

There is so much I don't understand about sports and its fans. Years ago, when we would attend a Royals game, we could yell as loud as we wanted and stand as long as we'd like. Those were also the days where we could stretch across a few seats and pay nothing for a ticket. Back then the Royals weren't great. The atmosphere was light, a loss was tolerated, not loved and a win was amazing.

During this same time, we would attend Husker games, yell as loud as we wanted, stand, and cheer through the entire game. Seating was tight and tickets were expensive. The Huskers were in the midst of big changes and high hopes. Everyone was still 100% in it and die-hard fans. Now that the Huskers are having a pretty lousy season, the tides have turned. Tickets can be purchased for next to nothing, you have wiggle room in the stands because people don't feel the need to be at every second of the game and grouchy fans don't want to hear you yelling. In the last few years we've noticed an abundance of angry Husker fans who shoot you angry looks, call you derogatory names and literally move away from you if you are cheering 'too loud' for your team. People are practically giving their tickets away to those who would just like the chance to say they attended a Husker game. There's no passion anymore, just anger.

Now with a Royals game the same thing has happened in a much different way. Attending a Royals game, especially a Postseason game is a now thing of prestige. You find yourself among people who are there because it's THE place to be. They may have on a blue shirt, they may just have an everyday button up. They sit on their phones the entire time and complain about the yelling and standing. They're taking up seats that should be reserved for real fans who would give anything to be there. Brian and I witnessed this type of 'fan' twice this year. The first time we sat directly behind a gentleman who was about my age. He refused to stand during the National Anthem then called me a sting of curse words for jumping up and yelling during a great play. Right about the time I decided to tap on his shoulder and tell him that he is in fact at a sporting event, he got up and left. The second time we saw this was last Friday during game two of the ALDS.

Every Royals game is a total blast and we feel so lucky to be able to attend so many but getting to go to a Postseason game is a dream. Brian and I know that any game in October is a gift to be cherished. The night before we each carefully laid out our new jerseys so we would be ready to go. Brian purchased himself a Moose jersey and finally got me that Hosmer jersey I had been eyeing for a few years.

We got to the game and everything was right with the world. We stood, we cheered and we tuned out the children behind us who sang at the top of their lungs while not watching the game. After the sixth inning I started hearing some complaints from the women behind us. They were a few drinks in and chatting about their daily lives. I had not seen them stand once but that was their loss, not mine. But they were getting angry at us standing-complaining that they couldn't see and everyone should sit the entire time so it's fair for everyone. A ping of anger shot through me but I wasn't going to let these two rain on my parade. We were up, the crowd was intense and I felt like I'd burst. Then Brian turned away from me and I saw the back of his brand new white jersey was soaked in red wine. I don't mean he had a few drops, I mean it looked like they poured it down his back. I immediately asked him if I had anything on my back, and I did. I was seeing red; to say I was livid would be an understatement. I had listened to these two slur their loud words about shopping and their husbands the entire game and now they had ruined both our jerseys. I turned and gave them a long once over. They were covered in red wine, it was all over their floral (non-Royals or Blue) shirts. I made a point of taking my jersey off and examining it, then loudly telling Brian that he was covered. Brian was too in the game to really care but nothing angers me more than a lack of common decency. Soon after we noticed, they gathered their kids and glasses of red wine and walked away.

I couldn't do it, I couldn't let this woman stain my new jersey and walk away as if nothing happened. I shot after her and stopped her and her friend in front of our entire section. I asked her if she had noticed what she had done. She stumbled and leaned on a wall and her young child. She proceeded to look me dead in the eye and say "get a grip." Only she scattered some curse words into her statement. I took off my jersey and showed her and her friend the stains. They both said they didn't see anything-proceeded to cuss me out, in front of her young children, blame her child, then she shoved me.

Now, I'm not a level headed person by any means. I usually tend to let my anger overwhelm me and I get in trouble. Even with a guy yelling in my ear to "Don't take that-HIT HER," I keep calm. I shook my head, looked down at her child who was practically holding the weight of his mother on his tiny shoulder, looked back at her and told her all I wanted was her to acknowledge what she had done; that's all. Nope-she cussed at me again and shoved me again with her fist tightly clinched around a glass of red wine. I'm standing in Kauffman Stadium, surrounded by kindred spirits. I was at game two of the ALDS and we were winning! I swallowed my anger and walked back to my seat. She had ruined my jersey, she wasn't going to get me kicked out of a postseason game.

I didn't want her to offer me money, beg my forgiveness or even apologize. I just wanted her to acknowledge that she had ruined this jersey that I had waited so long for. I found myself sad for her group. What should have been a great game for her kids was now cut short by a mother who could hardly stand up. Maybe I shouldn't have said anything and been the bigger person but I'm not always smart with my decisions and anger overtook me. After the game I wouldn't let it go and vented my frustration on Twitter. I just wanted to feel validated in my anger and soon other fans who were sitting around us came over to ask me what happened when I confronted her. They had watched her spill on us, them and herself.

Sunday morning I woke up with a message on Twitter. A gentleman you may know as 'Moose Man' who attends Royals games with his large Moose antlers, offered me $100 for each jersey. He considered them good luck and wanted to purchase them-allowing us to buy brand new jerseys if we chose to. After we traded a few messages, I finally saw the humor in it all. We had 'battle wounds' from a really great day and a really great game we were so fortunate to attend. It took a few nice comments from a man who carries gold painted Moose antlers to make me realize that those jerseys are in fact good luck and my energy is best used to continue to cheer on our boys in blue. But I'll never forget the woman who tested my self-control and the man who made me laugh about how ridiculous the entire thing really was.

Lawmakers Considering Another Run at Medicaid Expansion

Capitol View
By J.L. Schmidt
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

A proposal to provide health insurance for an estimated 77,000 Nebraskans who have been left behind by national health care reform is being studied by a handful of state senators with an eye on the 2016 session.

If a proposal were drafted, it would be the fourth attempt by Health and Human Services Committee Chair Lincoln Senator Kathy Campbell. The Republican lawmaker is working with freshman Republican John McCollister of Omaha and Appropriations Committee Chairman Heath Mello of Omaha, a Democrat. As many as 15 senators, many of them Republicans in the officially non-partisan Unicameral, have signed a study resolution.

Supporters have wanted the state to create a model measure that would take advantage of federal dollars available to the state under Medicaid expansion. Proponents say such a move would improve health care for all Nebraskans and guard the state budget.

But Governor Pete Ricketts – as did his predecessor Dave Heineman – have eschewed such a move saying that federal dollars aren't reliable. That means any proposal using federal funding would likely be vetoed by the first-term governor.

Back in the old days (before the 2015 legislative session) a senator just had to make sure to have enough votes to get a measure through three rounds of debate and then muster enough to override a veto. But the stakes have been raised by the specter of a petition drive that would seek to allow voters to have the final say if the governor and his legislative cronies don't like the decision of the majority of the Legislature.

But that game cuts both ways. Sure, Ricketts poured several hundred thousand dollars into a petition drive to allow voters to decide the fate of Nebraska's death penalty after the Legislature repealed it. Remember, supporters of a minimum wage increase also turned to the voters to decide the issue – which they did – after they failed to override Heineman's veto. Their attempt to raise the wage was successful.

So why not just go directly with a ballot issue? Campbell said she thinks it would be difficult to word a ballot issue to accomplish what is necessary. And then, there's the money issue. Ricketts has deep pockets and it doesn't appear that most Nebraskans think it's wrong that he used his own money to get his own way after being rebuffed by the Legislature. Let's just buy the outcome we want.

According to the Lincoln Journal Star, supporters believe that about 73 percent of the 77,000 Nebraskans who are not covered by health insurance despite federal health care reform are workers, primarily engaged in food service, construction, sales, janitorial and office support. They fell through the coverage gap because they were ineligible for traditional Medicaid and ineligible for subsidies.

So the challenge for Campbell and company is to craft one of those uniquely Nebraska solutions in a creative way that provides much-needed health care to those who can least afford it. At the same time, it has to be a solution that will stand up to the already-announced opposition of the governor and the anticipated blustering by his legislative Crickets – the handful of senators against most everything unless they thought of it first.

They have had their way – almost embarrassingly --in previous debates on health care and other issues. The rhetoric has been predictable and often off-topic. It has allowed some lawmakers to chase the rabbits of a partisan Legislature – there are four times as many Republicans as Democrats – and even a threatened return to a two-house system. We've seen how well that works out.

Campbell's recently failed bill (last session) would have created a task force to redesign Medicaid in Nebraska and develop a way to promote access to affordable care in a patient-centered system.

As debate on that the bill neared the end, Sen. Paul Schumacher of Columbus told senators they need to "sober up a little bit away from the political rhetoric." A bunch of Nebraskans need care, and the state and those with private insurance are going to pay for that care one way or another.

He said it doesn't appear that Obamacare is just going to go away and our health care problems are going to be solved.

I'm with Sen. Schumacher on this one. Can we just get through all the party palaver and find a solution? The health of our fellow Nebraskans depends on it.

IRS warns of flood relief scams

The Internal Revenue Service issued a consumer alert about possible fake charity scams emerging due to severe flooding this month in South Carolina and neighboring states.

“When making donations to assist flood victims in South Carolina and elsewhere, taxpayers should take steps to ensure their hard-earned money goes to legitimate and currently eligible charities,” said IRS Commissioner John Koskinen. “IRS.gov has the tools taxpayers need to check out the status of charitable organizations.”

Following major disasters, it is common for scam artists to impersonate charities to get money or private information from well-intentioned taxpayers.

Such fraudulent schemes may involve contact by telephone, social media, email or in-person solicitations.

The IRS cautions people wishing to make disaster-related charitable donations to avoid scam artists by following these tips:

- To help disaster victims, donate to recognized charities.
- Be wary of charities with names that are similar to familiar or nationally known organizations. Some phony charities use names or websites that sound or look like those of respected, legitimate organizations. The IRS website at IRS.gov has a search feature, Exempt Organizations Select Check, through which people may find legitimate, qualified charities; donations to these charities may be tax-deductible. Legitimate charities may also be found on the Federal Emergency Management Agency website at fema.gov
- Don’t give out personal financial information — such as Social Security numbers or credit card and bank account numbers and passwords — to anyone who solicits a contribution from you. Scam artists may use this information to steal your identity and money.
- Don’t give or send cash. For security and tax record purposes, contribute by check or credit card or another way that provides documentation of the gift.
- If you plan to make a contribution for which you would like to claim a deduction, see IRS Publication 526, Charitable Contributions, to read about the kinds of organizations that can receive deductible contributions.

Bogus websites may solicit funds for disaster victims. Such fraudulent sites frequently mimic the sites of, or use names similar to, legitimate charities, or claim to be affiliated with legitimate charities in order to persuade members of the public to send money or provide personal financial information that can be used to steal identities or financial resources.

Additionally, scammers often send email that steers the recipient to bogus websites that appear to be affiliated with legitimate charitable causes.

Taxpayers suspecting disaster-related frauds by email should visit IRS.gov and search for the keywords “Report Phishing.”

More information about tax scams and schemes may be found at IRS.gov using the keywords “scams and schemes.”

NE Department of Banking & Finance warns of debt scam

The Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance is warning residents to beware of a currently popular debt collection scam in which individuals call people to demand payment of an old “payday loan” and then threaten them with possible arrest or court action if they do not immediately send payment.

Calls to the Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance reveal many Nebraskans are receiving threatening phone calls from a fraudulent debt collection scam. Before making a call, scammers gain access to personally identifiable information, including Social Security Numbers and old addresses, and use this information to attempt collection on an alleged old payday loan debt.

The scammers use differing company names as the source of the old payday loan debt and for the collection company they represent. The scammers avoid using the same company name in separate calls to avoid identification. The scammers often require some type of electronic payment by credit card, debit card, prepaid money card, or ACH, in order to complete the transaction quickly. The callers are often able to display a local area code but are actually located in a different state or country.

The following signs will help consumers spot this debt collection scam: Aggressive language requiring immediate action. Refuses to send proof of the debt and simply saying that they have the debt “in

Defending Unborn Children

By Governor Pete Ricketts
October 12, 2015

Every year, Nebraskans gather in over 50 communities to participate in the Life Chain, an event that celebrates the sanctity of life and shows support for unborn children. Recently during this event, I had the opportunity to thank some of the many dedicated pro-life Nebraskans who have faithfully given countless hours towards advancing pro-life principles through the years. It was a great reminder that we can continue to protect unborn children here in our state by working together.

Protecting Nebraska’s truly vulnerable and guarding the sanctity of life are core duties of government and each one of us. Because of the countless Nebraskans who recognize this, our state has built a national reputation as a pro-life state, and over the years we have passed many laws protecting the unborn. The hard work of pro-life legislators, including the work of our Lt. Governor Mike Foley when he served in the Unicameral, has received high marks from national pro-life organizations. For Nebraskans, being pro-life is not a partisan issue because treating all Nebraskans with dignity and respect, is a way of life in our state.

A recent video investigation of the largest national abortion provider, Planned Parenthood, has served as a solemn reminder that abortion kills thousands of unborn babies in our state and across our nation every year. Videos from this investigation revealed top Planned Parenthood doctors negotiating prices for the body parts of aborted babies. This callous disregard for human life has intensified with each successive video revealing new horrifying detail about the abortion industry’s attempts to profit from the destruction of human life.

As videos have continued to surface from the investigation, many Nebraskans have expressed to me how appalled they are by the abortion industry’s attitude toward the unborn. Unfortunately, abortion providers are trying to put their spin on the facts, claiming that defunding them would increase the number of abortions in the United States because it would negatively impact other services provided at their clinics. The abortion industry often claims that they provide irreplaceable medical services. The evidence is inconsistent with this claim. For example, according to the Chiaroscuro Foundation, Planned Parenthood is the primary care provider for only 19,700 of its 3 million clients.

Here in Nebraska, the numbers speak for themselves. There are only two abortion providers with a total of three clinics in our state that provide limited services. Across America, there are over 1,200 federally qualified healthcare centers, including six in Nebraska. Additionally, my budget recommendation this year, which was approved by the Legislature, contained funding for a seventh Nebraska clinic. These healthcare clinics provide basic healthcare services to both men and women, and have a broader network and reach across the United States.

Today, Planned Parenthood receives over $500 million of your taxpayer dollars annually. In Washington, D.C., Nebraska Senators Deb Fischer and Ben Sasse are working tirelessly with a bipartisan group of senators to defund Planned Parenthood. As Congress considers their priorities, it is important that they continue to seek new ways to protect the unborn.

My administration will always serve as an advocate for the unborn, and we are continuously looking for new ways to protect our unborn children and their mothers. As you think about how we can work together to continue to build a culture that values life and grows Nebraska, I encourage you to share your thoughts with my office by calling at 402-471-2244 or emailing pete.ricketts@nebraska.gov.

front of them.” Caller states they are in the legal department (or some other specific department) and can’t transfer the call to another department, manager, or other company personnel. Stating the debt is from more than 5 years ago.

Consumers are encouraged to follow these tips when dealing with this type of phone call: Ask the collector for their name, company, address, and phone number. Refuse to discuss any debt until written proof of the debt, and right to collect the debt, is received. Do not make any payment, even a partial payment, until you receive the written information. Do not give out any personal information, including your email address. Keep records of your interactions with any debt collector. Verify court orders independently and directly with the court. Consult an attorney as needed.

Under the Nebraska Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, and the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, Nebraskans have rights that protect them from harassment or abuse in connection with the collection of the debt, nor can debt collectors make false or misleading statements. More than 100 attend Life Chain event

A silent prayerful stand against abortion was held Sunday afternoon Oct. 4, along Harlan Street in Falls City as people in the community participated in the Life Chain. About 102 people enjoyed the beautiful autumn afternoon from in silent prayer holding signs that read “Adoption: The Loving Option”, “Abortion Hurts Women,” “Jesus Forgives And Heals,” and “Lord, Forgive Us and Our Nation.” The chain stretched on both sides of Harlan Street from 14th to 22nd Street.

The Life Chain is a nationwide pro-life event held annually on the first Sunday in October. This year nearly 1,800 chains were expected, making the Life Chain one of the most widespread pro-life events in the country. The Life Chain concept uses the cooperation of local churches to bring their parishioners to participate as an extension of the Sunday service.

Prior to the event, participants gathered at First United Methodist Church to pick up signs and for a short prayer service. Pastor Tim Boatright of Good News Assembly of God and member of Falls City Friends for Life welcomed everyone to this year’s Life Chain. A short video titled “The Appointment-A Mother’s Choice” was shown. A responsive prayer was read and Nic Sikora led the singing of “I am a child of the Lord.” Jim Sefried introduced the current Falls City Friends for Life committee. Phil Froeschl informed every one of the Life Chain guidelines and Pastor John Hogue of First United Methodist Church closed in prayer.

Members of Falls City Friends for Life who planned this year’s Life Chain, besides Pastor Boatright, Nic Sikora and Froeschl, are Dorothy Kirkendall, Trudy Burenheide, Abbey Neddenriep, Karen Berry, Shirley George, Danelle Tramp, Rachael Keithley and Steve and Joan Stoller.

Large hike in valuations allows NRD to cut tax levy

A combination of a 12 percent increase in property valuations and a board of directors determined to cut its tax dollar request by $200,000 resulted in a tax levy reduction from 3.88 cents per $100 to 3.17 cents per $100 valuation. Nemaha Natural Resources District board members approved their final budget during their September 10, 2015, regular meeting. The resulting budget of expenditures actually increases from $6.1 million last year to $6.5 million this fiscal year, which began on July 1, 2015. About $2.3 million in state and federal funds helps support the property taxes collected.

So what’s included in the expenditures for this year’s budget? Between the construction of a flood control dam and relocation of a county road, the Duck Creek project northwest of Peru in Nemaha County accounts for the largest chunk of the revenues required for this year’s budget. Construction of the dam that will hold the waters of the 61-acre lake at this future public recreation site is underway and expected to be completed by the end of this calendar year. Dirt work is nearing completion on a county road affected by the project, and contracts to install a new bridge and a box culvert were just approved.

Other projects on the horizon for this year’s budget include a list of repairs to existing watershed structures that are estimated to cost around $250,000. Combined with routine maintenance, these include a variety of rip rap projects to stabilize dam faces and repairs to risers and outlet pipes. Projects such as these are a part of the ongoing maintenance requirements for these structures.

Drainage and surface improvements are in line for a two-mile stretch of the Steamboat Trace trail south of Peru. This problem area has suffered during heavy rainfall events causing erosion and washing away the trail’s limestone surface. Grant funds will help with hard surfacing a section of the trail and improving drainage between the trail and a county road.

Funds are included in the consultant section of the budget to help produce a plan that will ensure the District’s qualifications for receiving future federal EPA Section 319 funds. Meanwhile another project is underway that will assess the rehabilitation needs of certain dams within the District. Work is also just beginning to design a new sediment basin at the Kirkman’s Cove Recreation Area near Humboldt.

An owner of a home or land valued at $250,000 will see the $79 in his or her tax bill working to build flood control dams, improve public recreational opportunities, reduce erosion, and protect our current and future water supplies. With your help, the Nemaha NRD is protecting lives, protecting property, and protecting the future of citizens in southeast Nebraska!

Sixpence Partnerships to increase early learning opportunities for children at risk

The Trustees of the Sixpence Early Learning Fund announced a new grant opportunity this week that will, for the first time, offer funding to collaborations between school districts and licensed child care providers. The new grants will put high-quality early learning experiences within the reach of more of Nebraska’s infants and toddlers at risk, and represent a significant new strategy in Sixpence’s efforts to narrow the achievement gap before children enter kindergarten.

Nearly 30,000 infants and toddlers in Nebraska face risk factors that can increase their likelihood of eventually entering the K-12 system one to two developmental years behind their more advantaged peers. This requires school districts to commit additional fiscal and professional resources to help these children keep pace in Nebraska’s classrooms, but often with mixed results. Consequently, many districts are seeking ways to become more actively involved in promoting high-quality early learning opportunities for children at risk in their communities. These efforts, however, have been undercut by a lack of qualified early childhood personnel, as well as limited facilities and funding. Administrative barriers also prevent school districts from offering the full-day, year-round services to families with very young children.

The new Sixpence grants successfully address these challenges by connecting licensed child care providers to school districts’ early education efforts. The grants are the outcome of the passage of LB547 in the Nebraska Unicameral this past spring, which addressed technical restrictions that have previously prevented licensed child care providers from participating directly in Sixpence partnerships. The legislative effort to make this funding opportunity possible was led by Senator Kathy Campbell, Chair of the Health and Human Services Committee, and Senator Kate Sullivan, Chair of the Education Committee.

“Right now in Nebraska, only about 8 percent of our at-risk infants and toddlers have access to early learning opportunities we can verify as meeting the quality standards known to close the achievement gap,” said Amy Bornemeier, Associate Vice President of Early Childhood Programs at Nebraska Children and Families Foundation and Administrator of the Sixpence Program. “Schools can’t—and shouldn’t—carry the responsibility all by themselves. By involving local child care providers in Sixpence partnerships, we’re making better use of the early childhood facilities, personnel and resources already available to us in our communities.”

Participation in the new Sixpence grants will give local child care providers access to funding, training and expert consultation designed to help them meet the quality requirements expected of Sixpence programs.

Bornemeier says that the new grants will also require child care providers to enroll in Nebraska’s rapidly growing Step Up to Quality rating and improvement system. Step Up to Quality, a collaboration between Nebraska’s Department of Education and Department of Health and Human Services, provides training, opportunities for professional development and coaching for participating child care programs and staff. Step Up to Quality also utilizes rigorous assessments and quantifiable data to improve child care environments, educates parents on how to recognize quality child care settings in their communities and involves them more closely in their children’s early learning experiences.

“By working together, Sixpence and Step Up to Quality make our approach to the early education of our youngest, most vulnerable children more efficient, effective and accountable,” said Bornemeier. “This partnership enables us to maximize our existing resources, gives communities more flexibility to meet the needs of local families, and provides a pathway toward a more robust, professionalized early childhood workforce throughout the state. Most importantly, it reinforces the central role of parents in their children’s early education.”

Grant applications are due by Thursday, January 28, 2016. The RFP can be found on the Sixpence website at www.singasongofsixpence.org/apply/.

FC Lady Tigers heat up right as ‘15 winds down

The 2015 FC Lady Tiger Softball Team didn’t necessarily need more timely hitting, more power, better ump’s, better luck, better gloves or stronger arms this fall — perhaps all it needed was more time.

Inevitably, the Tigers needed one more run, as a 5-4 loss to Malcolm in seven innings ended FC’s season. The Tigers trailed 4-0 until the top of the sixth, when a four-run rally tied the game. Senior Marissa Ogden hit a two-run single, and Bailey Armbruster and Morgan Bletscher each produced run-scoring hits for the Tigers. Armbruster, Meredith Poppe (2-for-4), Avery Scott and Bletscher all plated in the inning to even it up.

FC pitcher Tayten O’Brien threw a scoreless sixth, but the Tigers failed to muster any offense of its own in the top half of the final frame. Malcolm, a team that won 20 games, went on to humble 27-3 Class C1 No. 1 Conestoga 9-1 in Game 1 of Friday’s Championship series, brought the winning run around with one out in the seventh. Malcolm put a lasting scare in the Cougars, falling by just two, 6-4, in the finale and just missing a state wildcard berth.

By then, unfortunately, the sun had set on FC’s season. As they were just waking up.

A largely disappointing three-week September stretch amid lofty expectations turned around for FCHS the final two weeks, as the team won six of its last eight games to finish above .500 at 15-14. Furthermore, one of those losses — 10-5 in extra innings to Southern Thursday afternoon in the first round — the Tigers avenged a day later with a 5-2 victory in nine innings. In that one, FC scored two in the sixth to erase

LOCKED IN
(TOP LEFT) FCHS sophomore Rylee Scholl always keeps her eye on the ball and the numbers prove it: Scholl, who was 2-for-4 with an RBI double and two runs scored in the Tigers’ 5-2 win over Southern and 3-for-4 with a home run (her second of the year) and a double in a 6-2 win over Syracuse, hit .424 on the season and led her team with 30 RBI. (TOP RIGHT) FCHS junior Morgan Bletscher, who hit a walk-off game-winning homer in the Lady Tigers’ final regular season game — a 7-5 home win over St. Joe Lafayette — hit safely in all four district games and finished the year with a healthy .351 batting average. (MIDDLE) FCHS junior catcher Molly Brown runs a Southern player almost all the way back to third before placing the tag in the Lady Tigers’ 10-5 seven-inning loss to Southern Thursday afternoon in the first round. Brown hit her second homer of the season in the game, signaling what was to come — she recorded multi-hit games every time out, hitting a collective .562 (9-of-16) over the four games to finish the year with a team-best .440 batting average. Brown also led FC in runs scored (26), hits (40) and doubles (13). (RIGHT) FCHS senior second baseman Avery Scott was one of five Tigers to double in a 5-2 win over Southern Friday in nine innings at the Class C1 District in Auburn. She finished the year with a .354 average, striking out just five times all fall for the 15-14 Tigers. FC won six of its final eight games.

a 2-0 deficit and scored three in the eighth. That was more than enough, as O’Brien and the Tiger defense had a game to remember. The junior pitcher tossed 102 pitches, yet handed out only one walk and allowed just one earned run the entire game.

“I am so proud of how our girls fought back whenever we were down at Districts,” FC Coach Jason Brede-meier said. “Our girls played with a lot of heart. We improved a lot throughout the season, and we were playing our best ball at the right time of the year — at Districts.”

The strong finish, coupled with the close call with No. 7 Malcolm and an earlier near-upset of C1 No. 1 Conestoga, makes one wonder what might’ve been had the team beaten Southern to start the tournament. Or if it had gotten hot earlier, posted a better win-loss record and leap frogged Auburn for the No. 3 seed. The Bulldogs, a one-

Falls City scored TDs on punt and kick returns, on three one-play offensive drives, another drive that spanned 83 yards in two plays, a three-play march and two other drives that hit paydirt on a fourth snap in a 61-11 victory over winless Johnson CC Friday in Tecumseh.

The 6-1 Tigers, winners of four straight blowouts and now rated No. 10 in C1, will take on 4-3 Syracuse Friday at Jug Brown Stadium for the Class C1-2 District title. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m.

Syracuse started the year 1-3, but like the Tigers have since run roughshod over the weak district foes. The Rockets have only lost to some of C1’s best: No. 9, 5-2 Neumann, No. 5, 6-1 Ashland and No. 3, 6-1 Wahoo.

even advance to Friday, let alone Hastings. The tourney hosts’ season trajectory was polar opposite of FCHS’, as they boasted a sterling 15-4 record on Sept. 26. Thereafter, the Bulldogs lost seven of its last 10 to finish 18-11.

FCHS has now posted six straight winning seasons and there’s ample reason to think that’ll stretch to seven a year from now. The team graduates Avery Scott, Marissa Ogden and Josie Lunsford. The Lady Tigers return all it’s pitching and hitting statistical leaders, including O’Brien, Molly Brown, Rylee Scholl, Morgan Bletscher, Bailey Armbruster, Meredith Poppe and Bailey Gilkerson.

The Tigers set a team record with a .349 batting average and shattered the previous doubles record of 59, set in 2012, with 72 this fall. Final team and individual stats will appear in next week’s Journal.

HTRS quarterback Nolan Schafer threaded a perfect pass between a pair of defenders and into the hands of receiver Nick Novak in the third quarter of the Titans' 40-13 loss to Elmwood-Murdock at Elmwood. Novak had a big game for HTRS, hauling in six catches for 102 yards and a score. Defensively, he intercepted a pass and returned it 40 yards and made six tackles. Though Elmwood-Murdock, now 4-3 on the year and 3-0 in the District, more or less clinched the Class C2-2 District title with the win at Humboldt, tthe 4-3 Titans (2-1 in the District) appear to be a strong bet to finish the regular season with wins at 2-5 Palmyra and 0-7 Weeping Water. A 6-3 HTRS team would advance to the playoffs and perhaps even host a home game the first week.

In what was very likely a battle for the Class C2-2 District, Elmwood-Murdock scored two touchdowns in the first 5:39 and never looked back in a 40-13 Friday night win over HTRS at Elmwood.

It was a tough night for the Titans, who were without junior Logan Bredemeier, a two-way starter out with a non-football-related injury. Elmwood rolled up 511 yards of total offense - 425 of which came on the ground.

EM took the opening kickoff and marched 72 yards in 13 plays for their first TD, when intercepted HTRS Nolan Schafer and returned it to the two-yard line, setting up a second score just 21 seconds later.

Trailing 19-0 midway through the second quarter, the Titans drove 72 yards and scored a touchdown on a 10-yard pass from Schafer to Nick Novak (six catches, 102 yards).

EM used a 50-yard run from Tyler Oehlerking to lead a 5-play, 63-yard TD drive and it was again a 19-point deficit: 26-7.

Inside of the final ticks of the first half, EM drove deep into HTRS territory, but Novak stepped in front of a last second pass and return the pick 40 yards as the half expired.

HTRS mounted a solid eight-play, 71-yard drive in the third quarter. A 33-yard Schafer-to-Novak connection set up a 15-yard scoring strike to Eli Herr with 2:23 to play in the period.

That made it 33-13 and HTRS just missed recovering an onside kick, which set up a short field for EM, who traveled 55 yards in just four plays for the game's final score.

Wertenberger sisters Champions at AKSARBEN Stock Horse Show

The Wertenberger girls - Sara and Emily - were Champions at the AKSARBEN Stock Horse Show, currently the largest 4-H stock show in the country, held Sept. 19 and 20 at the Lancaster Events Center in Lincoln Sept. 19 and 20.

Emily was Junior English Showmanship Champion, while Scare Trail-will scare you stiff!

The Iowa Tribe of Kansas and Nebraska Boys and Girls Club is teaming up with Falls City High School One Act cast members to construct a Spooktacular Scare Trail. The One Act members are volunteering their time and talent to help scare up a night trail that walkers won't forget.

This scare trail will be open during the second Annual Trunk or Treat event on Oct. 24 behind the White Cloud (KS) Fitness Center, with the trail for younger children beginning at 3:45 p.m. and the true scare starting at 5:30.

Along with the Scare Trail, the Iowa Tribe of KS/NE Boys and Girls Club will serve hot dogs, a bounce house and face painting. SE District Health Dept. reminds parents to keep watch for lice, bed bugs, scabies

The SE District Health Dept. reminds parents to maintain a careful watch on their children during the school year due to how easy it is to spread bed bugs, lice and scabies. None of these bugs spread disease, so they are not considered a health hazard. They are considered more of an annoyance.

Bed bugs are reddish brown in color and are roughly the size of Lincoln's head on a penny. Look for bed bug in folds of mattresses and sheets. They leave rust colored blood spots on mattresses or nearby furniture. They are experts at hiding and can go long periods of time without feeding. Everyone is at risk for getting bed bugs regardless of economic status.

Symptoms include bite marks that can appear on any body part. They can become red, swollen and may itch or be irritating. The bites often occur while a person is sleeping. Sometimes the marks may take 14 days to develop. Over-the-counter antiseptic cream lotions, along with the use of antihistamines, can be used for the bites and itching. If the skin begins to look infected, seek medical attention.

Lice is spread by direct person-to-person contact. The classic sign of lice is itching of the scalp and neck. There may be visual lice crawling in the hair; usually few in number. There are over-the-counter treatments. It's very important to follow the directions on the product. After the treatment, apply gloves; using the nit comb, carefully go through the person's hair removing any lice and/or nits that are seen. Nits (eggs) can usually be found at the base of the hair strand. They are essentially glued to the hair shaft, so be diligent. Do not retreat your child without contacting your medical provider for instruction.

Symptoms include itching, especially behind their ears or at the back of their neck. Sores may even be found on the child's head from scratching. Recently worn clothing, towels and bedding can be washed and dried at high temperatures. Items that cannot be washed should be placed in a sealed bag for two weeks. Avoid sharing hair care items, bedding, towels, scarves, hats, headgear. Hang clothing in individual lockers or on assigned coat hooks. To prevent re-infection, thoroughly vacuum cars, car seats, floors, furniture, mattresses and carpeting.

Scabies are a mite that burrow, laying their eggs, just under the skin. The mite spreads through direct skin to skin contact or through sharing clothing, towels and/or bedding of a person with scabies.

Symptoms may not appear for two to six weeks. Itching may be more severe at night and locations of the rash can vary. If you suspect scabies, consult a medical provider. They can prescribe a topical medication.

Halloween treats that are equal parts
spooky and delicious

Halloween parties are common-place. Full of frightful decorations and spooky lighting, a good Halloween party also features food that plays up the theme of the evening. Therefore, Halloween party hosts will need to get creative with the type of foods they serve to ensure a “spook-tacular” time.

With a little ingenuity, otherwise mundane foods can be transformed into something worthy of a second look. Here are some creative ways to turn ordinary food items into Halloween-inspired fare for your next get-together.

Ghosts in the Pumpkin Patch - Using bananas and clementines or small oranges, you can create the appearance of ghosts haunting a field of pumpkins. Peel both the oranges and the bananas and place small chocolate chips into the rounded “head” of the banana to create a ghost face. Use a piece of green gummy candy or something that will hold its shape to create “stems” for the orange pumpkins. Place the ghosts and pumpkins on a platter or in a bowl for a healthy and festive snack.

Witches’ Brew - Create a punch recipe that bubbles and looks like a witch’s evil concoction. Put two quarts of lime sherbet for a green punch (or orange sherbet if you prefer an orange punch) in a punch bowl. Add a two-liter bottle of ginger ale and one can of pineapple juice. Feel free to float “eyeball” peeled grapes or gummy worms in the brew for a more authentic effect. If available, add a piece of dry ice to the punch so it bubbles and fizzes.

Sugar Spiderwebs - Spiders and their sticky webs go hand-in-hand with Halloween. Create spiderwebs that can be used to adorn cookies and cupcakes and give them an extra scary flair.

Use a template of a spiderweb and place this template under a piece of waxed paper to serve as your guide. Use store-bought or homemade royal icing to pipe out the shape of the spiderweb on top of the waxed paper. Allow to dry until completely hardened, then peel off the paper. Repeat the process for as many spiderwebs as you need. You can use these spiderwebs as garnish for a variety of baked goods, or they can be eaten on their own.

Ghoulish Graveyard-- What would Halloween be without a haunted graveyard? With a few tasty ingredients, you can recreate this classic look in a rich dessert.

Crush graham crackers and mix with melted butter and sugar to create a cookie crust. Press into the bottom of a baking pan. Prepare some chocolate pudding to pour on top of the crust and allow it to grow firm. Then sprinkle crushed chocolate cookies on top to create the appearance of soil. Push some rounded-edge, oblong cream-filled cookies into the pudding to serve as tombstones. Decorate with candy worms, gummy skeletons and any other candy items that can add to the look. Black licorice sticks poked with black licorice strings can look like dead trees.

Scary Grin - Turn a whole watermelon into a jack-o’-lantern and fill with fruit salad. This makes for a refreshing treat and provides an alternative to candy. Cut the watermelon as you would a pumpkin and hollow out the insides to use for the salad. Add sliced berries, grapes, apples, pears, and any other fruits you desire.

Who's Storing Acorns This Fall?

My friend, White Foot mouse, uses the pouches in his cheeks to carry acorns and store them in his nest to eat later. I'll bet you didn't know that some mice eat acorns too!

Many animals are working hard this fall to store enough food for the long, cold winter months. What animal is gathering acorns? Follow the dots to see!

BOTTOM LINE
TOMMY HILTON

God seems to like to turn things upside down: to receive, first we must give; to be forgiven, first we must forgive – and so forth.
God's Son should have first place, should He not?
Not so.
Hear the story this week in church.

The Son of Man came not to be served but to serve.

FC Sacred Heart strong-armed two-time state champ Exeter-Milligan Friday night at Jug Brown Stadium, taking a 42-26 victory and the Timberwolves' D2 No. 1 ranking while avenging a pair of bitter losses from a year ago and also tossing aside the visitors' 31-game winning streak.

In a regular season battle of Nos. 1 vs. 2, senior QB Bailey Witt and the Irish made a profound statement and left no doubt the pecking order in Nebraska eight-man football, as has been the case so many times throughout parts of four separate decades, starts with FC Sacred Heart. The Irish won the 2013 D2 trophy and now will be the safe pick to win it in 2015.

FCSH Coach Doug Goltz was forced to replace two All-Staters in his backfield, yet the team has excelled with Witt taking snaps (he was a receiver the past two seasons). He never had a better night than Friday, when he ran around and through anything standing between himself and the end zone. He rushed for four scores in the first half alone, finished with five rushing touchdowns and threw for 75 yards and another score in a tremendous individual performance.

The Irish set the tone immediately, as Witt engineered a 67-yard scoring drive and capped it with a one-yard TD plunge. EM never led and after the 5:48 mark in the second quarter, was never again within one score of catching the Irish. FCSH led by as many as 22 with 2:56 left in the third quarter after Witt engineered a spirit-squashing nine-play, 60-yard drive and again ended it by willing himself into the end zone from one-yard out.

Rushing
FCSH — A. Ahern, 5-38; H. Arnold, 1-7; S. Arnold, 18-104; Harring, 9-54; Witt, 20-107 (5 TD).

Passing
FCSH — Witt, 3-5-0, 75 yards (TD).

Receiving
FCSH — H. Arnold, 2-53 yards (TD); S. Arnold, 1-22.

Kicking
FCSH — R. Hoy, 5-213, 42.6 ave.; B. Keller, 2-79, 39.5 ave.

Kick Returns
FCSH — S. Arnold, 1-10; Harring, 3-39.

Punt Returns
FCSH — S. Arnold, 4-12.

Tackles-Yds. Lost
FCSH — S. Arnold, 1-2; Jom, 1-2; M. Keithley, 2-12.

Interceptions
FCSH — Henry Arnold, R. Johansen, each 1.

Fumble Recoveries
FCSH — M. Keithley, 1-0.

Tackles - Solo/Asst.
FCSH — A. Ahern, 1-5; H. Arnold, 3-4; S. Arnold, 1-8; Bippes, 1-1; Harring, 4-4; Johansen, 0-3; Jom, 1-1; M. Keithley, 2-0; T. Keithley, 4-4; B. Keller, 0-1; N. Keller, 2-2; B. Scheitel, 0-2; Witt, 0-1.

(TOP) Senior QB Bailey Witt rushed for 107 yards and five touchdowns and completed 3-of-5 passes for 75 yards and another score, leading the Class D2 Irish over then-No. 1 Exeter-Milligan, 42-26 last Friday at Jug Brown Stadium. The Irish victory snapped the Timberwolves' 31-game winning streak that dated back nearly three years, to the 2012 Class D1 State Championship. With the victory, FCSH also avenged two bitter losses to the two-time state champs last fall. The 5-1 Irish, currently No. 6 in wildcard standings and atop the Class D2 ratings, will likely win out and take a District title into the postseason, as they travel to 3-3 Sterling this week and host 1-5 Parkview Christian in the regular season finale Oct. 22. (BOTTOM, LEFT) FCSH junior fullback Austin Ahern refuses to allow Exeter-Milligan junior Cameron White to strip the football from his grip during a punishing run Friday. Ahern gained 38 yards on five carries. (BOTTOM, RIGHT) Sophomore Christian Harring gained 54 tough yards on five carries and was, as always, constantly around the ball on defense, finishing with eight total tackles, half of which were solo.

shirt’ goal was met, he would allow himself to be pelted with water balloons by anyone who had donated to wear jeans and T-shirts. Once both of those goals were met, Amy Behrends, Director of Organizational Development, challenged the staff to reach another goal and she would also wear jeans and a T-shirt plus get pelted with water balloons. With the opportunity to pelt the administration staff with water balloons, all the goals were reached with lightning speed. Mr. Larsen and Mrs. Behrends were successfully soaked by employees all for a worthy cause.

The next idea was the Business Office’s Hail Mary Bake Sale and Silent Auction. They pulled together staff and volunteers to hold a very successful event which clearly put us over the top when the donation period ended. There was a large variety of home baked goods and canned items donated to the sale. There were four silent auction items, two Halloween-themed cakes, a fall goody basket and a KC Royals painted rock.

Helping and caring for people is something both CMC and NCH do each and every day within their facilities. The Food Pantry challenge allowed the administration and staff at both hospitals to help our friends and neighbors outside in the communities as well.

ence Bronze Award for her ACT score her junior year. She is currently employed at the FC Fitness Center. She is a member of Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic Church. Maggie plans to attend college and majoring in Biology.

During his time at Sacred Heart, Henry has been involved in Helping Hands for the past two years and has participated in football, basketball, track, one-act and choir. Henry has received many academic and athletic awards. He is employed at SunMart and is a member of Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic Church. After high school Henry plans to attend college and is undecided at this time on his major.

In celebration of its 125th year, Sacred Heart, and to make Homecoming a little more special, invited some of the past Homecoming Kings and Queens back to be honored at halftime of Sacred Heart’s triumphant victory over Exeter-Milligan. Beginning with the 1960 King and Queen through the present, names of each year’s winners were announced and they were invited onto the field, if they were on hand.
