'IN THE SNOW'

By Lori Gottula

When Joe Martinez woke up that day, he had no idea it would be his last. He was fighting in a war, so he knew that death was possible, but, like every other man his age, he felt invincible. He still had hopes and dreams, and plans for his life after the war.

The day that he died was May 26, 1943. He was gunned down during World War II in a battle that author Paul Gallico described in fascinating detail in an article that he wrote for the April 1944 edition of Esquire magazine.

According to Gallico's article, Martinez was a 23-year-old Mexican-American who was born in a small, dusty adobe on the outskirts of Taos, New Mexico. He and his family later moved to the base of the Rocky Mountains, to a town called Ault, Colorado. Martinez was inducted into the Army on Aug. 7, 1942, in Denver. He blended in then, with the sea of grass-green uniforms, and synchronized platoon marches. He was now an American soldier, trained to think as an appendage of the body, rather than a lone soul.

No one heard much about him after his induction, until the day that he died. It was during a battle for Attu Island, the furthest outpost of the Aluetian chain, just off of Alaska. The island had been claimed by Japanese forces, and Martinez was part of a battalion that was sent to drive the enemy from the heights that it held between Holtz Bay and Chichagof Harbor.

And Martinez took the job very seriously.

According to Gallico's article,

Martinez and his battalion were face-down in the snow on a mountain pass. They had just watched in horror as the officers and friends that had gone ahead of them dropped one-by-one like heart-attack victims. Many lay dead in the pass, as their rivers of life streamed onto the dirty-white snow.

No one will ever know what went through Martinez's mind then, but as bullets blazed around him and his fellow troops, and grenades exploded into tornado clouds of dust and debris, Martinez stood up—alone. Without looking back

Beware the sales pitches during Medicare's annual open enrollment

Once again it's Medicare open enrollment season, the time for those on Medicare to choose how to cover the gaps in the government health program for seniors and people with disabilities. Once again beneficiaries in many parts of the country face a bewildering number of choices---far more than most of them can reasonably evaluate. It's no wonder studies show that beneficiaries stick with the same plan year after year even though they may be able to get something cheaper.

In New York City I have nearly 100 choices considering both Medicare Advantage plans and traditional Medigap policies, but I'm not about to switch. This year, though, I did a little "shopping" to help readers understand what they might confront should they wade into the thicket of options. They are especially plentiful for Medicare Advantage plans, a private managed-care arrangement that restricts the doctors and hospitals a person can use.

The usual flyers and brochures from sellers of Medicare Advantage plans began to arrive in the mail a few weeks ago. One nearly fooled me. It read, “Medicare Health Plan Information, Important Information Regarding 2015 Changes Enclosed.” For a minute I thought it was Medicare contacting me to tell me I had to pay a higher monthly premium.

But it was only a “lead card” used by insurance agents and brokers to gather names of sales prospects. The card instructs recipients to send their names and phone numbers to the National Reply Center in Indianapolis. I’ve seen similar pitches from the National Reply Center for years. Presumably they’ve sent the names on to insurance sales agents.

Tip Number One: Don't respond to vague solicitations like this or to solicitations directly from insurance companies for that matter unless you absolutely want an agent to come to your home and give you a pitch.

The brochure from Empire Blue Cross offered $23 premiums for its Medicare Advantage plan and said to ask for details. I did and got none. The phone intake worker said I had to give some personal data to get specific information from an agent on the phone. Or, she said, I could attend a seminar, one of those coffee klatches insurers have where they talk copays and deductibles over donuts and coffee and get people to sign up.

UnitedHealthcare sent a classier brochure, an “invitation” to save the date for one of those coffee klatches. It was pushing its zero-premium plans but did advise “limitations, copayments and restrictions may apply.” I know the real money action is not in a copayment, which is small fixed amount beneficiaries have to pay for services that require copays. But the big cost burden comes from coinsurance, the percentage of the bill the beneficiary has to pick up. The brochure said nothing about that.

The Medicare Handbook noted that United’s zero premium plan comes with a 20 percent coinsurance obligation for chemo drugs, Part B drugs, which include those received for hospital outpatient care, and durable medical equipment like hospital beds. These are high-ticket items, and insurers are eager to transfer some of the cost to beneficiaries.

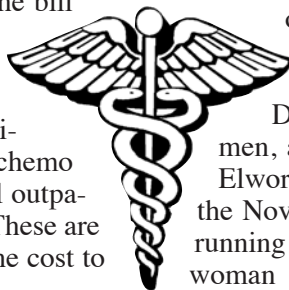

Tip Number Two: Be sure you know how much your coinsurance will be and what services it applies to. Company sales agents usually don't talk much about these at the coffee klatches. The other day I wandered into a sales presentation a representative of WellCare was giving to a group of seniors at a New York City food court. I asked the sales agent if he was going to talk about coinsurance. No, he replied. "We are only giving a summary of benefits here." If prospective buyers knew what they might have to pay for some of those benefits, maybe they wouldn't sign up.

I did get a United representative on the phone. He didn't seem to know a lot about the policies his company offered. I kept asking questions. Finally, he said drug expenses don't count toward the out-of-pocket maximum you have to pay. In other words, only medical expenses, not those for prescription drugs, count toward satisfying the maximum amount you have to pay out of pocket.

Tip Number Three: Understand what expenses do and don't count toward the maximum.

Tip Number Four: Don't fall for a plan just because it has a low or no monthly premium. You won't find out which plan is really cheaper until you use it and learn how it works when you get a chronic disease or a life-threatening illness. A low-premium plan may become very expensive if you need high-priced cancer drugs and have to pay 20 percent of the cost.

Once again my advice is buyer beware-and consider the old-fashioned Medigap policies especially Plans F and C. They give you the most cov-

Hang on, there's an election in just a couple weeks

Capitol View
By J.L. Schmidt
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

Remember when -- what now seems like ages ago -- I suggested that you keep track of the Nebraska Primary Elections by using a large sheet of paper, a pencil and an eraser to write the names of the gubernatorial and senate candidates and keep track of them?

That list is likely as tattered and torn as the primary itself. But Omaha millionaire, Republican Pete Ricketts, emerged as the Republican winner and Lyons rural activist and former University of Nebraska Regent, Chuck Hassebrook, won the uncontested Democratic race. The two men, and Libertarian Mark G. Elworth, Jr. of Omaha, are on the Nov. 4 ballot. Hassebrook is running with Lincoln businesswoman Jane Raybould (think grocery store chains Russ's Market and Super Saver) as the lieutenant governor candidate and Elworth is running with Scott Zimmerman of Omaha.

Ricketts is running with his second choice for lieutenant governor after incumbent Lt. Gov. Lavan Heidemann stepped down when a judge issued a restraining order against him on behalf of his sister, and he resigned his state post and dropped off the Ricketts' ticket. Ricketts went to the pool of five vanquished Republican gubernatorial nominees and picked the fourth-place finisher, State Auditor Mike Foley. Nobody saw that one coming.

Elworth filed suit to prohibit Secretary of State John Gale from taking Heidemann's name off the ballot and replacing it with Foley's. Elworth argued that the deadline to change the ballot had passed. Gale argued, and the court agreed, that having the correct names on the ballot was more important.

Then there's the race for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by former Lincoln mayor turned governor turned U.S. Ag Secretary then U.S. Senator Mike Johanns. Ben Sasse, the young and charismatic president of Midland College, won the Republican nod to face seasoned attorney and veteran Democrat, David Domina of Omaha. Independents Jim Jenkins of Callaway and Todd F. Watkins of Lincoln petitioned their way onto the ballot.

Jenkins, a Sandhills cattle rancher turned big city businessman and Nebraska restaurantpreneur (think Whiskey Creek steakhouses and Skeeter Barnes BBQ) won the endorsement of the Lincoln Journal Star, a newspaper better known for supporting Democrats.

Speaking of endorsements, the Omaha World-Herald, more often prone to endorsing conservative Republicans, gave its editorial nod to Democrat Brad Ashford in his race against longtime Republican incumbent Second District Congressman Lee Terry. Libertarian Steven Laird of Omaha is also in that race. Ashford, an Independent during his last session as a state senator, switched to the Democratic Party to challenge Terry.

Gov. Dave Heineman tried to insert himself in that race by criticizing Ashford and legislative colleague Sen. Steve Lathrop for being supporters of a good time law, which allows Nebraska prison inmates to earn a one-day sentence reduction for every day of good conduct. Heineman says that situation led to the release of an inmate from Omaha who killed four people within days of his release. Lathrop is leading a special legislative committee that is investigating mistakes by prison administrators that led to the early release of several hundred inmates because officials ignored Nebraska Supreme Court opinions on sentencing guidelines. Lathrop called Heineman's assertions political rhetoric.

gressman Jeff Fortenberry faces off against Lincoln attorney Dennis Crawford, a Democrat. Incumbent Third District Congressman Adrian Smith of Gering faces a challenge from Mark Sullivan of Doniphan.

Nebraska voters will also cast ballots in the races for state Auditor, Attorney General, Secretary of State and Treasurer. There are 24 legislative seats open as well as slots on the state Board of Education, the University of Nebraska Board of Regents, a number of community college boards and natural resources districts.

Whoever you like in all these races, keep one thing in mind. Your vote counts, so get out there and cast it.

We must close the behavioral health gap in rural America

By John L. Roberts, MA., Executive Director
Nebraska Rural Health Association

Today, one in four adults will suffer from a diagnosable behavioral health disorder. Behavioral health disorders are the leading cause of disability in the United States, and, by comparison, anxiety disorders are more common than diabetes. Health care providers are better able to recognize, diagnose and treat behavioral health conditions than at any other time in our history.

Still, there is a significant gap between the number of people suffering from behavioral health disorders and the number who are receiving treatment. Those who do seek treatment from public programs often find that care is delayed, inefficient, fragmented and uncoordinated—if accessible at all.

This problem is dire in most rural communities. Our families, schools, businesses, criminal justice system and other facets of our society are under incredible stress from people suffering from behavioral health issues, from severe mental health disorders to addiction problems. And there is still social stigma even though these conditions are highly treatable. It’s critical that we continue the conversations to diminish this stigma and shine a brighter light on behavioral health issues.

This problem affects everyone, and we must make significant changes. Health care providers must be on the leading edge on this issue, but they can’t do it alone. We must improve overall access to behavioral health providers in rural areas. Provider shortages throughout the field—psychiatrists, psychiatric advanced practice nurse practitioners, psychologists and psychotherapists—are creating significant access problems. We must support workforce development through residency and student placements and providing training opportunities.

Somehow, some way, we must bring the supply of providers up to meet demand. Other components of improving access include shifting capacity and associated reimbursement levels from inpatient to outpatient settings and leveraging technology to improve access. There needs to be community coordination and the appropriate support from a number of entities. We must integrate behavioral health with primary care. Behavioral health and physical health are interconnected, and the care should be as well. It’s been estimated that up to 70% of primary care visits stem from psychosocial issues, even though the patient presents with physical complaints. Integration helps ensure we treat the whole person.

Delivering behavioral health services in a primary care setting, improves the access point crisis, facilitates monitoring of patients over time, helps prevent hospital re-admissions, is more cost-effective and reduces the stigma of behavioral health issues. Emerging evidence suggests that various care models can successfully support integration of behavioral health with primary care.

Finally, we must share the right information to coordinate care. The recently passed HIPAA Harmonization bill removes a major barrier. The new law is more in line with HIPAA privacy rules. This gives health care providers faster access to more useful information about the individual’s diagnosis, enabling more appropriate and effective treatment overall. All the better if this sharing is done as part of an integrated primary care model, via a common electronic health record.

Untreated and undertreated behavioral health disorders harm individuals, families, communities, businesses and society. Rural communities must stay engaged as they, collectively, engage in this vitally important work.

Losing sight of our humanity

Currently in our own home State of Nebraska we aren’t leading the National headlines with our agricultural heritage, our historical heritage, or even our cultural and athletic heritage. Instead, we are on the National News for our push to have our teachers stop referring to children in the classrooms as “boys and girls” and just call them “students.” Apparently it is no longer “politically correct” to gender identify and differentiate that boys and girls are actually “boys and girls” in school. They must just be students.

We would certainly NOT want to stigmatize and “brand” those poor young children of elementary school age (4-12 years old) as a “boy” or a “girl” and thus pigeon-hole them into a gender specific role they might never recover from. We must call them student, so that they can blossom into a role of their choosing without regard to gender.

Really? Have we reached a point in our politically correct society now that we have lost touch with our own humanity that we are not allowed to even recognize our own gender within the classroom. Soon the school uniform for everyone with be the Scottish Kilt! With affirmative action, Title IX initiatives, the success of women in all kinds of corporate and “non-traditional” roles, not to mention the role of men as cooks and chefs, designers, nurses, and other “non-traditional” jobs, does the State of Nebraska and its school systems need to pass laws and policies that restrict the use of gender terms in the classroom?

There are much bigger issues to focus on and Nebraska can find better ones to draw attention to itself from the national perspective. Let kids be kids, let boys be boys and girls be girls. They will grow up soon enough to get as frustrated as I am about what people should call them!

Of course that’s just my opinion.

Free Medicare Part D help in Falls City

People who take advantage of Medicare’s annual enrollment typically save money and get better prescription drug coverage. A free Medicare Part D Enrollment Event will be held in Falls City on November 13th, 2014.

Appointments are required to meet with a counselor and find cost-effective coverage to meet individual prescription needs. Nebraska Senior Health Insurance Information Program (SHIIP) and Falls City Healthcare Community are hosting the event which will be held at 2800 Towle Street, Falls City.

Medicare drug plans and Advantage plans change costs and benefits annually. Between October 15 and December 7, people with Medicare can compare benefits and costs for the coming year and make changes in their coverage. SHIIP-certified counselors provide unbiased information to help consumers make informed choices.

“Your health needs change from year to year. Your drug plan changes costs and benefits, too,” according to Alicia Jones, Nebraska SHIIP director. “That’s why it’s important to evaluate Medicare choices every year. But you don’t have to do it alone. Medicare and Nebraska SHIIP provide free counseling.”

There are several ways for people with Medicare to get help:

- Schedule an individual appointment for November 13th in Falls City. Call Jerri at 402.245.5252.
- Talk to a SHIIP-certified counselor by phone. Call the SHIIP Hotline at 1-800-234-7119.
- Visit <http://www.medicare.gov/find-a-plan> to compare your current coverage with other plans or enroll in a new plan.
- Call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) 24 hours a day, 7 days a week to find out more about your coverage options. TTY users call 1-877-486-2048.

The Nebraska Senior Health Insurance Information Program (SHIIP) is part of a national network, funded by a grant from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, that offers free, unbiased counseling and educational services designed to help seniors and people with disabilities make informed decisions about health insurance. With over 300 volunteers across the state, the Nebraska SHIIP is coordinated within the Nebraska Department of Insurance.

Fall is time to water trees

While we have received some heavy rains recently, it is important to keep your trees well watered going into the winter. Even with more rain this summer than last, the effect of 2012's summer heat and drought still shows up in the landscapes and yards of many southeast Nebraska residents. Several trees died in 2012 and 2013 in the region while others still have not recovered. One thing that is very important is to make sure your trees have been watered well going into the winter months and are not being stressed from dry conditions. Young and newly planted trees (those planted within the last 3-years) are the most susceptible. They do not have the extensive root system of established trees to draw moisture from the soil. This past spring a number of conifers died, (i.e Eastern red cedar, junipers and arborvitae). The extremely cold temperatures and dry winter we had last year, really were hard on the trees. Some of the trees and shrubs were older, but others were 1-3 years old.

The summer of 2012 was very hard on trees and some still show the stress due to the extremely hot conditions and also stress from insect pests and diseases. The stress that is put on trees by insects and diseases makes trees more susceptible to drought stress. While generally healthy, well established trees will not be affected by insects or a short term drought for that matter, watering these trees will not hurt. You can water these trees out to the drip line, the ground beneath the tree where the leaf canopy ends.

How do I know if my trees need watering? Even if you have been watering your trees on a regular basis all summer, they still will need a good soaking this fall headed into the winter unless we receive a great deal of natural precipitation (rain). Trees will benefit from a good soaking this fall. If you can't push a screwdriver in the ground around the tree, the ground needs soaking. For newly planted trees, Dennis Adams, Forester with the University of Nebraska recommends soaking the soil around the trees about an hour every week to 10 days. For young landscape trees he recommends deep watering before the ground freezes to thoroughly soak the soil. Letting a garden hose run for several hours should provide sufficient water. Dave Mooter, a Forester with the NE Forest Service recommends applying five gallons of water two or three times a week to young trees. Deep watering trees this fall could prevent serious injury to trees this winter if dry conditions persist.

If you haven't done it, apply 4-6" of wood chip mulch around the base of trees, especially the newly planted trees and then water the mulch. It is also a good idea to water early in the morning which allows the tree to use the water during the day. It is best to water slowly, but deeply for newly planted trees. This helps trees develop deeper roots making them more resistant to future drought stress.

Winter is a difficult time for trees, so anything you can do to reduce the stress will be beneficial. Throughout the winter if precipitation has been short, deeply water trees if the ground isn't frozen with a slow trickling hose or a slow running sprinkler left in place for a couple of hours. Apply it slow enough that it can soak in and not run off. These are some tips that should help your trees make it through the winter in good shape.

ELECT JUDY MURPHY

I have served on the City Council, not only as a representative for Ward 2, but for all the residents of Falls City. As I campaigned, back in 2002...I am not a politician; I'm a concerned citizen. I'm honest, fair and always try to do my best for the people, as well as, for the City. I serve on several boards & committees. I try to attend workshops and any municipality – related events that are available. Serving on the City Council is more than just two Monday nights a month.

It requires commitment, dedication, participation and much more. Falls City is headed toward an even better future. I want to continue to help with that journey. I humbly ask for your Vote November 4th.

I appreciate your support. Sincerely, Judy Murphy

EXPERIENCE MATTERS

When youth volunteer, benefits reaped by everyone involved

Most youth in the United States are healthy, happy, and productive members of society. In fact, the majority of youth in the country engage in some form of volunteer activity and they see the value in the work they do to help others.

When youth volunteer, benefits are reaped by almost everyone involved – the targeted population, the community, and the volunteers themselves.

Volunteers help lower operation costs of organizations they serve, like the 4-H program, museums, zoos, and food banks. This allows organizations to make services available to larger audiences.

Volunteering also has positive effects on the community. Youth who are involved promote community togetherness and positive citizenship. Youth volunteers feel more connected to their respective communities and tend to stay in or return to those communities.

Experts agree that youth volunteerism provides opportunities for youth to learn new skills and provides valuable work experience. This enhances work marketability and increases chances for college success. Volunteer work provides opportunities to develop friendships and meaningful relationships, often with like-minded peers and adults.

The experience of volunteerism can help develop many social skills – compassion, leadership, confidence, self-esteem, plus the realization that you can make a difference.

While volunteering has many benefits, it can be time consuming and exhausting for some youth who are already extremely busy. To keep youth involved and to encourage volunteerism, allow them the ability to take time off if needed and keep scheduled hours short and flexible. Matching volunteers to their interests and talents is also a great way to keep volunteers in a program. Youth look forward to volunteering if it is fun and allows them to work on skills that are beneficial to them.

Ideas on how parents, educators, and community leaders can encourage youth to volunteer include:

- Provide youth with information on volunteer opportunities.
- Invite, ask, and encourage youth to volunteer.
- Help youth work through practical barriers. Help them work through scheduling, transportation, completing an application, and other steps in volunteering.
- Help youth find an opportunity that fits his or her interests and skills.
- Alert youth to the rewards of volunteering. Point out to youth that volunteer activities enhance their scholarship applications and resume. They can also gain skills that might improve their job marketability, plus it feels good to help others.
- Be a great role model. Parents and other adults who encourage youth to volunteer are more effective if they themselves volunteer.

Being involved in causes that help other people is an essential component of positive youth development. The experience of volunteering provides youth with the social and practical skills that can help them succeed in life and gets them engaged and more invested in their communities.

Changes to NRD groundwater management regulations set to be acted upon in November

Tecumseh – Water was on the mind of many at the Nemaha Natural Resources District’s regular meeting Thursday, Oct. 9.

Following a period this summer when some domestic wells in the Barada area of Richardson County failed, landowners there asked the NRD for help in determining the cause. They requested a moratorium be placed on approval of any further irrigation wells in the area to allow time to study possible impacts on domestic well supplies. However, with proposed changes to the NRD’s groundwater management area rules and regulations set to be acted upon in November, it was felt the revised rules and scoring system would effectively eliminate many high capacity wells in that area from approval.

NRD staff will continue to work with landowners in that area to monitor water levels and assist with registration of domestic wells to help protect them from encroachment by high capacity wells.

Last month the board tabled action on a motion to reconsider a previously denied well permit for Harlan Plager. After voting to take up discussion and action on that motion, the board narrowly defeated the original motion in a 9-8-1 vote. Much discussion and concern revolved around what kind of restrictions could be placed on approval of another permit, whether reconsideration of a permit should even be allowed, and the prevailing concerns from the Pawnee County Rural Water District about the proximity to their public water supply wells. In subsequent action on another permit for a well in Richardson County to be used to fill a pond, the board also denied approval of that permit.

In other action, four bids to place rip rap on five watershed structures were awarded to B.A.B., Inc., from Adams. They submitted the low bid in each instance, and only two or three bids were received on each project. Work is scheduled to be completed yet this fall, and the NRD is contracting separately for the rip rap and hauling.

Christy Haddan from Schulz and Associates accounting firm in Beatrice was on hand to review the District’s FY2014 audit report. She once again reported that the District’s financial standing was favorable and that no problems or issues were uncovered in their review. The board opted to delay action to approve the report, however, until next month to allow members time to study it in greater detail.

A proposal from Beehive Industries to develop a database collection system to be used to track and record information about the watersheds and structures in the District was considered. The initial, total cost to set up the data and provide support, training, and updates was $7,000 with a subsequent annual maintenance fee of $3,600. Board approval was granted for the system, which does not include the cost of the hardware required for employees to use the system in the field.

Several items in conjunction with the Duck Creek project were discussed and/or acted upon. First the board authorized the manager to proceed with incorporating dirt work for road improvements in with the bidding process for the dam itself. In addition some revisions were approved to the land rights settlement with the major landowner on the project. The change reduced the purchase area by about two acres but provided an additional seven acres for mitigation. Finally the board approved an agreement with Nebraska Game and Parks that would have them provide $500,000 in cost-share assistance toward the in-lake, fisheries related recreation facilities.

With the recent death of NRD Director John Albrecht, the board was required to make a decision on how to fill the vacancy. Since Albrecht’s term was set to expire at the end of December, their action was to declare the seat in Subdistrict 4 vacant and designate Jan. 8, 2015, as the first date on which to consider applications to appoint someone to fill it. Because of changes in state law, the appointment will only be for a two-year term after which the seat will be up for election in 2016 for another two years.

The next regular meeting will be Thursday, Nov. 13, in Tecumseh. Starting in November and extending through March, meetings will begin at 7 p.m. A public hearing on the proposed changes to the rules and regulations for groundwater quality management areas will precede the meeting at 5.

Tigers disarm Rockets, take District Title

The Falls City Tigers are returning to the State Football Playoffs.

The NSAA's seemingly uncontrollable impulse to tinker with the playoff format couldn't prevent FC's return and neither could the Syracuse Rockets, as Falls City Friday went ahead and made the postseason plans with a commanding 25-16 victory at Syracuse.

The 7-1 Tigers left no doubt as to which high school in the Class C1-1 District possesses the best football team. Senior Jack Hartman threw for 196 yards and completed three touchdown passes and also rushed 20 times for 72 yards in leading his team to its signature win of '14. On the other side of the ball, the Tiger defense pushed the heralded Syracuse offensive line aside and limited the Rockets to 53 rushing total rushing yards.

"It's unusual that you get to the second-to-last game of the season and not know what you have in your team," three-year Coach Darin Fritz, whose not once in his coaching career seen a season end on time, told the Lincoln Journal-Star. "We didn't have a close game. I didn't know how we'd respond when we got in a tough, physical game."

Syracuse found some success through the air on the Tiger defense, but the Rocket runners had virtually nowhere to go against a fierce FC run defense. Syracuse gained 53 rushing yards in 48 minutes.

"I like how we responded."

Falls City, after using Hartman's arm and senior Jordy Stoller's hands and feet to lead 12-10 at halftime, responded with its trademark running attack after Syracuse took a 16-12 lead on the opening drive of the third quarter.

The Tigers mashed Syracuse for 57 yards before a 13-yard TD pass from Hartman to Lee Huettner put them ahead for good, 18-16. The next Falls City possession went 54 yards, and this time Hartman scored on a three-yard run just seconds into the final quarter.

Falls City gained 127 rushing yards in the second half after having just 24 before halftime.

"In the second half, we came out and ran the ball. We wanted to be physical," Fritz told the Lincoln J-S. "That's what we're all about."

Hartman's first of three scoring strikes came after he scrambled in the pocket on fourth-and-15, glanced the ball off a Syracuse defender and into Stoller's hands.

The second Hartman-to-Stoller connection more resembled an option and covered 93 yards along the Syracuse sideline.

Syracuse took its opening possession 47 yards and gained a 7-0 lead on QB Tanner Harsin's one-yard sneak. Braxtyn DeGolyer's 24-yard field goal with 5:28 left in the half narrowed the margin to 12-10 and Harsin's 21-yard TD pass to Chris Goble gave the Rockets a 16-12 lead as the second half got underway.

Harsin completed 20 of 35 passes, without an interception, for 273 yards, including 12 receptions by Goble for 172 yards.

The Tigers, barring the biggest upset in the history of Nebraska high school sports, will improve to 8-1 Friday when 1-7 Conestoga comes to Jug Brown Stadium.

The first round of the Class C-1 Playoffs is on Halloween. Falls City is currently right in the middle of the presumed 16-team field. The Tigers' chances of opening on the road are only slightly better than its odds of starting at home.

FCMS Football

The Falls City Tiger Middle School "B" football team fell 26-20 to Savannah at Jug Brown Stadium last Thursday in its final game of a 3-3 campaign.

The Tigers got on the board early in the first half with the help of Simon, Black, Kirkendall, Eickhoff, Crawford, Burns and McCartney running the football behind the blocking of Schutte, Oliver, Findlay, Gilkerson, Ebel, McAfee and Arnold.

"We played a tough, physical game with them, but I think their size eventually wore us down," Coach Nick Kraft said. "I thought the boys played a great football game, and despite losing, I think they learned a lot about how much fight they have."

The Tigers had a punt blocked and would give up two late 4th quarter scores.

The FCMS "A" team previously wrapped up a 3-2 season.

"The coaching staff would like to thank all the players for an incredible season and look forward to watching them in their other upcoming sports seasons," Kraft said.

The Falls City Sacred Heart Irish rebounded from its second loss of the 2014 season with a 74-16 Homecoming victory over Sterling Friday night at Jug Brown Stadium.

In doing so, the 5-2 Irish, surprisingly playing with senior running back Sawyer Kean, to no one's surprise clinched the D2-2 District and punched its ticket to the state playoffs for the ongoing state record 28th year in a row.

Kean, an all-stater who rushed for more than 1,500 yards as a junior, was expected to sit this one out after suffering a deep thigh bruise the previous week at Milligan. Instead, he added 129 rushing yards and three more touchdowns to his sterling resume on limited touches.

The Irish defense picked off three passes, returned two of them for touchdowns, built a 52-0 lead in the first 15 minutes or so and then handed off to the JV. Reggie Johansen returned one interception 45 yards for a score and cousin Zavan Kirkendall took another back 25 yards for paydirt. Senior Austin Malone intercepted his third pass of the season to compliment an offensive performance that included a trio of touchdown passes to Henry

Arnold, Kean and Bailey Witt.

Sacred Heart wraps up the regular season Thursday at Lincoln Parkview Christian. The first round of the playoffs is Oct. 30 and Sacred Heart will almost certainly begin the postseason defense of its 2013 state title on Thomas Field.

Assuming the Irish get a win Thursday in Lincoln - and it's a safe assumption - they'll enter the playoffs as battle-tested as any team in the field. Both its losses this fall came against defending state champs. And it's likely Sacred Heart will get an opportunity to avenge one - Exeter-Milligan, last year's D1 Champs, will more than likely stand opposite the defending D2 Champs as the postseason extends into late November.

Nemaha NRD Election Guide

It's no secret that Election Day is coming up. Though you may not hear campaign messages for most of them, Nemaha Natural Resources District candidates are on your ballot this time around too.

The Nemaha NRD is divided into 20 subdistricts, which are represented by two members elected for four-year terms. Their terms are staggered with one of the two seats up for election every even numbered year. These 20 positions are selected only by the voters within the subdistrict boundaries that they represent. In addition one at-large position is elected from anywhere within the NRD area. To add another wrinkle to this year's election, two more positions are up for two-year terms.

Incumbents who will appear on general election ballots are listed followed by their subdistrict number: J. Duane Sugden, Sterling (2); Doug Iske, Dunbar (3); Daniel Hodges, Julian (4); Lisa Beethe, Elk Creek (6); Don Siske, Table Rock (8); William Niedfeldt, Shubert (9), and Charles Bausch, Adams (At Large). Incumbents Paul Weber, Firth, Mike Gilson, Nebraska City, Scott Kudrna, Auburn, and Bruce Walker, Falls City, in subdistricts 1, 5, 7, and 10, respectively, chose not to run again. The recent death of director John Albrecht, Nebraska City, also left an opening in Subdistrict 4, where he had filed to run again. His name was removed from the ballot.

The only contested race is in the At-Large position where Russel Moss, Burr, is facing incumbent Charles Bausch, Adams, who has been on the board since 2011. In those subdistricts where incumbents chose not to file, new candidates include Timothy B. Loseke, Hickman, in Subdistrict 1, and Daniel Stukenholtz, Brock, in Subdistrict 7;

The two-year terms that are on this election ballot include one position in Subdistrict 4 where Daniel Hodges is the lone candidate and one in Subdistrict 10, where no one has filed. Both of these are shortened terms because a vacancy occurred within the first 17 months of the term, and state law now requires the remaining two years be filled during the next election.

Finally in Subdistricts 4, 5, and 10, there are four-year terms for which no one has filed or is listed on the general election ballot. Therefore, these vacancies must be filled by appointment sometime after January 1, 2015, and will then fall under the two-year term requirement.

More detailed information and descriptions of subdistrict boundaries are available by contacting the Nemaha NRD office in Tecumseh (335-3325) or by checking the website at www.nemahanrd.org

Barton ‘Bart’ E. Chandler

Barton “Bart” Eugene Chandler, 77, of Lincoln, passed away peacefully at home at 4 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 14, 2014 surrounded by loved ones. He was born Sept. 17, 1937 to Raymond Chandler and Gladys Boatman Chandler on a farm near Nemaha.

Bart graduated from Shubert High School in 1955. He traveled all 50 of the United States, parts of Canada, Central America and the Caribbean Islands. He worked hard to care for his wife and family, working at many occupations. Bart relocated to several cities before settling his family in Lincoln in 1976.

It seemed that Bart could drive just about anything. To name a few of his occupations: farming in Nemaha County; logging in Willow, AK; commercial fishing for Salmon off the coast of Alaska; setting dynamite and driving a train for climax mining near Leadville, CO; and over-the-road trucking, retiring from commercial driving in early 2009. Bart had been in failing health for the past several years.

He was preceded in death by parents, Ray and Gladys; brothers, Donald and Edward; grandsons, Trent and Michael.

Bart is survived by his wife of 57 years,

Joyce; his sister, Mynra Georges, of Auburn; children, Cathleen Jenkins (Bruce), of Omaha, Timothy (Jennifer), of Concord, CA, Jackson (Debora) and Douglas (Shanique), all of Lincoln; six grandchildren, Shane, James, Diane and Levi, all of Lincoln, Crystal and Mackenzie, both of Concord, CA; and eight great-grandchildren; many other family and friends.

There will be no formal service, except private service at a later date in Prairie Union Cemetery, in Shubert. Aspen Cremation & Burial Service, of Lincoln, is in charge of arrangements.

Big Red RECRUITING REPORT

By Sean Stevens
(Falls City native and former staff writer for HuskerIllustrated.com and Rivals.com)

New commits for 2016

Nebraska continued their hot start to NEXT year's recruiting class in late September when they added OL John Raridon (6-4/275) of West Des Moines, IA and Bryan Brokop (6-5/280) of New Lenox (Ill.). Both players pledged during their unofficial visits for the Illinois game, bringing NU's 2016 commitment list to three players already.

Raridon, rated by Rivals.com as the No. 3 offensive guard nationally, already had early offers from Iowa, Oklahoma and Wisconsin and was adding schools weekly. An interior lineman, Raridon told HuskerOnline.com that NU might start him out at center, "I think they are really leaning towards center, but I think any interior offensive line position is a possibility, but they're leaning towards center."

Brokop is the No. 18-ranked tackle and a consensus four-star prospect according to 247 Sports Composite Rankings index which consolidates 247 Sports, Rivals, Scout and ESPN's rankings.

It's early, but 247 Sports currently ranks NU's 2016 class at No. 14 nationally.

Attacking Alabama?

Want a sign the Nebraska is trending upwards in today's college football world? Defensive end prospect Christian Bell (6-3/216) of Hoover, Ala. committed to Alabama in late April, however NU assistant coach Charlton Warren had Bell scheduled to make an official visit to Lincoln for the Illinois game. In fact, Bell was so serious that his mother had purchased a plane ticket to accompany her son. Alabama's coaches caught wind of the plan and they let Bell know that if he took the NU visit they may not have a scholarship for him when he returned.

While it's disappointing that Bell didn't visit, the fact that NU is garnering that type of interest from an in-state Alabama commitment is definitely a good sign.

Visitor Reports

WR Stanley Morgan (6-0/185) of New Orleans has offers from around the nation, including most of the SEC, yet he was in Lincoln for the Illinois game with his mother. Also close by was former Husker Tyrone Hughes, who is involved in a volunteer capacity with Morgan's high school program (St. Augustine).

"I loved their straight forward approach," he told Husker Online." They talked about academics first you know so I know this would be a good place for me since I want to be a student first. They really focus on their academics first. I think football is just something to fall back on, so academics is first. I like that."

Morgan has yet to schedule any more official visits, but says he plans to see UCLA and Florida and possibly Clemson. With fellow New Orleans natives like Glenn Irons, Jariah Tolbert and Kendall Bussey in the fold already, NU stands in good position with Morgan.

Also visiting officially for Illinois was linebacker target Dedrick Young (6-1/220) of Peoria, AZ. Young entered the visit with Nebraska in his top six along with Arizona, Arizona State, Michigan State, UCLA and Washington. A key here is that Husker commitment Avery Anderson and Young are tight.

Young visited Washington Sept. 12 but has not set any more trips. He gave his thoughts on the visit to Husker Online.

"What was really impressive ... was how they're so advanced. The technology they use like the chips they put on the players' backs that can read all of this stuff and tell you a bunch of things. They're just really advanced.

"(My favorite part) was just getting to catch up with Avery and just seeing the whole facility and just getting to know all of the coaches."

Word on the street is that Young is a strong lean to NU.

2016 prospect Amani Bledsoe (6-5/265) of Lawrence, KS, attended the Miami game.

"In addition to going there for a game, I went to a practice and I'm very impressed with their program," he told HuskerOnline.com. "The practice I attended was in mid-August and my older brother and my mom came with me."

Bledsoe is the consensus No. 1-ranked player in Kansas for 2016. Along with the in-state schools, Ohio State, Oklahoma and Missouri are also among his early offers. NU has made a good impression and should be in the fight.

More 2016 Targets Emerging

Three additional Rivals top 100 prospects for 2016, DE Josh King (6-6, 230) of Darien, IL, DT Garrett Rand (6-2, 271) from Chandler, AZ, and OL Jauan Williams (6-6, 270) of Washington D.C., all hope to visit Lincoln unofficially this fall.

King is Rivals' No. 1 player in Illinois for 2016 and counts offers from Alabama, Florida, Ohio State and Oregon among his list. During the Friday night of their trip to Chicago for the Northwestern game, NU's coaching staff had an opportunity to watch King's team play. Unfortunately King was sitting out with a minor injury. He recently told HuskerOnline.com that Notre Dame, Michigan and Michigan State were his top three schools, but "I'm not making any quick judgments on (Nebraska)."

Rand is No. 2 in Arizona. The home-state schools, along with Illinois and NU have offered thus far, but he's heavily interested in Stanford and Nebraska. Rand is another legacy, as his father Scott played football and wrestled for the Huskers in the mid-80's. Rand doesn't anticipate an early commitment, preferring to wait until his senior year to make his decision. Stanford leads, but they haven't offered and NU is gaining momentum with him.

Williams is No. 2 in DC and holds over 20 offers already, including Alabama, Florida State, Ohio State and Oklahoma. He's attended a game at Maryland and will return for their matchup with Ohio State in October. He will also see Notre Dame and Penn State this fall.

Nebraska also continues to pursue OL Matt Farniok (6-5/308) of Sioux Falls, SD. During the bye week, NU assistant coach Barney Cotton drove to Rapid City to watch Farniok play a road game. That's a drive of more than 500 miles to watch a high school junior. He's definitely a high priority for the Huskers in 2016.

Teachers encouraged to take part in Nebraska Student Vote

Middle and high school teachers are being encouraged to take part in Nebraska Student Vote, sponsored by Secretary of State John Gale. The program encourages students to learn about the voting process, the candidates running for office and allows them to cast their own votes in a mock election.

"In 2012, 250 schools took part involving more than 50,000 students," said Gale. "We hope that students, by the time they are ready to graduate from high school, have had the opportunity to practice voting at least three times through Nebraska Student Vote."

Students will vote for governor, U.S. Senate and U.S. House of Representatives in the mock election.

Enrollment in the program is done online through the Secretary of State's website at www.student-vote.ne.gov/

Teachers need only submit their classroom information. They have access to biographical information from each of the candidates and additional materials designed to help students prepare for the mock election which takes place Oct. 27-30.

"We asked the candidates to submit their answers to a series of questions including their positions on immigration, terrorism, the Affordable Care Act and dealing with nations like Syria and the Ukraine," explained Gale. "These are all relevant issues that students are exposed to in schools. What better way to learn what the candidates think, than to hear their responses directly?"

When teachers enroll in Nebraska Student Vote, they will create a password that will give them access to those resources, as well as the ballots for each congressional district. Schools that take part in the mock election will receive a certificate from Secretary Gale.

"Ultimately, we want to encourage students to be lifelong voters and to take an interest in the election process. Those lessons start early in school. Nebraska Student Vote has reached tens of thousands of students over the years."

For additional info, teachers can call 402-471-8408.

Good ministry needs gentleness.
Strong church leaders also can be tender.
The Lord will show when to be stern and when to nurture.
This week in church, hear one apostle's experience with strength through tenderness.

The regular meeting of the Richardson County Board of Commissioners was called to order by Chairman Sickel at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 7, 2014. Roll call was answered by Standerford, Davidson and Sickel. The Invocation was given by Chairman Sickel and the Pledge of Allegiance was led by Vice-Chairman Davidson. Chairman Sickel announced that the open meeting laws have been posted at the entrance to the meeting room.

Motion was made by Davidson to approve the minutes of the Sept. 30, 2014, meeting as read. Motion seconded by Standerford. ROLL CALL VOTE: Standerford-aye, Davidson-aye, Sickel-aye. Motion carried.

Motion was made by Standerford to approve the agenda as posted. Motion seconded by Sickel. ROLL CALL VOTE: Standerford-aye, Davidson-aye, Sickel-aye. Motion carried. The agenda is posted at the Richardson County Courthouse on the First Floor Lobby, the Commissioner's Meeting Room, the Third Floor of the Sheriff's Office and on the Richardson County website www.co.richardson.ne.us

ROAD & BRIDGE DEPT.

Scott Huppert, Highway Supt., updated the Board on the routine maintenance being done on county roads and bridges this week.

Brush complaints were reviewed and three additional complaints were submitted to the Board.

Huppert reported that the Stella SE project has been approved for a bid letting and bids will be accepted and opened by the State of NE Department of Roads on Oct. 23. Acquiring the right-of-way for the Verdon NW bridge project is still in progress.

BRIAN DIXON, EMA DIRECTOR

The Board requested that Brian Dixon, EMA Director meet with them to review procedures and policies. Part of the review was whether or not it was a necessity for the Emergency Management Agency to answer all ambulance calls or fire calls. More discussion will continue on this matter.

Dixon requested that the Emergency Management Agency be designated as the department in charge of all County radio communications and also as the County floodplain contact. The Board requested that a resolution be drafted and included on next week's agenda for this item.

Discussion was also held regarding the need for a building for storage of EMA equipment if the Armory Building is developed into a law enforcement center. Dixon stated that they would require a building with 3-4 vehicle bays and a storage area.

A discussion was also held regarding the status of volunteers for the Emergency Management Agency to be changed to part-time employees of the Emergency Management Agency. More discussion will continue on this item.

Dixon also requested approval to attend a training Maryland in December and February sponsored by the Federal Emergency Management Agency which will include all expenses, including travel to and from, lodging and meals.

The airfare would be reimbursed when receipts are submitted to FEMA. The Board approved this request.

Richardson County EMA has also been notified that a Hazard Mitigation Grant Program preliminary award for the outdoor warning sirens placed in Barada, Shubert and Stella has been issued.

DYLAN HANDLEY

Dylan Handley representing the property owners in which the Barada tower site is located met with the Board along with Doug Sailors, his client, to discuss possible land acquisition for the County to the tower site. It was discussed that the County would also need access to the tower guide wires but that something could be worked out for the property to be farmed by the land-owners. Handley indicated that a solution to this acquisition matter needed to be resolved so that his client could continue with a quiet title action that they have filed in District Court.

Handley suggested that the County would probably need approximately two acres and that his clients would offer for sale to Richardson County for a total of $15,000. Handley also indicated that his client would want an easement from the County to cross any access drive that the County would maintain to this tower property.

County Attorney Doug Merz recommended that a surveyor be contacted to set a boundary with a representative from the County and Mr. Sailors present at that time.

After the boundary has been established further discussion will continue to complete this matter.

Here's what one Nebraska newspaper had to say ...

OPINION:

Don't get caught up in Party politics when it comes time to vote this year

Nebraskans will have a choice for Governor this November between Democrat Chuck Hassebrook and Republican Pete Ricketts. Our biggest fear this election year is that people will vote for the Party and not the man. For anyone living in rural Nebraska, we feel the choice really should be an easy one to make. On one hand, we have Pete Ricketts, the Omaha businessman who made his millions by becoming an executive in his father's business, working his way up the ladder in the company, which has become one of the largest internet stock trading companies in the United States. On the other hand, we have Chuck Hassebrook, a man who has spent most of his life working to help farmers and rural Nebraskans. He's done this both in his role as the former executive director of the Center for Rural Affairs and as an 18-year member of the Nebraska Board of Regents. Hassebrook has shown time and again he cares about the people of this state and he wants to help make life better for them. We haven't seen that out of Ricketts. We did, however, see a very disturbing trend during the Primary election — plenty of big out-of-state Political Action Committee money getting involved in our statewide election. Ricketts will have to go a long way in our book to prove he has just much knowledge of agriculture and just as much desire to see rural Nebraska succeed as Hassebrook does. If the political labels were reversed, we're quite convinced Hassebrook would win the rural vote quite convincingly. We understand that being a Democrat in an extremely Republican state comes with a pretty hefty price tag. We need to remember though folks, this Democrat is running for Governor, not for Congress. In all of our years covering government, we've never seen a Governor that acted as a 'yes' man to Congress or any President. We doubt that would happen with Hassebrook either. So please, dear readers, we urge you: Don't let party politics get in the way of making your decisions this November. Rural Nebraskans need a strong voice to represent them in Lincoln, not someone dabbling in politics or simply looking for a career change.

... and we couldn't agree more!

Voter Information

I appreciate the support that the District has given me for the University of Nebraska Board of Regents. The position of Regents is a very important political seat that dictates millions of dollars of tax money and tuition money from Nebraska.

Two of my objectives as issues are very important to voters of this district. It is important to Nebraska voters since the big spenders and coverup determinations are made by Regents who do not face reelection.

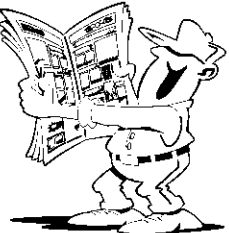

Affordability of education at the University of Nebraska is extremely important since it is your children, grandchildren and friends that face financial issues in attending the University in order to improve themselves for future vocations. It's time to finance student education rather than administrative costs and business interests that have no relationship with student education.

Each of you is entitled to public disclosure where your tax money is involved. The lack of transparency by the Board of Regents can be best described as a major coverup. The criteria for the position of President at the University is not being met when a Governor places pressures on his appointees to be given a cushy $600,000 or more position.

It's your tax money. Ask your candidates where they stand on those issues.

to see if his comrades had followed him, he trudged up the pass, in knee-deep snow, despite the fact that the enemy was waiting with guns that rained down on Martinez and his fellow troops. On both sides of the pass, more enemy battalions hid behind the rugged terrain of rocky cliffs. They fired rifles and launched grenades of death.

Still, Martinez forged on—up the path to a fiery hell. The snow crunched beneath his boots. Bullets ricocheted off the rocks with sharp pings that echoed through the hills. Grenades exploded all around him, severing several of his buddies’ bodies from their souls. And still, like a superhero with a protective shield, Martinez marched on. He came upon a nest of five Japanese soldiers who were shooting at his friends, and it just plain hacked him off. With Rambo precision, he took every one of them out. Invigorated, he turned around and shouted at his fellow men to get up and follow. Each arose from his snowy foxhole, and marched toward his voice.

Their determination just infuriated the Japanese! Mad as hell, they opened fire, killing several appendages of the U.S. Army. Martinez and his men ran for cover, digging foxholes in the snow and quickly building forts of imaginary protection. The Japanese launched grenades then, snuffing out the breath of the battalion’s lungs. But the enemy couldn’t touch its heart and soul. Alone, Martinez rose up again. He scaled the pass like a rock climber, gasping for air as he flung his rifle over his shoulder, and hauled his backpack up the mountain. Enraged, he found another battalion, stood and faced them like a man possessed, and obliterated the lot.

Then, he turned and climbed toward the Japanese stronghold—the crest of the mountain pass. The enemy, by now, was wracked with vengeance—to the point of indiscretion. Every Japanese soldier abandoned his position, and trained his gun on a single target—Private Martinez.

As Martinez took all fire, and his body was riddled with bullets, the men who owed him their lives stood up and validated his. They gunned down the enemy and took the pass, claiming Attu Island for the Allies, and eventually taking the entire stronghold.

Martinez died that day, but his battalion made sure that his death had not been in vein. He didn’t get to come home from the war. He didn’t get to live the life of his hopes and dreams. But because of his valor, patriotism, and love for his fellow man, many of his buddies did. Because of heroes like Private Joe Martinez, you and I do. And we must never forget.

We must honor his life and his death by treating each other like soldiers fighting the same enemy—like appendages of the same body, rather than lone souls. Then, the deaths of American heroes like Martinez will not have been in vein.

We must never forget.

Gallico’s article about Martinez, and the accompanying original painting by John Falter, will be on display in the Stalder Gallery of the Falls City Library and Arts Center from November 11th through December 31st. Six other Falter paintings will also hang, in a show titled, “Heroes.”

The show opens on Veterans Day, Tuesday, November 11th. Renowned author and speaker Dr. Adrian Lewis, will give a gallery talk at 7 p.m. The gallery opens at 6 p.m. for viewing.

The show and gallery talk are sponsored by the Richardson County Arts and Humanities Council, with support from the Richardson County Visitors Committee. The event is free and open to the public. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

The Falls City High cross-country teams traveled to Wildwood Lake last Thursday for the C-1 District Meet, and sent two runners to this week’s state competition in Kearney.

The girls finished fifth overall and were led by two-time state qualifier Lainey Larsen who finished runner-up in the district.

“This is Lainey’s second straight trip to Kearney,” FC Coach Cody Hawley said. “She ran an excellent race.”

The girls’ team came just four-points short of being a qualifying team at State.

Kyle Leafy led the Tiger boys to a 7th place team finish (18:18) and he, too, earned a trip to state, finishing third overall.

“He had an excellent kick at the finish to hold off a Neumann runner,” Hawley said. “The boys had a tough draw in this district and hoped to finish a couple team spots higher. I expect to see our district finish quite well at the State Meet.”

Larsen and Leafy run at the Kearney Country Club this Friday.

The Tiger boys and girls cross country teams each lose one runner to graduation in Brandon Gibson and Krystal Samqua, respectively.

“The kids have seen what it takes to get to the next level,” Hawley said. “Our expectations continue to grow and we hope to come back with another year of experience and compete at the highest level and get teams qualified for the state meet.”

Other individual performances for the Tiger boys at Districts: Gibson, 22nd, 19:26; Brody Smith, 28th, 19:44; Anthony Baker, 35th, 20:19; Brett Black, 39th, 20:47; Christian Bennett, 58th, 23:24.

FCSH also swept Johnson-Brock in two that evening and Thursday captured a sixth consecutive victory with a 3-1 win at Pawnee City. Sacred Heart, though, lost 24-26, 20-25 to Friend last night in the Pioneer Conference Tournament in Johnson. The team is 17-8 and wraps up the regular season on Tuesday, Oct. 28, hosting NC Lourdes and Sterling in a triangular at Prichard Auditorium.
