‘THE PILOT WHO WOULDN’T BAIL OUT’

“You get that way in the schools of America. You learn your duty towards others, and how to make it stick.”

Those words, written by author Paul Gallico, in the May 1944 issue of Esquire magazine, eloquently summarized the reason why Air Service pilot, Captain Bob Hartzell, was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for feats that he accomplished in “The Flying Nightmare.” Gallico’s article was accompanied by a photograph of an original painting by Falls City’s native son, John Falter. The painting was titled The Pilot Who Wouldn’t Bail Out.

Gallico’s article and Falter’s original painting will both be on display from Nov. 11 through Dec. 31 in the Stalder Gallery of the Falls City Library and Arts Center. An art opening has been planned for Tuesday, Nov. 11, featuring world-renowned speaker Dr. Adrian Lewis, an expert on WWII. The Stalder Gallery will open at 6 p.m., with the talk scheduled for 7.

But first, let’s talk about Hartzell’s incredible valor when he flew a C-47 twin-engined transport ship through the valleys of the shadows of death.

Previous to Hartzell’s flight, another pilot had reported that the plane Hartzell was about to fly had had problems because the engines had a nasty habit of conking out at 10,000 feet. So Hartzell and his co-pilot, Lieutenant Bob Gray, had the ground crew check out the engines at a base in Dinjan, North India, and then flew the ship through a series of test flights, and everyone was satisfied with the ship’s performance. Their first flight, to Kunming, China, had proved uneventful, so Hartzell and Gray both thought that the questioning pilot had just been a yellow belly.

However, their flight back to India proved otherwise. It was a harrowing rollercoaster that left Hartzell and Gray thankful for another day, and kissing the ground

DOGGED DETERMINATION

New Humane Society shelter becomes a reality

By Jason Schock

What began as wishful thinking — poodle’s paradise? — on Sunday, Oct. 5, 2014 officially became reality for the fine folks of the Humane Society and the critters they care for.

With the snip of a ribbon by long-time local animal rights champion Bev Kimmel, the Humane Society opened the doors of its new facility; a 900-square-foot building equipped to provide food for the hungry, water for the thirsty, a warm bed when it’s cold, asylum from an unrelenting Nebraska July, a sturdy roof when it rains and, above all, love for the unloved. What started with a couple squeaky old wheels has emerged as a sanctuary for the forsaken. The roughly $80,000 building, located on West 14th Street, north and west of the bowling alley, is shiny and new, complete with state-of-the-art air conditioning and heating units and kennels for nine roommates. The structure is made of concrete and steel, but The Humane Society is made of so much more.

“From the biggest gift to the smallest, they have all worked together to make it happen,” Secretary/Treasurer Julie Phroper said. “It has taken a lot of blood, sweat and tears for us to get this done. It’s simply amazing when I look back from 2008 and realize how many dogs and cats have walked through our doors, (numbering close to 500) some have stayed the rest of their lives, many have found their ‘Forever’ home, and some still waiting. Their stories have left paw prints on our hearts, and we are truly blessed to have a place and a community that helps us to help them. Each happy wag of the tail bringing utmost joy, and each sad case a tear. We have helped to save many unwanted litters by spaying or neutering — I know we have helped hundreds of animals and their owners, and can only guess how much suffering we have eased and ended by helping all we could. Now we can help a few more and it is such a great feeling to know we are making a difference for our homeless furry friends and our community,” Phroper, who is entrusted

Gov. Heineman among many on hand to celebrate Falter Museum

Janet “Dobey” (Falter) Haws clipped the ribbon and ceremoniously opened The John P. Falter Museum last Wednesday during a ceremony held in the front of the museum location at 17th and Stone Street.

The museum is still under construction but before Christmas will display the works of local artist John P. Falter. Haws and several others gave remarks during the ceremony, including Nebraska Gov. Dave Heineman.

“I’m always pleased to travel this great state and tell people that I was born down here in Falls City,” Gov. Heineman said. “This is a very special community and this area as evidenced by what is going on here today.

You know there are a lot of people who deserve a lot of credit for why we’re here today and let me just acknowledge the Falter Museum Committee, the Nebraska State Historical society, the Richardson Foundation, the Library & Community Foundation, Dobey and her committee for all they have done to make this happen, and you know we’re celebrating a very special person,” Heineman said.

John Philip Falter became a world renowned illustrator and historic painter, but never lost his love for Falls City. Following his death in Philadelphia in 1982, his studio

“Some of you may not know that John Falter was a chief petty officer in the Navy and he painted recruitment posters and other patriotic materials and I know that Falls City is very very proud of him and his family and let me just say from a state perspective we are very very proud. That is one thing about Nebraska that I would share with you. We have a lot of famous people in this state and really I’d say every one of you, for what you do for this state very single day. That is why Falls City and Nebraska is such a special place to live to work and to raise a family.

Will your manager be getting the ‘thumbs-up’ this Boss’s Day?

Thursday, Oct. 16, is National Boss’s Day and a chance for employees to thank their bosses for being kind and fair throughout the year.

This day was created for the purpose of strengthening the bond between employer and employee. The holiday has become increasingly popular since its creation. Patricia Bays Haroski registered “National Boss’ Day” with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in 1958. She was working as a secretary for State Farm Insurance Co. in Deerfield, IL, at the time and chose Oct. 16, which was her father’s birthday. She was working for her father at the time.

The purpose of designating a special day in the workplace is to show the appreciation for her bosses she thought they deserved. This was also a strategy to attempt to improve inner-work relationships between the high-ups and the employees. Haroski believed that young employees sometimes did not understand the hardwork and dedication that their supervisors put into their work and the challenges they faced to do so. Four years later, in 1962, Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner backed Haroski’s registration and officially proclaimed the day. Hallmark Cards did not offer a Boss’s Day card for sale until 1979. It increased the size of its National Boss’s Day line by 28 percent in 2007.

Falls City man returns to prison

A 32-year-old Falls City man is returning to prison after Richardson County District Judge Daniel E. Bryan Jr. sentenced him to serve 20 to 40 months in prison for attacking Falls City Police Officers Travis Mitchell and Chuck DiGiacomo last March.

Craig W. Hayes received three sentences — to be served concurrently — after reaching a plea agreement in August with the County Attorney’s Office and entering pleas of guilty to a pair of felony charges of terroristic threats and a charge of assault on an officer in the third degree. A second charge of assault of an officer and a charge of attempted possession of a deadly weapon by a prohibited person were dismissed. In addition to the prison time, Hayes was ordered to pay court costs of $145.

On the evening of Saturday, March 29, officers responded to an altercation involving Hayes and an unnamed person in the 400 block of East 7th and Wilson Streets. When DiGiacomo attempted to intervene, Hayes, said to be “highly intoxicated,” struck the officer and attempted to take his issued firearm. Hayes’ father, former Richardson County Sheriff Keith Hayes, apparently had control of his son, but released him and the younger Hayes attacked DiGiacomo, using closed fists to strike the officer. Craig Hayes then made several attempts to grab DiGiacomo’s weapon and threatened to grab it and shoot him.

DiGiacomo, according to the arrest affidavit, used physical force to control the gun.

Hayes also threatened Mitchell, who responded on backup, with bodily harm and threatened to “kill” him. The officers were not injured and Hayes was arrested at the scene.

This is Hayes’ second stint in the Nebraska Dept. of Corrections. He served about sixth months in 2002 after being convicted of felony terroristic threats and attempted robbery. He was sentenced to serve a minimum of two years and maximum of three.

He was arrested, at the age of 20, in October 2001 on a myriad of felony charges, including making terroristic threats, aiding and abetting a felony, robbery and first-degree assault. During a search of his home, officers recovered a number of weapons, stolen property and a complete meth lab. At least one handgun recovered at the time appeared to be stolen.

Gunshot fired near Dawson lands man, woman in RC Jail

An incident in which a shot was fired near Dawson the afternoon of Saturday, Oct. 4, landed a man and a woman in Richardson County Jail on felony charges.

Members of the Sheriff’s Office arrested 43-year old Natalie Auxier and Joseph D. Senn Jr., 74, of Craig, MO, two miles north of Falls City, near the yard waste disposal site, at about 2:30 p.m. - some 15 minutes after being dispatched to the residence of Buckley Auxier at 71265 642 Ave.

degree assault; use of a firearm in commission of a felony; terroristic threats and carrying a concealed weapon.

Natalie Auxier was arrested for possession of a concealed weapon; being an accessory to a felony and terroristic threats.

Sgt. Lewis Barker was dispatched to the residence of Mr. Auxier to collect a fired bullet casing and collect statements from Auxier as well as alleged witnesses Ron Auxier and Shaun Robertson. All three said Senn drove the Uhaul into the driveway, exited the vehicle and exchanged words with the three men.

When Senn was told to leave the property, Natalie Auxier allegedly got out of the truck and started yelling at the three men. Senn then went to the Uhaul and retrieved the gun. The three men allege that Natalie Auxier yelled “shoot him” and Senn fired a shot in the direction of Buckley Auxier. The three men ran into the house.

Senn and Natalie Auxier then drove south. Shortly after her arrest and being placed in a jail cell, Mrs. Auxier was transported to Community Medical Center for a seizure-related medical problem. From there she was released from custody by Sheriff Houser and transported by ambulance to a Lincoln hospital.

Senn was booked into Richardson County Jail.

Exeter-Milligan reigns 8-man supreme (for now)

The FC Sacred Heart Irish lost a second clash of the eight-man football titans in one season Friday night in Milligan, falling to 2013 Class D1 State Champion Exeter-Milligan 46-20.

The '13 D2 Champion Irish actually led the Timberwolves 20-8 midway through the second quarter after senior Austin Malone picked off a pass and took it 44 yards back to the house.

But during that second period, FCSH senior back Sawyer Kean suffered a deep thigh bruise that sidelined him the entire second half and even beyond — Kean, who was rolling along nicely with 72 yards and a score prior to the injury, will not play this week when 1-5 Sterling comes to Jug Brown Stadium. It's Homecoming Week at Sacred Heart. The final game of the regular season is Oct. 23 at Lincoln Parkview Christian. The standout running back will return by then, if not shortly thereafter, when playoffs begin and FCSH gears up to defend its state title.

And Kean, it's quite obvious, must return with all systems go for that to occur.

It's a different green machine without him, not to mention a different D2 playoff field than a year ago, one that includes the Timberwolves. In Kean's absence, Exeter-Milligan senior Kyle Jensen ran wild and E-M scored 30 unanswered points to entirely flip the game. Jensen scored the first of four touchdowns with 2:13 to play in the first half and went into intermission with 53 rushing yards. The second half was a totally different story. After taking the opening kickoff back 71 yards to give his team its second lead of the night, Jensen rushed for 172 yards and two more TDs (64, 1), running behind some flat-out behemoths (6-6, 327-pound senior Broc Mueller for starters).

Sacred Heart, now 4-2, can take comfort in the fact its only loss to the very best 8-man teams the region has to offer. The Irish have only lost to defending state champions. The Irish opened '14 on the wrong end of a 56-48 shootout with N. Andrew, MO.

Now they know where they stand in Nebraska - and it's pretty good, as long as they have two good legs to stand on.

The Irish took the opening drive and methodically marched 51 yards in nine plays (Kean capped it with a seven-yard TD), burning nearly four minutes of game clock. After after forcing the T-Wolves to punt on their first drive, the home team certainly found itself in foreign lands. Like the Sacred Heart athletes, the Timberwolves players have by and large experienced nothing but success on Friday nights. Each of the last two E-M football seasons ended at Memorial Stadium and, like FCSH (but to a much lesser degree), the T-Wolves '13 title run was one blowout after another for three months. Both teams lost a lot to graduation, both returned 1,000-yard all-state running backs and some size (but no team outside of Lincoln has linemen the size of Mueller). Unlike the Irish, E-M prior to kickoff hadn't been tested.

Whether or not the Timberwolves answered the bell is hard to determine in light of Kean's injury. E-M did answer FCSH's game-opening score with a seven-play, 63-yard drive at the end of the first quarter. Junior QB Sam Zeleny threw a 24-yard TD strike to junior Sean Maxson and Jensen's two-point conversion run made it 8-6 Timberwolves.

The Irish, though, came right back with a drive more impressive than the first, as Malone, himself dinged up plenty during the game, capped a seven-play, 65-yard drive with a nine-yard TD run. Kean ran in the conversion to give FCSH a 14-8 lead. Malone finished with 134 rushing yards on 19 carries and completed eight of his 15 pass attempts, three times finding Logan Scheitel (23 yards) and Bailey Witt (16 yards).

After Malone's pick-six, coming with 7:27 to go before intermission, the D2 Champs led the D1 Champs 20-8. But following Kean's injury, seven Irish offensive possessions produced no points. Malone appeared to complete a TD pass to Witt as time expired in the first half, but the junior receiver's feet came down out of the back of the end zone when he hauled it in.

(LEFT) FCSH senior linebacker Zavan Kirkendall (42) clawed, scratched and grabbed all he could to slow down Exeter-Milligan senior Kyle Jensen and keep his team in the game Friday at Milligan. Mission accomplished — for about a half. Kirkendall finished with 19 team-high tackles and the Irish defense held the 190-pound

Jensen to 53 first-half yards and kept him out of the end zone the first 22 minutes. (RIGHT) FCSH senior Bailey Witt (3 catches, 16 yards) caught a would-be TD pass from Austin Malone out of the back of the end zone as time expired in the first half.

(TOP) With the snip of a ribbon by long-time local animal rights champion Bev Kimmel, the Humane Society opened the doors of its new 900-square-foot facility. The roughly $80,000 building, located on West 14th Street, north and west of the bowling alley, is shiny and new, complete with state-of-the-art air conditioning and heating units and kennels for nine room-mates (LEFT). because there were no other options. “People who care need to get involved and change that,” she said. “I cared and got involved. Things have changed due to other caring people who also got involved,” Ardis said. The property was purchased in 2008 with the idea from it would sprout a new shelter. A building fund was started at First National Bank and the shelter took root, growing slowly with a cookie sold here, a Husker football ticket raffled there. In 2012 came the real growth spurt and the vision of a new shelter truly emerged on the horizon, no longer a Tiny get-togethers at Hinky Dinky followed. Marian Vernon and Bev Chesnut joined the fight, current President Ardis Ram-

The blueprints were drawn up by Mezger Construction, who also performed the major construction. El Camino Electric, Meyer Home Center, Jones Air Conditioning, Pawnee City Guttering and Froeschl Flooring did work on the shelter. Six of Tigers’ seven scoring drives come before 2nd snap Falls City High senior Jack Hartman contributed to three Falls City touchdowns inside of the final four minutes of the first half, helping his team improve to 6-1 with a 48-7 win over Johnson County Central Friday night at Jug Brown Stadium. Hartman rushed for two scores and 75 yards on seven carries, passed for another two TDs and 183 yards (on four perfect attempts) and had his hand in a trio of two-point conversions.

Just one of FC’s seven scoring drives needed a third snap from center. Read that again.

The blowout victory was FC’s fourth in a row and sets up the District title game everyone knew was coming: FC at 5-2 Syracuse this Friday.

The Tigers haven’t been remotely tested in victory this fall, earning its six wins by an average score of 47-9. And that doesn’t tell much of a story, as the varsity has been pulled from at least half those contests and the opponents currently hold a collective record of 9-33. The one real contest for Falls City came and went in Week 3, when early turnovers doomed its chances in a 34-0 loss to still-unbeaten Ashland-Greenwood.

The same is true for the 5-2 Rockets, who entered this week’s Class 1 rankings at No. 10. After starting 0-2 with losses to 4-3 Bishop Neumann (30-29) and 7-0 Ashland (28-13), Syracuse, much the same as FC, ran roughshod over Lincoln Lutheran (45-0), Wahoo (45-9), JCC (42-0), Conestoga (76-14) and Louisville (35-0). Their five-game winning streak has come against opponents with a 6-29 record. With a home game with 1-6 Conestoga wrapping up the regular season Oct. 24, Falls City’s season largely boils down to this matchup with Syracuse. A loss and FC likely goes 7-2 and either misses the playoffs entirely or slips in with a No. 16 seed and gets rewarded with a first-round game at Boone Central or Norfolk Catholic. Syracuse must win to secure such a reward.

Friday’s game appears to be of the four-quarter variety and that will be a new experience for the Tigers. Despite holding Ashland to just 67 total rushing yards and rolling up significant stats of their own, the Tigers trailed 20-0 in a matter of minutes in that one. And ever since, it’s been far more lopsided. Last week, Falls City scored all its points in the first half and scored on plays of 70, 63, 51 and 43 yards. It was 30-0 before the first quarter was over.

Senior Brenden Heckenlively struck first, streaking 70 yards for a TD with 7:37 to play in the opening period. Hartman then threw to Heckenlively to make it 8-0.

Three minutes later, senior Weston Witt took the direct snap and bulled his way in from the 20, carrying each of the 11 eligible JCC players into the end zone with him. Hartman threw to senior Jordy Stoller for the two-pointer: 16-0.

A minute later, with 3:27 remaining in the first quarter, Hartman ran 12 yards for the TD. The conversion pass from Heckenlively to Hartman was no good: 22-0.

With 40 seconds remaining in the quarter, Hartman found Stoller for a 63-yard TD and then added the two-point conversion: 30-0.

Falls City, somehow, sustained a six-play drive in the second quarter, going 84 yards on six plays. Hartman found Jeremy Waggoner for a 51-yard TD with four minutes left in the half: 36-0.

With 1:28 to play before intermission, Hartman once again ran for six, this time from the 43: 42-0.

JCC got on the board on the ensuing kickoff, as Sam Sterup returned Alessandro Bosio’s kickoff 91 yards for a touchdown, giving his team six points and Falls City yet another chance to score before half.

The Tigers didn’t waste it. With 45 seconds left on the clock, Zayne Heckenlively ran it in from the five: 48-7.

Friday’s kickoff at Syracuse is set for 7 p.m.

Tips for beating the Winter Blues

(StatePoint) Sniffles and flu are not the only afflictions of winter. Many people find that the dark and cold days can impact their mood. In fact, seasonal affective disorder affects approximately 10 million Americans, and another 10 to 20 percent of the public may have mild SAD, according to Psychology Today.

Coupled with busy lives, the winter blues can put extra strain on one’s relationships and psyche. Luckily there are simple lifestyle changes you can make to help lead a happier, less stressful life during winter.

Healthy Habits

Feeling blue can be compounded by unhealthy habits. Limit alcohol and get plenty of rest to feel your best. Eat foods beneficial to brain health, such as those that contain omega 3 fatty acids.

Be sure to exercise daily, as physical activity can boost serotonin and dopamine levels in your brain. While the days may be shorter, try to take advantage of the sunlight each day with a brisk walk at lunch -- remember to bundle up though, a winter cold is never fun!

Get Cozy

One of the causes of winter blues is light deprivation. If you have a fireplace, counteract the shorter days by adding a fire to your daily routine.

Dinner, reading, relaxing, watching TV, and even working can seem more enjoyable by adding the light and warmth of a fire, say the statistics. Indeed, 89 percent of people say having a fire is extremely important, important or somewhat important to their wintertime quality of life, according to a recent survey jointly conducted by the American Institute of Stress (AIS) and Duraflame, which creates fire-related products, including fire logs and fire starters.

A fire can offer stress relief, creating an opportunity to gather friends and family in a relaxing ambiance. Whether you’re alone or with a group, consider making it a hassle-free experience by using a manufactured fire log, which produces robust, bright flames and burns significantly cleaner and more efficiently than a typical wood fire.

Take a Breather

Consider setting aside more time each day to mentally and physically recuperate. Nearly 60 percent of people take an hour a day or less to wind down and relax, according to the AIS and Duraflame survey, and more probably should.

Try this quick stress relief exercise, “The Quieting Reflex,” recommended by Dr. Daniel L. Kirsch, president of AIS:

- Smile inwardly with your eyes and mouth, relaxing your facial muscles. Think of something heartwarming or amusing while you do this. This starts to counter stress immediately.
 - Next think of the expression: “Alert Mind, Calm Body” to counter negative thoughts.
 - Slowly take a deep breath while visualizing it as warm air coming in from pores, or holes opening up in the bottom of your feet and slowly moving up into your lungs.
 - While you exhale, visualize a wave of warmth and relaxation slowly flowing through your body exiting through your feet, like the spreading warmth you feel when sitting by the fireplace.
- You can’t control the seasons, but by being proactive, you can get back to enjoying your winters.

Cancer Survivors Face Workplace Challenges

(StatePoint) Cancer affects more than a person’s health, it can impact his or her working life. While nearly four-fifths of survivors say they need to work for financial reasons, nearly half worry that prospective employers would treat them differently if they knew about their diagnosis, according to survey results from Harris Poll on behalf of Cancer and Careers, an organization dedicated to supporting the growing number of people working during and after cancer treatment.

“No matter the reason for returning, work can be empowering for cancer survivors, and with the right information and preparation, they can truly thrive in the workplace,” says Kate Sweeney, executive director at Cancer and Careers.

Finance is a driving factor for most survivors returning to work, but many also want to maintain a sense of normalcy or feel productive, the survey found. Working cancer survivors have a unique set of challenges, from thinking through their online image, to dealing with gaps in work history on resumes and cover letters. For tips, tools and resources, visit www.CancerandCareers.org.

While working during cancer treatment or seeking employment afterwards can seem daunting, resources are available to help survivors through the process.

The object of the plaintiff's Complaint is to foreclose on Tax Sale Certificate No. 11-002 for the delinquent taxes on the real estate described above. The taxes due under the certificate are for the 2009 thru 2013 taxes plus interest at the rate of 14% per annum. The Complaint asks the court to find that the taxes are a lien against the real estate, as provided by law, and that upon establishment of such lien, the real estate, which may remain unredeemed, be sold at public sale to satisfy the decree so entered, together with interest and costs, including attorney's fees as provided for and by Nebraska Revised Statute §77-1909, as amended, and that the defendants be forever barred of all claims upon, interest in, right or title to, lien upon or equity of redemption in the real estate upon confirmation of the sale. To defend this lawsuit, an appropriate written response must be filed with the District Court of Richardson County, Nebraska, 1700 Stone Street, Falls City, Nebraska 68355, within 30 days of the last publication of this notice. If you fail to respond, the court may enter a judgment for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Cards of Thanks

Thank you to all who helped make my 90th birthday another special memory. The many cards, phone calls, and personal birthday wishes were wonderful. The newspaper ad and the party at Falls City Rehab and Care Center made it especially fun. Special thanks to my daughters Diana Rieschick Vogt and Pat Rieschick for all they did to make Oct. 5 a day to remember. Thanks to the Care Center for allowing the use of their family room.

Psalms 60:12 says, "With God's help we will do mighty things, for he will trample down our foes."
We would like to thank our Lord, for answering our prayers. From the start a shelter was our goal and we will always need help to give home to the homeless. Sunday, October 5, 2014, our new shelter had its open house. What a joy and blessing. We have so many to thank from the beginning until now. With the efforts of many donations, memorials, foster care, sales, events, memberships and the keepers of the animals and volunteers that help. The founders that knew we had a great need in Falls City for a Humane Society shelter. A special thank you to Pastor John Hogue for dedicating the shelter. To our Lord, to all that helped and attended our open house, God Bless all of you.

that they walked on.

It all started when the ground crew at Kunming loaded the transport ship with wolframite, which, according to Gallico’s article, was “an extremely heavy ore used in the making of special war steels.” That stuff was heavy enough! But then, a Chinese officer asked Hartzell to transport him and two wounded comrades to India. The wounded lay on stretchers and needed more intensive emergency care in India than they would receive in China.

Hartzell swallowed the lump in his throat and remembered his schooling in America, and his sacred honor to care for his fellow human beings.

“Sure, load them up,” he said.

The weight of the passengers, wolframite, and gasoline totaled about 7,000 pounds, on a ship whose capacity was about 4,000. Still, Hartzell and Gray managed to get the plane off the ground.

Try as he might, though, Hartzell couldn’t get the plane above 13,000 feet, in an area where the snowy mountaintops soared to 10,000 or 11,000. He was worried about the “clouds with rock centers,” because he never knew when a cloud might contain the jagged, snow-crusted peak of a mountain top.

But that worry was nothing compared to what happened next. When his plane broke through the overcast, a fleet of 27 Japanese bombers and 17 Zeros (fighter planes), suddenly appeared.

Three of the Zeros ripped off of the formation and headed for their prey, just as a radioman at the base down below yelled into his radio, “For Chrisake, you deadheads, get out of the sky! The Japs are over us!”

According to Gallico’s article, “Hartzell and Gray hauled back on the wheel, kicked rudder, and put the big ship into the nearest thing to a slow roll that an overloaded transport is capable of, and then dove into the protecting clouds.”

Hartzell expected to die any minute. The headline in his hometown paper would read, “Local Pilot Dies in Mountaintop Crash.”

God must’ve played with the ship at that point, zig-zagging the plane through the mountains and valleys like a little boy playing with a plastic toy. Hartzell missed every snow-crusted peak. For more than an hour then, he flew the overloaded plane between the protective walls of a river gorge. And then, he decided to do the unthinkable—to turn around and go back. Hartzell laid the plane on its side in the canyon, (aging himself about ten years in the process), and headed south again. He and Gray flew the overloaded ship as low to the ground as possible, never daring to show their wings above the river gorge. They passed by the base where the radioman had urged them to land, and the man in the tower was dead. The Japanese fleet had caught them by surprise.

Becky Wissmann, of Falls City, gets an “up close and personal” photo with her phone of a rather large bird of prey in her neighborhood near 9th and Stone Streets on the morning of Friday, Oct. 3. The chicken hawk’s meal was too big for carryout - the bird couldn’t take flight with the rabbit in its talons - but it wasn’t about to give it up all the same.

Hartzell then found a pass back east, toward India, so he took it. The problem was, he couldn’t maintain the ship at more than 8,000 feet because one of his engines had gone dead. As he entered the walls of a protective cloud, the other one conked out, too.

In the silence, Hartzell yelled to his crew chief, “Get your chute on and get out!” It was almost sunset, so darkness was adding fuel to the fire. Hartzell, his co-pilot, and crew chief needed to bail.

Then Hartzell turned back and looked at the Chinamen on their stretchers. Both moaned in pain. Their faces were pinched. Their eyes were filled with dread. Hartzell remembered his American schooling—how no man abandoned another in need, how a captain was the last man to leave his ship. He looked back at his co-pilot, and both swallowed the lumps in their throats. Today was the day that each would meet his Maker. Hartzell wondered if his end would appear through the clouds, or if he would even see it coming.

Suddenly, an idea struck him. The hand fuel pump! It was used for priming the engines before starting them. Maybe it would work! He started frantically pumping, and then let Gray take over.

One of the engines coughed, sputtered, turned over, then caught.

Hartzell continued to fly the ship on instruments, through the hazy, darkening clouds. When he pulled out and saw the base below, he felt like he was going home. He put the ship down as the sun sunk below the horizon. By the time he taxied in, the sky was pitch black.

Hartzell had left the base a captain. But he returned a hero.

Captain Bob Hartzell had refused to abandon a ship that carried those in need, because, above all, he was an American.
