the hearing, there was confusion among both the eight members of the committee and members of the audience regarding the interpretation of the proposed language.

Larry Dix, executive director of the Nebraska Association of County Officials, was the lone supporter of the bill who spoke in favor of allowing counties to post emergency meeting notices and other meeting notices on their government websites.

"If some piece of equipment breaks down and we only have a board meeting once a month and it's not on the agenda, we have to wait a month," he said. "And many times those don't meet the level of emergency but they're things we need to talk about. Therefore we want to have latitude to talk about these kinds of requirements."

When questioned, Dix said some counties already post meeting notices on their websites; however, the Nebraska Legislature has never given them the express permission to do so. "From a county government perspective, counties are sort of a creation of the state and we only have the authorities that the Legislature gives us and counties are looking to publish on their websites," he said. "We see this as a clarification of existing law."

Sen. Charlie Janssen of Fremont asked about the specific wording of the proposed change and what exactly it meant.

"So you have to put it in paper and on website according to this language," Janssen questioned.

"I don't read it that way,"

Dix retorted.

Janssen replied by saying that if a tractor breaks down and the county board needs to talk about it, that a meeting notice could be nailed to a post in town and then they could have the meeting.

Sen. Scott Price of Bellevue said he believed that the proposed language gave public groups an additional option for meeting postings.

"We're saying this gives us another option and gives us option to do some of the things we're doing today," Dix replied.

Sen. Paul Schumacher of Columbus said that this proposal would allow a county to replace the posting in the "pulp newspaper" with a posting on the Internet.

Dix also reminded the committee that this proposal would only affect public meeting notices and not the minutes, claims and other information that must be published in a newspaper.

"And I just came from a hearing down the hall that wiped out state aid to counties and some of the comments were that, 'If you have an idea of something that would help, bring it forward.' This is something that would help," he said.

"We're bringing it forward. With that, I would more than stress we're not trying to do this to harm a newspaper. We're trying to do this to help notify the public of our meetings."

Throughout the hearing, Sen. Schumacher asked different publishers how much they charge for the short meeting notices.

The average was $4-6 per legal notice and most boards and commissions meet once or twice a month or less. Some groups only meet at certain times a year or quarterly.

Brook Curtiss, owner of the Plainview News in northeast Nebraska, said his newspaper is one of three in one county. The three newspapers each publish the legal notices for the one price and split it among the three papers. In some cases that may mean the $5 for the ad is split with each paper only getting about $1.25.

"With the meeting notices, since I get only one-third of income, it wouldn't be much money," he said.

It wasn't the money so much as it was the public's right to know that the publishers defined as their reason for protesting against the proposed legislation.

"The entire notion of public notices was built on the reliability and accountability of newspapers," Curtiss said.

"Once you print it, it's there forever," he said. "It cannot be changed. It cannot be updated with a timestamp."

Curtiss, 30, said he is a child of the Internet age, yet he has come to know that everything on the Internet is not fact and things can be changed easily.

Additionally, Curtiss said of his 1,200 subscribers, he only had 15 over a period of six months who expressed an interest in subscribing to the online edition of his weekly paper.

Jason Frederick, another young owner with three weekly papers in southwest Nebraska, said he knows the Internet isn't readily available to many or widely used by his readers.

"I want to stress if legal notices are moved from newspapers and put on the Web — my grandmother, my mother-in-law and aunt, they don't have computers and aren't on the Internet — you will take away these citizens' rights and abilities to stay informed on what their representatives are doing," he said.

According to the "Internet Connectivity and Use in Nebraska" study conducted the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, 44 percent of central Nebraskans are without access to broadband Internet and many of them don't have Internet at all.

If public notices and/or other public documents are moved completely online, Frederick said many Nebraskans would lose access to this vital information.

"Are you going to count these people out? I don't find it prudent or responsible," he said.

Barry Richards, a farmer from Hayes Center, said he gets all his news from the newspaper and doesn't even know how to use the Internet.

"I just want to bring the human side to it," he said. "I live to read the paper and I dictate my week by it. The paper tells me if something is going on in town, at school or in McCook."

Larry King, vice president of news and content for The Omaha World-Herald, also testified against the bill, saying that newspapers are the best source for local information in any community from Omaha to Hemingford.

"Newspapers are an independent entity separate from government that serve as a watchdog and allow people to also be watchdogs independent of the government," he said. "I just think the newspaper is the best source, most credible and best for people to find it instead of a government website."

King said he believed the proposed legislation was confusing and that he was satisfied with the current laws regarding the posting of meeting notices.

"I don't understand reason for this legislation and I think it's confusing and the options on where government entities can post adds confusion and doesn't help the public find the information. It would scatter it," he said.

The committee will meet in a closed session meeting before releasing a final decision on the bill sometime during the session. The committee's options are to forward it to the full Legislature, table it or vote to not forward it to the full Legislature.

Buffett Institute will help create level playing field for at-risk kids and families across the state

What if the gap between what we know to be optimal conditions for child development and what actually happens to many at-risk children and their families could be closed?

What if a public university could leverage its land-grant mission by working with partners across the state to put the science of early childhood education into practice?

And what if all children – no matter their backgrounds – had equal opportunities for success?

Because of a generous gift to the University of Nebraska from Omaha philanthropist Susie Buffett – a gift the university has committed to more than match – these goals are now well within reach for Nebraska. The University of Nebraska has the opportunity to be a national leader and model for public universities in addressing early childhood.

Buffett's gift will establish the Buffett Early Childhood Institute at NU, a university-wide, multidisciplinary research, education, outreach and policy center that will help transform the approach to early childhood development and education in Nebraska and across the nation. The institute will be dedicated to promoting the development and success of children from birth to age 8, focused especially on those who are vulnerable because of poverty, abuse, or developmental, learning or behavioral challenges.

Through the institute, NU and its partners across the state will create a new model for the engagement of public higher education in early childhood, according to NU President James B. Milliken.

"The need for this Institute has never been more clear – and the potential to transform the lives of children has never been greater," Milliken said. "Too many children today are affected by an achievement gap that impacts their ability to succeed in school and later in life. This gap often is rooted in opportunities lost during the early years. We must do more to ensure our youngest children – especially those who are at risk – have equal opportunities for health, happiness and success. The University of Nebraska, a land-grant university with significant history and expertise in early childhood education, is well-positioned to help achieve this goal."

Milliken added, "The fundamental premise underlying the Buffett Early Childhood Institute is that all children, regardless of socioeconomic status or other limitations, can realize their potential. We believe this institute and others like it can be game-changers in early childhood development and education."

Annual support provided by Buffett's founding gift will be more than matched by university, private and federal sources to leverage an investment greater than a $100 million endowment, Milliken said.

He praised Buffett for her leadership and dedication to early childhood. Through the Sherwood Foundation, based in Omaha, Buffett has invested in social justice initiatives that promote equity and enhance individuals' quality of life. The Sherwood Foundation and the Buffett Early Childhood Fund, which Susie Buffett chairs, support early childhood initiatives in Nebraska and nationally, such as Educare Centers for low-income families. Though Buffett's gift will not be used for university facilities, a key element of this new partnership will include building several new Educare Centers in Nebraska modeled after the successful centers in Omaha and elsewhere. The Buffett Early Childhood Institute will be a core partner in the ongoing work of the Educare Centers, providing assessment resources as well as graduate teachers from its early childhood education programs.

"Susie Buffett is a truly inspiring philanthropist whose work has had a powerful impact on Nebraska and the nation," Milliken said. "We could not be more grateful for her commitment to and confidence in the University of Nebraska. It is thanks to her guidance and generosity that the university now will be able to build on the work of our faculty and others in the field and take efforts in early childhood to another level."

Early childhood development and education is one of the six academic priorities of the Campaign for Nebraska, which was announced in October 2009. Buffett serves on the voluntary leadership team for the campaign.

Buffett said her commitment to early childhood education evolved from her belief that while equal opportunity is the great American promise, too many children are missing out on that promise because they enter kindergarten already behind – and often struggle to catch up well into adulthood.

"Science and common sense tell us that children are born learning," Buffett said. "So investing in the early years makes sense in order to create a more level playing field for all our children. This is an ambitious goal that will require a statewide collaborative effort. Nebraska's only public university, charged with serving the state through teaching, research and outreach, is the right institution to take the lead."

A number of other early childhood centers and institutes around the country are conducting important research and making significant contributions to the field, and the Buffett Early Childhood Institute will complement their work, Milliken said. But the Buffett institute will be unique in a number of ways.

The institute will focus on the developmental span from birth to age 8 – the period during which research shows children make their greatest gains in cognitive, behavioral, language and social-emotional growth. This focus ensures that the work of the institute will foster seamless transitions between children's developmental stages.

The Buffett institute will integrate teaching, research and outreach from disciplines spanning all four campuses, with a particular emphasis on using research to inform public policy in immediate, practical ways. Faculty from child and family studies, educational psychology, teacher education, educational administration, special education, psychology, nutrition, sociology, public health, communications, pediatrics, economics, architecture and other disciplines will be involved. University centers that will be involved include the Center for Research on Children, Youth, Families and Schools at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the Munroe-Meyer Institute at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, UNMC's College of Public Health, and the colleges of education at the University of Nebraska at Omaha and University of Nebraska at Kearney.

Finally, the institute will focus on transferring its successes to a national scale, so that while Nebraska children and families benefit immediately, the work of the institute ultimately will have a national impact. Nebraska, a small state where the public and private sectors are longtime and effective collaborators, is ideally suited for such a "scale-up" strategy.

"We plan to develop a model for involvement of the 21st-century land-grant university in a fundamental aspect of the life of the state, and we hope that our approach will be successful and replicated across the country," Milliken said.

Milliken said he hopes this new approach to early childhood education – in which the University of Nebraska puts its resources and energy and especially the intellectual power of its faculty and students to work to solve a great challenge facing the state – will serve as a new model for how public universities approach the field.

"The Buffett Early Childhood Institute can be an exemplar for similar efforts across the country," Milliken said. "This is one of the most exciting promises of the institute in a national context, because it has implications for the well-being and success of children around the country."

The institute will be led by an executive director who is a recognized leader in the field and national board of directors, and will include three interrelated divisions:

- A research program will advance the science of early childhood by developing evidence-based solutions for the challenges facing at-risk children. The research program will leverage the success of existing early childhood centers, such as UNL's Center for Research on Children, Youth, Families and Schools, which since 2003 has generated more than $40 million in grants for educational research – a return of more than $23 per dollar invested by the university.

- An education and professional development program will ensure that early childhood teachers and providers in Nebraska and elsewhere have access to research-based information and support in implementation so that best practices are put to work for the children who need them. Working with partners across the state – such as the Nebraska Department of Education, the two Educare Centers in Omaha (adjacent to Kellom Elementary School and Indian Hill Elementary School) and Building Bright Futures-Early Childhood Services – the education and professional development program will focus on developing the next generation of the early childhood workforce. New endorsements or certificate programs related to early childhood may also be developed.

- An outreach and policy program will ensure that information on the best practices for children, families and schools is made available to practitioners and policymakers. A primary purpose of this program will be to inform Nebraska and, ultimately, national policy goals.

"This public-private partnership literally institutionalizes the work Susie has been doing across the country for the past decade and takes it to a new level," said Daniel Pedersen, president of the Buffett Early Childhood Fund. "The university's leadership in prioritizing the cause of our most vulnerable children, setting a new example for what a land grant university can contribute, and helping Educare take root beyond Omaha – well, all that added together is simply awesome."

While some changes are being introduced, the following will not change as a result of the addition of the new 531 Area Code:

- Currently assigned telephone numbers in the 402 Area Code will not change.

- The price of a call, local and long-distance calling areas, and other rates and services will not change.

- Local calls currently dialed with seven digits will remain local calls even though 10-digit dialing is required.

- Placing local calls to communities included in local calling areas that are outside the 402 area code will also require dialing 10 digits (Example: dialing Council Bluffs from Omaha will require adding the 712 area code before the 7 digit local number).

- Three digit numbers such as 211, 511, 711, 811, and 911 will not be impacted by the new 10 digit dialing requirement.

I will call upon the Lord... O my God!

Most often when you hear the phrases, "O my God" (OMG) and "My God," they are probably said in vain. In our society these phrases have become common place as the exclamation of choice by most people. However, when properly used, the phrase "O my God" shows reverence and praise to God. It is a warm, personal, trusting phrase used by one who has had personal experience with the love and care that God gives.

Psalm 18:1-3, a psalm of David, reflects this: "I will love You, O Lord, my strength. The Lord is my rock and my fortress and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my shield and the horn of my salvation, my stronghold. I will call upon the Lord, who is worthy to be praised; so shall I be saved from my enemies."

Also, consider Psalm 71:1-5: "In You, O Lord, I put my trust; let me never be put to shame. Deliver me in Your righteousness, and cause me to escape; incline Your ear to me, and save me. Be my strong refuge, to which I may resort continually; You have given the commandment to save me, for You are my rock and my fortress. Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked, out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man. For You are my hope, O Lord God."

May the phrase "O my God" be constantly on our lips as an expression our joy and confidence in Him. Remember, "You shall not take the name of the Lord your God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless who takes His name in vain" (Exodus 20:7).

"for every idle word... they will give account of it" Matthew 12:36

The Bible talks about "fearing" God.
Some words we'd use today for "fearing" might be "respect", "honor", "give God first place", and "stand in awe of Him".
Church this week is a good place to give God what's due.
Doing that brings good results.

Lady Tigers host Auburn Friday

By Jim Langan

Sometimes it happens in sports. One day a team can't miss. Life is good on the mountain. Then, the basket, end zone, strike zone, etc. becomes your nemesis. Just like that you are now playing your opponent and your psyche.

Thus was the case for the Lady Tigers in Kansas last week for the annual Hiawatha Invitational. Falls City defeated Horton 49-27 in the first game, then lost their final two games of the tournament to Rock Creek, 37-21, and Nemaha Valley, KS, 44-24.

Falls City came out red hot against Horton in the first round of the tournament. Lisa Kopf and Ashleigh Jordening combined for 15 first quarter points on 6-7 field goals and pushed the Lady Tigers' first quarter lead to 23-3.

Actually, if you look at the stats Falls City may have played its most complete game. They gave up no offensive rebounds to Horton, hit 17 of 20 free throws and allowed only 31 field goal attempts.

You will win nine out of 10 times when you limit shot attempts and keep the opposition off the offensive glass.

Three Tigers scored in double figures: seniors Kelise Kean (14) and L. Kopf (12) and junior Jordening (13). Senior Kari Krefels grabbed seven rebounds and Julianne Kopf added six assists.

Thursday night against Rock Creek is when the head games (cue Foreigner hit now) began.

The Tigers struggled, rushing some shots but trailed by only six at the end of the first quarter.

"We shot the ball so well on Tuesday, but couldn't find the basket Thursday night," said coach Max Milam. "We were not as patient and took too many quick shots."

Couple the poor shooting - 9-32 from the floor - with the zebras losing control of the game and the battle was now on two fronts. Falls City was whistled for 31 fouls to Rock Creek's 11 and attempted one free throw. That's right. Falls City was 1-1 from the charity stripe while Rock Creek hit 17-27 attempts.

This sports writer heard on several occasions the head coach of RC call each of the three officials by their first name and request they "get the game under control." Quite forcefully, I might add.

ket, was clearly fouled in the act of shooting and the gentlemen in black-and-white called it on the floor. Rock Creek forced a turnover after the second in-bound pass.

Falls City never recovered. Lisa Kopf scored six and juniors Ashley Sickel and Jordening each had four points. Sickel also snagged seven boards to lead the Lady Tigers.

The hangover carried over to Saturday where Nemaha Valley shut down the perimeter offense of the Tigers, which allowed Kean to pick up another double-double on the season. Kean scored 14 points and had 11 rebounds.

"Kelsie had some success early making some strong moves to the basket," said Milam. "I should have had the girls look more to her."

"At times we looked too much for the three-pointer instead of running through our offensive sets.

"Our defense has been good but offensively we have got to be more consistent."

The Lady Tigers will have their rubber match with Auburn Friday night in the "Mac."

Auburn won on their home court 39-25 on Dec. 10, but Falls City nipped the Bulldogs by one point (33-32) 10 days later in the opening round of the Peru State Holiday Tournament.

Pioneer moves into next week

This week's winter storm wreaked havoc on more than the local roadways - it really messed up the Pioneer Conference Basketball Tournament.

All Monday and Tuesday games were postponed and can't be made up until Thursday, which means consolation and championship games — both boys and girls — can't be played until next Monday in Lewiston (game times TBA).

On the boys' side, FC Sacred Heart, 9-9 after a Friday night loss to 10-4 Class C1 St. Peter Claver, will play Southern at 3:30 p.m. Friday in Wymore. The semifinal against either Sterling, Lourdes or Freeman will be Saturday.

The HTRS boys face Diller-Odell in Odell Thursday night for a shot at Pawnee City Friday, also in Odell.

In the girls' bracket, second-seeded FCSH will take on the Johnson-Brock/HTRS (5 p.m. Thursday in Odell) at 5 p.m. Friday at Southern. The Saturday evening semifinal in Lewiston will be against either Sterling, Southern or Lewiston.

The Lady Irish are coming off a 65-20 home win over 1-14 Omaha St. Peter Claver. A 47-14 rebounding edge led to 63 field goal attempts for the Irish. Sara Landis had 12 team-high boards, 20 points and four blocks to lead her team. Sarah Magdanz finished with 14 points, 10 boards and five steals, Mallory Hillyard scored 10, had six assists and five steals, and Hannah Malcolm dished out 10 assists to go with six points.

The Irish fellas faced a different, much more athletic monster, and dropped its fourth game in a row, dating back to its MUDE-CAS "B" Division title. FCSH, now 9-9, opened up a big early lead on the strength of an 11-0 run, but SPC used a 17-0 run in the game's final four minutes to win going away, 65-45.

"The bottom line - we gave up 13 offensive rebounds that resulted in putbacks that scored them 19 points. We also had 22 turnovers against their press, which gave them some easy baskets," FCSH Coach Doug Goltz said.

"Their athleticism caused us

FC Sacred Heart big man Brady Cromer was effective inside early against Omaha St. Peter Claver, scoring six of his eight points during a run in which the Irish built a double-digit lead. Later, though, the SPC full-court pressure rattled the Irish, leading to 19 steals and 22 FCSH turnovers.

problems."

There certainly is no shortage of athletic teams on FCSH's schedule and that will hardly change this weekend at the conference tournament. Southern, 10-4, is coming off a 10-point win over Falls City, beat HTRS on two occasions, and gave Sterling fits in two close losses to the Jets.

Scoring vs. SPC

FCSH boys — R. Barnhill, 14; Finck, 9; Goltz, 2; L. Barnhill, 12; Cromer, 8.

FCSH girls — Jordan, 6; Parrish, 5; Magdanz, 14; Malcolm, 6; Schawang, 2; Hillyard, 10; Voyles, 2; Landis, 20.

FCSH 34, J-B 60

The Sacred Heart boys' basketball program met its polar opposite last week in Johnson-Brock. After trailing 22-17 at the half, the Irish were outscored 38-17 in the second, falling 60-34 to the Eagles.

The Irish faced a very athletic, experienced Eagles team loaded with upperclassmen - 10 seniors, six juniors are on their varsity roster. Compare that with Sacred Heart's one senior - Reed Barnhill - and two juniors - David Bangert and Derek Olberding. The bulk of the Irish's minutes are coming from underclassmen.

"They are athletic - much like Howells," said coach Doug Goltz. "We have played many good teams. They rank up there as on of the better teams we've

"The first half we played well enough to be in the game, but the third quarter we struggled to score and they got things going on the offensive end. Their athleticism obviously had a lot to do with that.

"We needed four good quarters and didn't get that."

Scoring

FCSH - R. Barnhill, 7; Goltz, 10; L. Barnhill, 7; Bangert, 8; Cromer, 2.

IRISH JV

— Brody Chandler scored nine points to lead the Irish JV to a 36-31 win at Johnson.

— Will Burenheide scored seven in a 31-21 Irish "C" game loss at Johnson.

— The FCSH girls JV fell 8-7 at Johnson in two quarters. Megen Voyles scored three and Emma Schock and Ashli Jordan had two points apiece.

Poor third quarters killing Falls City guys

By Jim Langan

Another chilly third quarter spelled doom for the Tigers last Friday in Wymore, as Falls City was defeated 45-35.

Logan Faller led the Tigers with 10 points and Josh Stoller added nine. Trevor Harling and Cord Huettner each grabbed four rebounds.

An unbecoming trend has developed over the last 10 games for the Falls City Tigers, more specifically in losses.

In FC's last three losses the Tigers have scored a total of three points in the third quarter, while giving up 29 points. That's a difference of 26 points. The combined total of points the Tigers lost by in those three games: 26.

In FC's first eight games they outscored their opponents 91-87 and were 5-3, but the opponents win-loss total was 56-66.

It must be said that the last ten games have pitted the Tigers against much more difficult teams. In the last ten contests their opponent's winning percentage is .680 (91-42).

"I can't put a finger on it," said coach Don Hogue regarding the third quarter plunge in scoring of late. "We're not doing anything differently.

"If you look at the number of shots we're getting off it's the same as the other quarters. We're just knocking them down for whatever reason.

"It's important we don't put too much emphasis on it."

The defense has been up to Hogue's expectations. In those three losses Falls City only gave up an average of 41.7 points and are only allowing just over 45 ppg on the season.

"Defensively I am pleased. Our record should be better than it is with us only giving up 45 point per game."

Inexperience at the varsity level, facing better quality, more athletic teams, referees "letting them play" - which needs to be seriously re-evaluated by the NSAA, look at what teams get away with now compared to fifteen years ago - and the Tigers just not knocking down jump shots are all mitigating factors.

All is not lost though. Falls City will play five more regular season games and if they can figure out how to shake that third-quarter monkey off their back they will have a chance in every game.

Their sub-district is winnable. The combined record of the other teams - Ashland-Greenwood, Auburn, Conestoga and Syracuse - is 24-38. Ashland has two wins against teams with a winning record, as does Syracuse. Auburn has none and Conestoga, winners of four games, has thrice defeated squads with one win. Vanilla to say the least.

It is hard to conceive catching fire or warming up with the outdoors resembling that of Sarah Palin's home state, but if the Tigers can get it going over the final stretch a district final is attainable.

FC, 35 Southern, 45

Scoring - Faller, 10; Stoller, 9; Frederick, 5; M. Harling, 4; Huettner, 4; T. Harling, 3.

HTRS 215-pounder T.J. Standerford placed second at Raymond Central and improved to 21-5 on the season.

HTRS heavyweight now 26-2

The Falls City and HTRS/Pawnee City wrestling teams competed in the Raymond Central Invitational last weekend.

Each school had seven varsity competitors with the Tigers finishing eighth out the 11 participating schools while the Titans were just one spot back in ninth.

Titan senior Ryan Worthey had the best finish of the local schools finishing first in the 285-pound class. He won both matches by decision with the first one coming 4-1 against Raymond's Isaiah Rittenburg (13-13) and then defeated Ashland-Greenwood's Layne Lambert (15-10) 2-1. Worthey has won three tournaments this year and improved his record to an impressive 26-2 on the season.

It is pretty impressive considering he has been wrestling around the 200-pound mark all season.

"We've had to work on staying outside on these big guys and using quickness to get ahead," said head coach Tyler Ferebee. "Strength is definitely an issue, but we've worked on several things that have made him successful at this weight class."

FC's Cole Ackerman (171, 20-6) and Logan Auffert (145, 16-7) both finished in third place.

Auffert defeated Auburn's Garritt Fischer (11-14) 8-5, then pinned Neb. City's Jeremy Baker (11-5) in the third round (4:26). Baker had lost only three times prior to the Raymond Central Invitational.

Ackerman also had success against a Bulldog, pinning Alex Gonsalves (22-10) in 3:45. He then fell 14-5 to Raymond's Aaron Studebaker who is undefeated (29-0) and ranked No. 1 in class C.

Allie Lendermon wins National Geographic Bee

Each year, thousands of schools in the United States participate in the National Geographic Bee using materials prepared by the National Geographic Society. The contest is designed to encourage teachers to include geography in their classrooms, spark student interest in the subject, and increase public awareness about geography. Schools with students in grades four through eight are eligible for this entertaining and challenging test of geographic knowledge.

FC Middle School participated in the program for the first time this year. A preliminary written qualifying test was given to all FCMS Social Studies students to find the top students to participate in the school bee and determine a school champion. The FCMS Bee was held Jan. 13, with 16 students in the final round. Those competing in the school-level Bee were: Elizabeth Oliver, Luke Gifford, Haley Liberty, Tucker Merz, Cody Frederick, Emma Beckner, Derick Eickhoff, Jordon Phroper, Allie Lendermon, Chris Bennett, Taylor O'Brien, Preston Deckinger, Morgan Valentine, Maggy Rieschick, Abigail Gilkerson and Edward Fritz.

The top three winners were: Lendermon, first; Valentine, second; and Merz, third.

Social Studies teacher Jack Munford will administer the written qualifying state test to Allie, the school champion. In early March he will be notified by mail if Allie finished in the top 100 to represent FCMS at the state level. State qualifiers compete in an oral competition at the state level, which is usually held in late March or early April. State winners are invited to National Geographic headquarters in late May to compete in the national finals for scholarships in the amount of $25,000, $15,000 and $10,000.

Munford and sixth grade teacher Susan Nutzman administered the tests. They thanked the administration and staff for their assistance in promoting and helping cover classes during the Bee.

'Mom the Boys Hit Me with the Dresser'

By D.M. RemLind

I was born the youngest of four children. If that in itself was not punishment enough, those three siblings were all brothers! I am a firm believer that brothers, brothers of sisters anyway, are the scourge of the world. Of course, my three brothers all had to be older! Maybe a younger brother would not be so bad; I have no way to know and quite honestly do not really care to find out.

I have to tell you growing up the youngest and the only girl leaves you somewhere between spoiled rotten and beaten to a pulp! I have this image in my head of the shredded wheat guy spinning back and forth yelling, "Spoiled rotten, beaten to a pulp, spoiled rotten, beaten to a pulp." Well, I'm here to tell you that neither side of that biscuit tastes sweet!

The spoiled rotten part would not be so bad if you did not know it was going to be followed by beaten to a pulp by the jealous brothers. Hey, I would have gladly given them that lavender and white dress that matched my mothers, or ANY of those cute little Easter hats!

Growing up with three older brothers and no sister often presented problems in the area of playing. My brothers would often play in their room and it looked like fun. Wrestling, tussling, whatever, it all just looked like a lot of fun and I wanted in on it. I could not join in though because they had some kind of magical force field on their doorway that sisters could not get through. Force field or not, it never stopped me from standing in the doorway and cheering, rooting for a favored brother, or just to egg the whole thing on.

One day all this tussling ended up in MY room. The boys still said I could not get in on the free-for-all

"Hey, this is my room; I want to play, too!"

I ran and tried to join in, but they shoved me back. I kept trying to penetrate the pile, but always somehow managed to be forced back no matter what angle I approached from. I finally mustered up all my strength and went full force at the mob.

One or two, maybe all three of those ornery critters shoved me back out of the pile. They sent me flying backwards and hit the back of my head on my dresser!

I ran downstairs holding my head and screaming, "Mom, the boys hit me with the dresser!"

Still to this day, a rendition of the story is always told at family gatherings, or just whenever they feel it is time to embarrass me. I believe if they have a chance, my brothers will have written on my tombstone:

HERE LIES:
MOM, THE BOYS HIT ME WITH THE DRESSER

I turned to dolls for companionship. My brothers, like most all boys, did not understand the relationship girls have with their dolls. To a young girl dolls are very important; they are friends, confidants and members of the family. They are not to be violated in any way, and especially not by brothers. One of my brothers thought it was fun to strip them naked and put them out by the side of the road for all passers-by to see.

When he would come and tell me of his dastardly deed, I would run out with a small blanket and rescue them immediately. It was a small prank to a young boy, but devastating to a young girl.

One year as an adult, a Mother's Day card came from this brother. On the front, it said something like Happy Mother's Day to a Sister Who Learned to be a Good Mom by Playing with Her Dolls. On the inside it asked, "Do you carry your kids around by their hair, too?"

When he called for my birthday, he asked what I thought of the card. I said, "Gee, I don't know, are you going to come strip my kids naked and put them out by the side of the road?"

What I should have said is why don't you come visit me and I will drag you around

Love is in the air (and springing forth from his wallet)

(SPM Wire) Love is more than just in the air this Valentine's Day season; it's springing forth from people's wallets. Indeed, total holiday spending is expected to reach $15.7 billion -- a marked jump from last year.

The average person will shell out $116.21 on traditional Valentine's Day merchandise this year, up 11 percent over last year's $103, according to the National Retail Federation's 2011 Valentine's Day Consumer Intentions and Actions Survey.

"Having surpassed expectations during the holiday season, it seems consumers are not done spending on gifts, which bodes well for the economy," said the Federation's president and CEO, Matthew Shay.

"Jewelry, candy and apparel sales should provide a nice boost for retailers during the typically slower months of January and February."

Having cut back on spending in recent years, couples this year say they will spend an average of $68.98 on their significant other or spouse, up from $63.34 last year. Even family pets will be feeling more of the love this year. The average person will spend $5.04 on his or her furry friends, up from $3.27 last year.

Consumers will also spend an average of $6.30 on friends, $4.97 on classmates and teachers, and $3.41 on co-workers.

As usual, men will spend the most on Valentine's Day gifts. The average man plans to shell out more than twice as much ($158.71) as the average woman ($75.79) -- perhaps suggesting men are ignoring the "it's the thought that counts" sentiment this year.

Not surprisingly, greeting cards will be the most popular gift option, as 52.1 percent of those surveyed report they will be purchasing the romantic missives. Jewelry also is expected to be a big hit, with 17.3 percent planning on buying their loved ones something sparkly, up from 15.5 percent last year.

The survey also found spending across the board is expected to be up this year. Consumers will shell out $3.5 billion on jewelry this Valentine's Day, up from an estimated $3 billion last year. Clothing ($1.6 billion vs. $1.5 billion in 2010) and dining out ($3.4 billion vs. $3.3 billion in 2010) will also be popular gift options. Additionally, celebrants will spend $1.7 billion on flowers, $1.5 billion on candy and $1.1 billion on greeting cards.

"Though the economy will still be on their minds, Valentine's Day holds a special place in many Americans hearts," said Phil Rist, Executive Vice President, Strategic Initiatives, BIGresearch, which conducted the survey. "Some may opt for a quiet night out or a home cooked meal to keep costs down, but it seems there are others who are a little more interested in a nice night on the town."

The NRF 2011 Valentine's Day Consumer Intentions and Actions Survey was designed to gauge consumer behavior and shopping trends related to Valentine's Day and polled 8,913 consumers.

SENSE & SENSITIVITY

Bored couple needs to rekindle the spark

By Harriette Cole

DEAR HARRIETTE: I've grown apart from my husband. We have been married for 15 years, and I would say that it has been at least five years of boredom. We hardly do anything together. We have no intimacy whatsoever, in part because I am unwilling to do anything without romance beforehand. We are cordial to each other, like the way colleagues are at the workplace. We have two children, and I can't imagine breaking up our home. But at the same time, I can't imagine sticking around, either. I am so bored and uninspired. What can we do to get the interest back? And if we can't, should we try to make the best of it? I mean, maybe this is just what happens to couples over time. -- Brenda, Dallas, Texas

Dear Brenda: Start by planning a vacation for the two of you. Taking time out of your routine to do something fun together can ignite romance. Talk about your life, and be honest about how you feel. Go to counseling, and get support in navigating your marriage's challenges. Get spiritual counseling as well. No, you aren't supposed to be bored in your marriage. But don't give up until you exhaust your options.

Tell your husband that you want to figure out how to re-engage. Ask him to work with you to that end. Remember the activities that you enjoyed when you first got together. Start doing some of those things again. You may be able to rekindle your bond. Also check in with other friends. Some married couples are finding great support in coed marriage groups, where couples come together to talk about their issues and learn from one another.

If all this fails, work together to break up in the most respectful way possible.

DEAR HARRIETTE: I'm a young, attractive, single black woman who lives in New York City, and I'm facing a dilemma. Valentine's Day is fast approaching, and I have no date for that evening. I post my concerns on a popular social-network website. My friends tell me that I'm overzealous, and my response is that I'm only being proactive. What do you think I should do? -- Lisa, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Lisa: It's good that you are thinking in advance and want to make sure that you have something to do on Cupid's Day. A word of advice: You don't have to have a date on that day. It is good to have a plan, though. Why do I say that? Well, if you aren't seeing anyone and you don't have your eyes on someone, setting up a blind date could be awkward. Instead, you could go to a singles dance where other singles will be looking for the same thing. Or plan a night out with your single girlfriends, where you can laugh and joke in one another's company.

'Shoot for a Cure' at Humboldt

The second annual "Shoot for a Cure" event, designed to raise funds for the Richardson County Cancer Fund, Inc., is set for Thursday, Feb. 10, at the HTRS School in Humboldt.

The Titans host the Falls City Tigers that night, with games to begin at 4:15 p.m. A soup supper, featuring chili, chicken noodle and cheesy potato soups, cornbread, relish bowls and desserts will begin at 5 p.m. in the school lunchroom. A free will donation will be accepted.

Kellie Workman, an RCCFI board member, is organizing the soup supper and said, as for last year, the HTRS staff is donating all of the items needed, from groceries to dinnerware and desserts.

"They are a huge key to our success," Kellie said. "With all of their donations, it makes the soup supper very profitable" and thus helps provide travel expense funding for Richardson County cancer patients.

The event is the idea of HTRS teacher and athletic director Scot Knudson, who has been battling thymoma for eight years. Knudson has received benefits from RCCFI since its inception and wanted to "give something back." The first "Shoot for a Cure" was held last year and raised $2,434 for RCCFI and $300 to the Nemaha County Relay for Life.

This year, Knudson wanted to share the event with a Richardson County school and Falls City High fit that bill. The schools are collaborating on t-shirt sales and all proceeds will go to RCCFI.

Knudson's wife, Mandi, is coordinating t-shirt sales and is planning a raffle of donated baskets during the games.

"We're very excited that Falls City is on board," Kellie said. "They too have sold t-shirts! It is a great night of fellowship and fund-raising!"

In addition to the soup supper, raffle (donations from county businesses) and t-shirt sales, a 3-point shooting contest will be held.

Organizers are hoping for a big crowd to enjoy an evening of basketball and participate in this worthy fund-raising effort.

Raspberry & Cream Cheese Stuffed French Toast

What You Need

- 1 (8oz) pkg cream cheese, softened
- 12 (3/4 inch thick) slices day old brioche, challah or Hawaiian bread
- 1 c fresh raspberries*
- 3 eggs (beaten)
- 3/4 c half-and-half, light cream, or milk
- 3 tbsp sugar
- 1/2 tsp vanilla
- 1 dash salt
- pure maple syrup

Directions

- Spread cream cheese evenly over one side of each slice of bread.
- Top half of the bread slices with raspberries. Place remaining bread slices on top to make "sandwiches".
- Combine beaten eggs, half-and-half, sugar, vanilla, and salt in shallow bowl. (For added taste, you might want to add a few drops of Grand Marnier)
- Dip each sandwich in egg mixture, turning carefully to coat both sides. Place sandwiches in greased 15x10x1-inch baking pan. Bake in 425 degree oven 15 minutes or until golden brown, turning once after 10 minutes. Serve warm with maple syrup, if desired.
- *NOTE: If desired, you can substitute frozen raspberries. Thaw and drain; reserve juice for another use.

Taxes: Claim What's Yours

Lincoln — Taxpayers who qualify for and claim the Earned Income Tax Credit could pay less federal tax, pay no tax or even get a tax refund beyond the amount of tax withheld, according to the Department of Health and Human Services.

EITC is a refundable tax credit for eligible workers with low to middle incomes.

"We want to help people get the tax credits they've earned through the EITC program," said Todd Reckling, director of the Division of Children and Family Services in DHHS.

"EITC is a financial boost for working people hit by hard economic times. You earned it. Now file, claim it and get it."

Earned income tax credit is based on income and filing status. For example, childless singles making less than $13,460 a year or married couples with two children making less than $45,373 annually from wages, self-employment or farming in 2010 could qualify. To electronically file their returns and get the fastest refunds, both spouses must be present to sign joint returns.

Before filing your taxes, check to see if you're eligible. People can move into and out of eligibility based on changes in their earnings, their parental status or their marital status, according to Reckling.

To help Nebraskans take advantage of the EITC program, DHHS works with community organizations to provide free tax preparation assistance by IRS-certified volunteers to low income individuals and families. To locate a site near you, or if you have eligibility questions, call 2-1-1 or 1-800-829-1040.

Federal tax credits include:

- Earned Income Tax Credit — up to $5,666. — Child Tax Credit — up to $1,000 per child. — Child and Dependent Care Tax Credits — up to $2,100. For more information visit: www.canhelp.org/EITC.htm

FCHS hires Sterling, Peru State standout

Falls City High School has announced the hiring of a new head volleyball coach for the 2011 season.

K.T. Salberg, a three-time all-stater at Sterling High School and an all-conference selection at Peru State College, will succeed long-time coach Susan Witt.

Salberg, a 2007 graduate of Sterling, is an education major (math, elementary special ed) at Peru State College.

The FCHS job will be her first, though she's currently coaching a 13-year-old club team out of Nebraska City and has regularly assisted at the Sterling Volleyball Camp.

Salberg captained the Peru St. volleyball team and last fall earned NAIA All-Nebraska honorable mention. She was also an active member of the PSC Athletic Advisory Council.

BIG RED WRAP-UP

John Talman of Rivals.com, and Sean Callahan will join co-hosts Kevin Kugler and Adrian Fiala for a special "Big Red Wrap-Up," airing Thursday, Feb. 3, at 7 p.m. and again at 11 p.m. on NET1 and in high-definition on NET-HD.

The day after National Signing Day for football recruits, Talman, Callahan, Kugler and Fiala will analyze the newest batch of Huskers to sign their letters of intent to join the Nebraska football team. They will discuss those that signed, those that didn't and explore what impact the new recruits might have on the Nebraska team in the fall.

Falls City High School junior Derreck Ferris takes aim during the newly implemented National Archery in the Schools Program. The program's focus is to provide International Style Target Archery training in physical education classes in grades 4-12. Core content covers archery history, safety, technique, equipment, mental concentration, core strengthening physical fitness, and self-improvement.

Students take aim in National Archery in the Schools Program

Last fall, the first step for a new National Archery in the Schools Program was initiated at Falls City Public Schools.

Wes Sheets, the former commissioner of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, provided instructor training for local in instructors Kris Simon, Susan Witt, A.J. Landon, Don Hogue, Dennis Chandler, Randy Rech and Joe Dunn.

NASP is a joint venture between State Departments of Education and Wildlife Agencies. Several archery equipment manufacturers and organizations are also partners.

The program promotes student education, physical education, and participation in the sport of archery. The program's focus is to provide International Style Target Archery training in physical education classes in grades 4-12. Core content covers archery history, safety, technique, equipment, mental concentration, core strengthening physical fitness, and self-improvement. FCPS is currently working with the Nebraska

Game and Parks Commission on providing this opportunity for local students.

This is a program that has been implemented in a host of schools across the state and is gaining popularity every year. Nationally, NASP has been implemented by more than 5,300 schools in 46 states as part of their wellness program and surpassed the 4.6 million student mark in 2009.

Nebraska Game and Parks secured a Federal grant last spring to assist Nebraska schools in two-thirds of the total cost of program start up and equipment. The remaining program costs are being donated by the local Whitetails Unlimited Chapter.

FCPS is partnering with Sacred Heart to provide this program as a supplement to the PE programs at South School, middle school, high school, and Sacred Heart with the goal of promoting wellness, student education, physical education, and participation in the life long sport of Archery. Last June, Superintendent Tim Heckenlively provided the board with introductory information about NASP and the direction the district was working with the NG&P Commission on bringing this wellness opportunity to the youth of Falls City.

In 2009, a two-year academic evaluation of NASP was concluded by a national research group which gathered data from focus groups, student surveys, teacher anecdotal records, and school academic records. The research found the program to be very effective in meeting the program goals.
