It might be a bit of a stretch, but not much of one. Mitch Glaeser inspired more than 1,600 people to write letters, and now, drivers are crossing the new Missouri River Bridge at Rulo without worrying about close calls. No sweat.

Call Mitch a bridge-builder. Call this the bridge that “Mitch built.” The moniker applies to a guy who has led an effort to revitalize this community. He has brought an aging hotel back to life. He has embraced a community that was emerging, but not quite there. Falls City and Richardson County needed a catalyst, and Mitch Glaeser, of Gainesville, FL (and Falls City, NE) was the guy.

On Sunday at Rulo, Glaeser and many others — up to 600 or more — were taking in the pleasant afternoon sun as the new span over the river at Rulo opened — not long after Glaeser called for a letter-writing campaign to get the job done. He followed up, as well, leading officials from Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri to Washington, D.C., to argue the case. That argument was a strong one. The narrow, aging and dangerous old Highway 159 Bridge was way, way past its time. Southeast Nebraska, Northwest Missouri and Northeast Kansas were in need of a safer passage.

So now it is done. Glaeser called it the “people’s bridge.” And that’s an accurate account, given that all those letters were written after his brief talk at a Customer Appreciation Banquet in Falls City in November of 2007. Glaeser is a man of vision and he saw, after a few trips over the old Rulo Bridge, that transport and commerce amongst Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska required a drastic update.

In remarks at Sunday’s program — held on the Nebraska side of the new bridge — Glaeser acknowledged that “so many” needed a thank you, including Gov. Dave Heineman, Attorney Richard Halbert (a behind the

Coronation Wednesday, Sept. 11

kicks off County Fair in Humboldt

The Coronation Program at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 11, in the Humboldt Square will launch the three-day 2013 Richardson County Fair at Humboldt.

The program’s theme is “Garden of Dreams.”

The identities of the king and queen are secret until the coronation program. The king is selected by the Humboldt Chamber of Commerce and the queen is elected by buying public who vote at Humboldt businesses and several other retail stores in the area.

In the Aug. 26 tabulation of votes for queen of the Richardson County Fair at Humboldt Casey McNealy and Haley Workman continued their close race. Casey had 56,849,539 votes and Haley 54,455,000.

They were followed by: Lindsay Harlow, 48,053,531; Kasey Kappel, 10,483,916; Rachel Parrish, 8,927,716; Reba Burgett, 7,426,150; Becky Blecha, 6,001,818; Carissa Carlin, 5,163,090; Miranda Huettner, 3,365,433; Amanda Antholz, 2,845,732.

The king and queen will be crowned by State Sen. Dan Watermeier.

During the always-colorful program Humboldt’s “Woman of the Year” will be revealed.

Parades will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings at 11 a.m. and will feature area high school bands, floats and other entries.

Free acts will be held at 2 and 8 p.m. on all three days of the Fair and will include “Cross

Bob Ferguson, a Missouri Pacific Railroad employee for 43 years, who made a presentation of “Falls City Railroading” at the annual membership meeting of the Richardson County Historical Society Aug 24, has pursued an vocation of railroad history and especially Missouri Pacific history.

Ferguson, who began his long railroad career in 1949 as a Missouri Pacific call boy, retired in 1992, as did the railroad’s local existence. In his presentation he traced railroad history in Falls City from its early days. Excerpts from his talk follow:

“The first inkling of Falls City’s reputation as a ‘railroad town,’” he said, “began 12 years after Falls City became Falls City on June 7, 1869, when an election was held in Richardson County to vote for $250,000 in bonds at 8 percent to aid in construction of a railroad in Richardson County and Falls City. The vote barely carried, 576 to 570, but no contractors were interested.”

The speaker referred to several “paper railroads,” which never materialized, one of which involved a bond issue of $100,000 which was defeated.

However, a $60,000 bond issue was defeated. In 1872 the Midland Pacific Railway was formed and this time Falls Cityans voted $70,000 and Muddy

‘Thinking about health’

Another delay in implementing ACA affects your pocketbook

“Thinking About Health,” is part of the Nebraska Press Association’s partnership with Rural Health News Service, which will provide Nebraskans with unbiased health-related information, designed to help better understand the health issues facing our communities, state and nation.

By Trudy Lieberman, Rural Health News Services

Even those of us with health insurance have seen our insurance policies pay less in recent years while we pay more to go to the doctor, have an out-patient procedure, or buy prescription drugs. One important provision of the Affordable Care Act aims to address those rising concerns.

What’s happened is a not-so-subtle cost shift to patients from their employers who buy most of the coverage and insurance companies who sell to people who don’t have company-provided insurance. It’s a way employers and insurers can save money and discourage consumers from using more medical services than they really may need. The hope is that fewer people seeking treatment will result in a lower national health care bill.

But this cost-sharing had gotten out of hand with deductibles as large as $15,000 or $20,000 for some individual policies and coinsurance as high as 30 or 50 percent for some services. Coinsurance is a percentage of a bill for a medical service, and is often confused with a co-pay, which is a set amount you pay for a service. For example, 50 percent coinsurance for a $150 doctor visit--$75--will be considerably higher than a set co-pay of $25.

Until recently policies with co-pays have been more common. Consumers almost always pay more if a policy calls for coinsurance rather than copayments, a point that’s not well understood.

Because it was becoming hard for many insured families to pay these out-of-pocket expenses, Congress limited them to $6,350 for individuals and $12,700 for families beginning in 2014. (They will increase somewhat each year thereafter.) But in February the Obama administration announced a one-year delay for this provision of the law, saying that insurers and employers needed more time to get their computers up to speed to keep track of medical expenses and pharmaceutical expenses.

The administration said it had to balance the needs of consumers and insurers. So in 2014, the cost of deductibles, coinsurance and co-pays could still continue to rise.

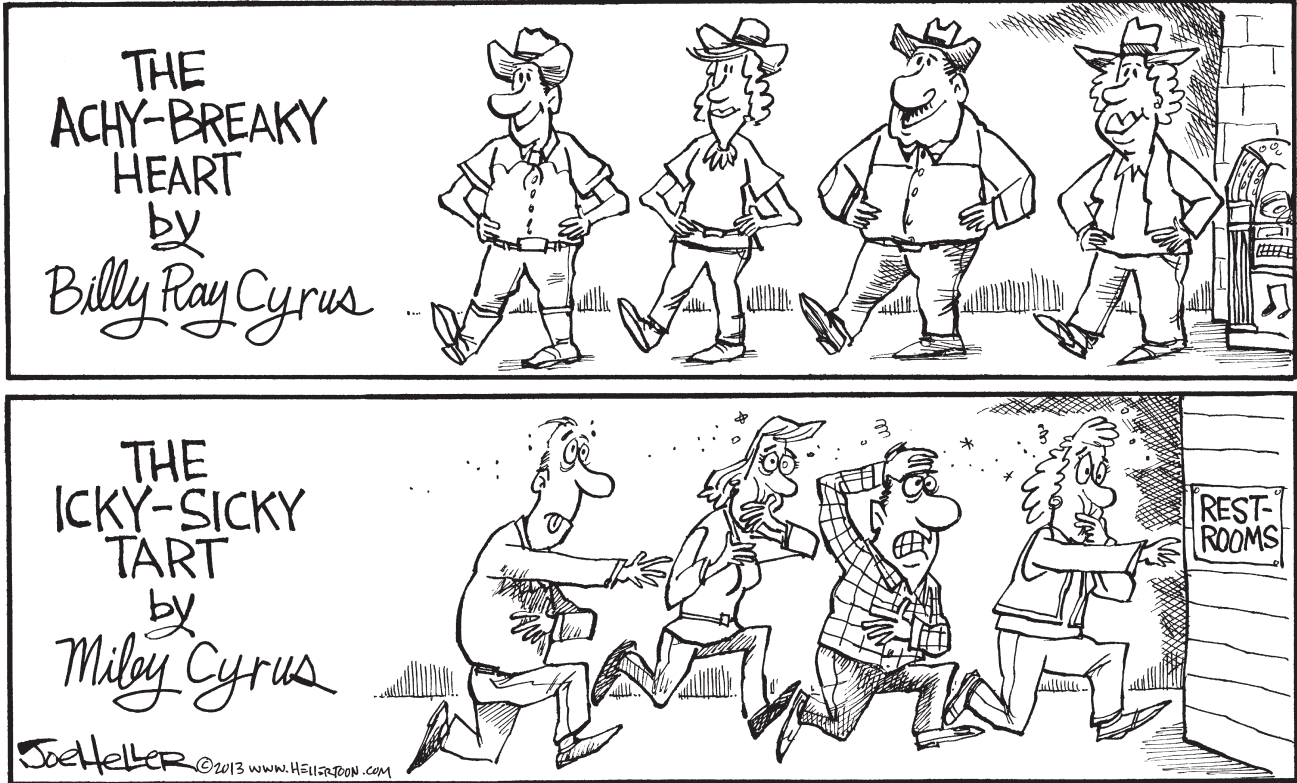

Although the caps on out-of-pocket expenses will help many families when they do take effect, it’s easy to argue that some people will still have trouble paying those amounts. Last week the Kaiser Family Foundation announced that premiums for employer-provided insurance rose four percent last year making the average annual premium $16,351 for a family and $5,884 for individuals. People buying their own coverage face premiums like these as well.

While this year’s increase may seem modest judged against past premium hikes, the cost of health insurance is still outpacing wages, which grew 1.8 percent last year and the general inflation rate which rose 1.1 percent. Even with slower growth in premium increases and with the subsidies that Obamacare provides to help consumers buy health insurance, paying for coverage will continue to be a financial burden for many families.

Here’s an example. Let’s say a family with an income around $47,000, somewhat below the median, could get a subsidy of around $9,000. If they chose a policy that costs about $12,000, they’d have to pay about $3,000 out of pocket for the rest of the premium and another $10,000 or so in deductibles, coinsurance, and co-pays over the course of the year if they get sick. How many families with modest incomes have that kind of money lying around after paying taxes, Social Security contributions and general living expenses?

Families may be tempted to buy the cheapest policies to keep the premiums and their up-front costs as low as possible. But that strategy comes with a big trade-off. Policies with low premiums generally have high deductibles and coinsurance. It’s tricky to decide whether you want low premiums hoping that you won’t get sick and have to spend a lot on coinsurance and co-pays, or whether to opt for high premiums and lower cost-sharing. Most people have no idea what illnesses might strike during the year.

While limits on out-of-pocket expenses will be a big help when they are finally implemented, it remains to be seen whether the president’s promise that the health reform act would make insurance affordable comes to pass.

Crying foul about fairs, veterans, volleyball

Capitol View
By J.L. Schmidt
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

My new and shiny trumps your steeped-in-tradition.

The first Nebraska territorial fair was held in September 1859 in Nebraska City. The first state fair was also held in Nebraska City in 1868. Next came Brownville and then alternately Lincoln and Omaha until the 1901 Nebraska Legislature gave it to Lincoln, permanently – or so everyone thought.

The first veterans’ home in Nebraska was the Soldiers and Sailors Home in Grand Island in 1887. Based on a number of promises, everyone thought the Grand Island home would be the flagship forever.

The Nebraska School Activities Association moved the state high school volleyball tournament to Grand Island in 2010, based mostly on the fact that Grand Island offered the newer and larger Heartland Events Center for the games. That site trumped Lincoln’s Pershing Center (auditorium).

In 2008, the University of Nebraska revealed plans to build the Nebraska Innovation Campus on land next to the Bob Devaney Sports Center. The only problem, the Nebraska State Fair and a handful of historically significant buildings were in the way. The University helped convince lawmakers that a new and shiny set of buildings would attract entrepreneurs to the campus and allow the university to make great strides in research. The Legislature voted to move the fair to Grand Island. Several citizens filed a legal challenge that was ultimately rejected by a lower court and then the Nebraska Supreme Court. A petition drive for a referendum to reverse the action also failed.

Score two for Grand Island. The State Fair AND the state volleyball tournament. The state allocated $42 million to construct new facilities in Grand Island at the legendary Fonner Park and 109 years of Lincoln tradition was little more than a memory. Construction of seven new buildings was completed and the 2010 Nebraska State Fair opened to rave reviews in the new venue. By all accounts, the first state volleyball event outside of Lincoln in 18 years was also a success. Meanwhile back in Lincoln, neither the NSAA Board nor the Lincoln City Council donned orange t-shirts and whined about Grand Island’s victories. They didn’t show up at the opening of either new event in Grand Island wearing said shirts to let the public see they were eating sour grapes. Grand Island had won fair-and-square and life went on for the citizens of Nebraska.

The edge came off the euphoria in Hall County a couple years ago when a long-running feud among Nebraska veterans’ leaders came to a boil and likely caused the state to look at alternative locations for a new veterans’ home to replace the aging facility in Grand Island. The lid blew off in July when Gov. Dave Heineman announced that he had reviewed reports from a special study team and picked Kearney as the new location of the state’s flagship veterans’ home. As if that wasn’t enough, Grand Island’s other tri-city rival, Hastings, came in second place behind Kearney. Grand Island was third.

Pointing to the home’s 126-year history in Grand Island, only 17 years longer than the state fair had been in Lincoln, State Senator Mike Gloor of Grand Island said, “You’re basically taking part of the culture of the community and yanking it out.”

So it was that Grand Island city leaders and about 100 others donned orange shirts and heckled the governor during opening remarks of this year’s State Fair in their city. Some charged that there were secret meetings with Kearney. Kearney Mayor Stan Clouse said he didn’t know that the Grand Island home was slated to be replaced until he heard from the disgruntled veterans groups. He said the city then inquired as to whether the state would even consider other locations and was told that state officials hadn’t thought much about seeking proposals for the 225-bed home and 350 jobs. Spokesmen for both Heineman’s office and the state Department of Health and Human Services said that’s when they made a decision to open the process to other central Nebraska communities. Grand Island, Kearney, Hastings and North Platte submitted proposals in June.

In July, a motion to move the state volleyball tournament was settled in two sets. A motion to keep it in Grand Island for three more years failed. A motion to move it back to Lincoln for three years passed unanimously.

Lincoln’s bid included the new and shiny Pinnacle Bank Arena and the renovated Bob Devaney Sports Center, which is now the home of the Nebraska volleyball team. Grand Island made a similar offer for free venues. In the end, it came down to the venue and it appears that Lincoln’s new and shiny won the day.

It’s hard to say what will happen when the new wears off the State Fair in Grand Island. But it might be a good time to be an orange t-shirt vendor.

CMC float prize of ‘13 Cobblestone

“A Community on the Rise” was the theme for this year’s Cobblestone Festival and our community definitely rose to the occasion for the parade. From the marching bands and amazing floats, to the weather and the record crowd, everything just fell into place.

“We couldn’t have asked for better weather,” said veteran parade director Lori Gottula. “I heard the crowd downtown was the biggest it’s ever been, and I’m sure the weather played a big part in that. It was beautiful.”

“It’s hard to determine what makes the Cobblestone parade such a big draw because the bands, Shriners, floats, businesses, organizations, horses and everything in between all play a part,” Gottula said. “But I would stack our floats up against any in any parade in any town of this size. People just go all out when it comes to decorating their floats.”

The winner of the float contest was the Community Medical Center of Falls City. It was decorated with three large hot air balloons that had puffy clouds all around. The float stood out above the rest for judges Tootie Ebel and Lorna Simon, who deemed it the “Best in Show.”

In the business/commercial category, perennial contender SNC took home the top award.

“In addition to everyone who entered, I would like to thank the people who helped with the parade,” Gottula said. “Without them, this would not be possible.”

Those who helped this year were Rita Seid, June Bowers, Linda Jones, Lynne Davis, Renee Kopf, Michelle Kreifels, Tony Brunette, Ron Jordening, Sue Harmon and Randy Gottula.

Have you always wondered what the vase that your great aunt gave you is worth? Here’s your chance to find out. Tom Bassett has 30 years experience as an antique and coin appraiser. He is a member of the New England Appraisers Association. He also does appraisals for many banks and law firms in addition to teaching classes on “Bargain Hunting for Antiques” and “Coin Collecting 101” at Southeast Community College in Lincoln.

Come join us for an entertaining and informative time of appraisals, tips on buying/selling antiques and what’s “hot” and what’s “not” in today’s collecting world.
Bring up to 3 items for Tom to appraise (if item is large, bring a photo). The cost of the appraisal will be $5 each.

Bring your items to the Humboldt auditorium at the Richardson County Fair from 9-1 Thurs. Sept. 12. The real fun begins at 1 P.M.. This event is sponsored by the Quad County Museum and Friends of the Auditorium. All proceeds will be split between the 2 groups.

Admission is free but the groups hope you will enjoy the show so much you will want to put a donation in the pot.

It is important to remember this beautiful historic building is under restoration and being built to code in 1940 it is not yet handicap accessible and there is not a public restroom.

Bergen-Litzenberger married June 1

Nathaniel (Nate) Forrest Bergen, of Falls City, and Katie Marie Litzenberger, of Lincoln, were united in marriage June 1, 2013 in the Mt. Zion Little Brick Church, 4^{1/2} miles east of Shubert.
It was here that a beautiful wedding ceremony was held and officiated by four pastors. The couple performed a duet of the song, “Between God, A Woman and a Man” before a full church. After a charge to the couple, Nathaniel and Katie led the congregation in a time of worship. During the exchange of rings, a Purity Ceremony was performed. Next, both immediate families encircled the couple for a “Prayer of Unity.” Then came the “kiss” and pronouncement of “Mr. And Mrs. Nathaniel Bergen,” followed by the newlyweds skipping out of the church.
The newlyweds enjoyed riding around Auburn in the back of a 1929 Ford pickup. A warm welcome was awaiting them at Open Air Auditorium. All enjoyed a mouthwatering meal. Pictures and a square dance finished off the enchanting day.
Nate is currently the Store Manager at Orscheln Farm and Home in Falls City. Katie is a Housekeeper at AgJunction in Hiawatha, KS. Katie still enjoys playing piano and has recently moved “Behind the Notes Studio” from Lincoln to Falls City.

‘Falls City Railroading’

from Napier, MO, to the east bank of the Missouri River at Rulo. Ferries moved freight cars across the river towards Falls City. A connection was made with the Atchison and Nebraska Railroad southwest of Rulo and the line continued into Falls City on July 4, 1871.....When the Atchison and Nebraska Railroad assumed ownership of the line it finally moved on into Lincoln.”

Ferguson said that in July 1871 four trains ran from Falls City to Atchison and the round trip fare was $4.

“The railroad bridge at Rulo was opened in October 1887 and eight trains were operated out of Falls City, four going to Missouri and four into Kansas. In 1903 all passenger trains began to run into Missouri. A mixed train carrying both freight and passengers then operated between Falls City and Atchison. Four passenger trains operated through Falls City during the 1950s.”

The speaker continued that because of the movement of loaded coal trains, a new bridge over the Missouri River at Rulo was opened on Dec. 20, 1977.

Concentrating on Missouri Pacific history, Ferguson related that in June 1879 Jay Gould, a New York financier, gained control of the Missouri Pacific. Two years later plans were made to build the Missouri Pacific Railroad from Atchison into Omaha. Work began at Hiawatha in July and contracting crews moved into Falls City in August. The first depot was built at the far west end of 7th Street and it opened in December 1881 for freight business only. A new brick depot was built in 1916 at the south end of Stone Street. The first passenger train through Falls City was in September 1882. By 1906 11 passenger trains were moving through Falls City.

He noted that because of the distance between Kansas City and Omaha a new crew-changing Division Point was established. At first it went to Auburn, then to Falls City, which was a big economic boom for the town.

He cited a major development when in 1909 an agreement was reached between the railroad and the city for a tract of 33 acres in the southeast side of town. The next year work commenced on a new roundhouse of 18 stalls with another six added later. In January 65 men began working out of Falls City. In 1922 a work stoppage against many railroads occurred and the shop workers went on strike. The railroad continued to operate as many of the strikers moved to other shops.

Ferguson emphasized that after the settlement of the strike, business increased for many railroads and in Falls City in 1925 over 2,000 people were receiving the benefits of a paycheck.

Moving along in time, he told his audience that the steam engines began to disappear in 1952, which was a big blow for many of the workers in Falls City. The roundhouse and car repair crews were forced to seek work wherever their seniority would allow.

“On Feb. 22, 1940,” he said, “an exciting new train, the Missouri Pacific Eagle, a diesel electric powered engine, was displayed in Falls City and not quite a month later the Eagle made its first pay trip from St. Louis to Omaha. The first diesel powered freight train arrived in December of 1949.”

The speaker noted that although the freight business was good in this period, the passenger business was on the decline as more people were able to afford cars and highways were being upgraded. Another negative move locally was the consolidation of Division offices and officers and clerical staff were transferred to Atchison or Kansas City in May 1962.

He continued that the Missouri Pacific made several attempts to abolish Eagle runs but the ICC turned them down. The railroad continued its efforts. The local Chamber of Commerce sent representatives to Washington to meet with ICC officers and to St. Louis to meet with the railroad management in an all-out effort to keep the trains running but to no avail. The Eagle’s final run was made in September of 1965.

Ferguson said that in 1986 all telegraphers’ positions were abolished at the Falls City Depot and all handling of train movements were delegated to the operating crew via computer or radio from the train dispatcher in Omaha. On Jan. 10, 1992, the position of station agent was terminated.

Ferguson concluded, “So it ended, 100 years, one month and three days of station activity in Falls City.”

He had two of his model trains on display and after his presentation pointed out interesting features of them.

Historical Society’s annual membership meeting held

The Richardson County Historical Society’s annual membership meeting Saturday, Aug. 24, at the Historical Museum was highlighted by an excellent presentation, “Falls City Railroading,” by Bob Ferguson.

Ferguson’s presentation appears in another story on this page.

The Society’s business meeting was presided over by vice president Richard Meinzer, filling in for retiring president Aaron Wing. Meinzer thanked Wing and retiring board members Max Roland, Jenny Margrave and Shirley Gormley for their service. He introduced new board members Nelle Pfister and June Bowers. Secretary Gary Nelson read the minutes of the 2012 annual meeting.

Treasurer Jo Ann Auxier, who also is the Museum curator, presented a favorable financial report with a special thanks to Ann Meinzer, whose catering of meals served at the Museum means additional income for the Society.

Mrs. Auxier also gave a brief report of Society activities the past year and noted that the membership now totals 332, including both lifetime and annual members. She said that artifacts are being brought to the Museum almost daily.

She lauded the efforts of three Boy Scouts who have been doing renovation work at the historical Iron Monument, southeast of Rulo, as their Eagle Badge project. The Scouts include Austin Schaible, Tapsee Ogden and Boone Berry. Society members have been assisting upon occasion.

Meinzer reported on repair work at the Museum and noted that sensitive security cameras have been installed in the Museum. They are activated when the front door is opened and when there is movement within the Museum, he said.

Ramona Godemann presented the slate of Society officers for the new year: Richard Meinzer, president; John Seeba, vice president; Gary Nelson, secretary, and Jo Ann Auxier, treasurer. They were elected unanimously.

Refreshments were served.

Case of attempted murder bound over to District Court

A 33-year-old Falls City man accused of attempted murder will appear in District Court Sept. 18 for a preliminary hearing.

Desiderio C. Hernandez in July was charged with attempted second-degree murder after allegedly cutting the throat of Damon Gates during an altercation July 14.

According to a probable cause affidavit filed by Falls City Police Officer Charles DiGiacomo, who responded to the call, Hernandez allegedly came up behind Gates, who at the time of the incident was at a house located at 813 Harlan St, grabbed Gates' head and cut his throat with a razor knife. The victim said he then ran to 813 Chase, where Officer DiGiacomo was called. The victim stated that earlier in the evening the defendant struck him in the nose with a fist and broke his nose. Then, two hours later, the defendant returned and cut his throat.

Gates was transported to the Community Medical Center for treatment.

A witness, Tomasina Stevens, who lives at 813 Harlan, gave both verbal and written statements to officers with the FCPD stating verbal and physical altercations had been going

Go visit college

By Governor Dave Heineman
Dear Fellow Nebraskans:

Recently, I joined with leaders of the Nebraska P-16 Initiative and other education leaders to promote the importance of college visits as a way to encourage young Nebraskans to attend college. I chair the P-16 Initiative and my co-chairs are J.B. Milliken, President of the University of Nebraska; State Senator Kate Sullivan, Chair of the Legislature's Education Committee; Liz Koop, President and CEO of EducationQuest Foundation; and Dr. Scott Swisher, Deputy Commissioner of the NE Dept. of Ed.

EducationQuest has shown its support for campus visits by conducting an annual effort called "Go.Visit.College!" which encourages Nebraska's high schools and colleges to work together to coordinate group and individual campus visits. Additionally, EducationQuest awards grants to Nebraska high schools and middle schools to help them conduct campus visits for their students.

College and university visits are a crucial part of the college planning process. Students report that college visits have a significant influence on them as they consider where to go to college. Our message is that visiting a college campus is a vital activity for high school juniors and seniors.

Campus visits provide an opportunity to explore academic programs, talk with students and professors, and tour residence halls, classrooms and other campus facilities. Visits provide an opportunity to experience what a college has to offer and can help students find the right fit for them.

Campus visits are especially important for students who don't think they are a good fit for college, or students whose parents may not have gone to college. Many students report changing their perception once they've actually been to the campus.

Thanks to statewide efforts like Go Visit College, Nebraska is now one of the top 10 states in the nation in the number of high school seniors who continue on to college after graduation. The most recent statistics from the National Center for Education Statistics show that Nebraska is ranked 7th in the nation with 69.5 percent of our public high school graduates going on to college. But we can – and must – do better.

If you're a junior or senior, you should be preparing for ACT and SAT exams and talking with your parents and counselors about the colleges that interest you. You should make plans to visit a college in person. Nebraska is home to an outstanding range of higher educational institutions. Whether you visit as part of a school group or plan an individual tour with family or friends, colleges and universities welcome high school students for visits year round.

College fairs are a great way to get started and identify places of interest. This fall, EducationQuest Foundation will be conducting six college fairs across the state. These include:

The Grand Island Area College Fair is Sunday, Sept. 15 from 1 - 3 p.m. at the Exhibition Building – Fanner Park.

The Omaha Area College Fair is Sunday, Oct. 20 from 1 - 4 p.m. at the University of Nebraska Omaha.

The Lincoln Area College Fair is Sunday, Oct. 20 from 1 - 3 p.m. at SCC in Lincoln.

More information on college planning is available at www.EducationQuest.org

By providing students with opportunities to go visit college, we are preparing them to take the next step in their education. Thank you to the schools that take the initiative by planning campus visits for juniors and seniors. We want every high school and every family to make visiting college a priority this year.

We are charting our family trees...

Sharing Bedtime Stories!

Sharing bedtime stories lets us have adventures together while cozy at home. The stories below tell about different kinds of families. Match each story to its title:

This book is about:

- a nanny with magical ways to help the Banks family
- growing up in a family with many children
- a Grandpa's adventures with his little brother
- active elephant kids who never let Mom have quiet time

Every family has its favorite tale. It's often the one that starts with:

"Have I ever told you about the time...?"

I think every family has a story about a giant one of these getting away!

To Know God

What do we want most for people we care about?
We wish for them good things: health, prosperity, inner peace, personal fulfillment.
Best of all might be that they experience the fullness of God's grace.
In church this week, learn more about God's grace.
Philom 1:1-21

Grace to you.

scenes factor) and Lt. Gov. Lavon Heidemann, former Mayor Rod Vandenberg, and many others. “I thank all who made this happen,” said Glaeser.

Glaeser made special mention of Renee Bauer, who served as Falls City’s economic developer, and “introduced me to the great people of Falls City.” Vandenberg, Glaeser, said, provided “great leadership” in his role as Falls City Mayor. Vandenberg is now the District 1 Nebraska Highway Commissioner. He served as co-master of ceremonies Sunday afternoon.

Glaeser described the bridge project as “collaborative,” involving representatives from the federal, state and local arenas. He said the new bridge would “serve generations” and contribute, significantly, to economic development. If each of the 1,600 letters written were translated into the construction of the $27.7 million bridge, they would be worth $18,000 apiece, Glaeser noted.

Glaeser said the bridge construction will “help us get” to economic development goals and toward a strong local economy. He described the bridge effort as an example of “combined power” (Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri) and said this marks an “historic time” when everyone worked together on a common goal.

Charlie Radatz, co-chairman of the Tri-State Corridor Alliance, expressed plenty of thank yous, especially to the citizens of Rulo, who helped so much to contribute to a very special day. He — and others — thanked Falls City EDGE for its assistance with the program. “I have had the pleasure along with Beth Sickel to serve as co-chair of this Alliance,” said Radatz. “I would like to publicly thank each and every one of its members for the work they have done.” He said his response to a news reporter’s question about why this project succeeded was fairly simple: “Leadership, the leadership talents of those involved.”

In his role, Vandenberg introduced a number of officials, including Steve Roberts from Brown County, KS. Vandenberg said the “wonderful project . . . will stand proudly for decades.” He introduced Lt. Gov. Lavon Heidemann, who was a crucial contributor to the new bridge project, and served as keynote speaker.

“To name the No. 1 catalyst of this project, let there be no question, his name is Mitch Glaeser,” said Vandenberg. “And, my friends, it hasn’t stopped there because Mitch Glaeser has continued to do wonderful things for our Falls City community! Frankly, his efforts and support just never end!”

HTRS held to 83 yards in season opener

By Jim Langan

Nothing was working Friday night in Humboldt for the Titans, who fell behind Omaha Brownell-Talbot 32-0 after the first quarter en route to a 58-7 season-opening loss.

Brownell-Talbot scored on their first four possessions and added an interception return for a touchdown to put the Titans away early. HTRS turned it over twice in the ball game and both resulted in scores for the senior heavy Raiders.

Inefficiency kept the new look, spread offense from taking flight. The Titans carried 24 times for 54 yards and completed 4-for-24 pass attempts for only 29 yards.

Jacob Phelps was the lone bright spot offensively for the Titans. The junior tailback carried seven times for 47 yards (6.7 ypc).

Starting tailback Ben Railsback only carried the ball five times and netted zero yards for his efforts. Railsback did score the only Titan touchdown when he punched it in late in the second quarter.

OB-T did all of their damage on the ground, as they piled up 330 yards on 37 carries. The Raiders threw the ball only once.

HTRS quarterback Schuyler Kuhlmann had a rough go it as well. Kuhlmann, a junior and second year starter, faced pressure constantly. The southpaw completed 4-of-17 passes for 29 yards and one interception.

Eli Herr caught two passes for 14 yards, while Nolan Schaffer finished with one catch for 15 yards for the Titans.

Defensively, the Titans were led by Kuhlmann and sophomore Kolton Taiclet, who had 13 and nine tackles, respectively.

The loss marked the Titans tenth in a row dating back to their playoff loss to Elmwood-Murdock in October of 2011.

HTRS will look to end their current 10-game losing streak at home Friday night against Yutan (0-1).

An interesting headline I read after digesting Saturday night's squeaker victory over 30-point underdogs Wyoming and prior to putting my fingers to home row on this column:

Bo Pelini has joined 50-win club at Nebraska

That about sums up the good coming from the 37-34 nail biter against a team that, on paper, was supposed to be run out of the newly expanded, 91,000-plus capacity Memorial Stadium.

Wyoming piled up 603 yards and 35 first downs against a Husker defense wet behind the ears. Brett Smith, a three-year starter for Wyoming, connected on 29-of-43 pass attempts and was methodical on first and second down in picking apart a Husker secondary allegedly loaded with talent. The junior from Salem, OR, more than doubled his performance from a year ago versus the Huskers when he threw for 166 yards and two touchdowns in a 38-14 loss in Laramie last September.

Now without getting too apocalyptic, remember Husker fans, this is the first game and I have reason to believe that the Wyoming Cowboys are a threat to challenge for the Mountain West Conference, should Smith and his talented receiving corps stay healthy.

That being said, Saturday night felt like a reaffirmation of the Pelini's struggle to put a quality defensive football team on the field. It boggled my mind to see our secondary chasing open receivers and rarely in a position to force a take-away. The young defensive front seven had its moments, but too often Smith handed the ball off to his running backs, who found a seem and picked up big chunks of yards.

The big question I kept asking myself and others in the time since the victory was, "Are they again being asked to do to much?" By that I mean are they being over-coached, as opposed to Bo simplifying his schemes for the young athletes he's filled his cupboard with?

There's no question this team is more athletic than 2012, but chasing open receivers and rarely, if ever, "pinning our ears back" up front are tell-tale signs of guys thinking too much.

Pelini again stated he wouldn't change his scheme and said his players will have to evolve and grow up quick to be successful. Fine, that's been his M.O. since day one, but is he really that stubborn to just settle and go down with the ship?

I have to think he isn't.

Bottom line is, there are some quality athletes in that front seven, the likes we haven't seen a few years. Randy Gregory anyone? And I'm convinced that Pelini can turn things around.

Let's hope he does it quickly because UCLA would love nothing more than to repeat their performance from 2012.

FC bats go cold in loss to No. 10 Southern Falls City split a pair of games last week to bring their record to 4-2 on the early season. Last Thursday the Lady Tigers traveled to Maryville, MO, where they put a crushing on the Lady Spoofs, 19-1. FC scored 10 in the top of the first, then added three, three and four over the next three, which resulted in the game being called early because of the 10-run rule. Recording two hits each for FC were Brittany Ritter, Kirstyn Buchholz, Brooke Scheitel, Bailey Armbruster, Sydney Armbruster and Morgan Bletscher. Buchholz, Scheitel and Bletscher were also responsible for two RBIs each. Ritter, Buchholz, Scheitel and Sydney Armbruster crossed the plate three times a piece, while Bletscher, Allyson Scholl and Bailey Armbruster each scored twice.

Buchholz picked up the victory on the mound for FC. She allowed just four hits and one earned, while striking out six in four innings.

Friday night the Lady Tigers hosted Class C No. 10 ranked Wymore Southern to town for the home opener.

Southern's Ellie Edmond was electric on the mound, as she allowed only two FC hits in picking up her second victory of the season. Edmond struck out nine and walked one in her seven innings of work.

Southern jumped out front with one run in the first, then added one in the third and fourth innings, one in the sixth and then two in the top of the seventh.

FC did their damage in the fourth and sixth innings where they scored one run in each of the frames.

Buchholz and Bailey Armbruster mustered the only FC

FC Ace Kirstyn Buchholz has pitched all 33 innings thus far for the Lady Tigers. Buchholz, seen here in the season opener against Nebraska City, has a 3.39 earned run average with 35 strikeouts.

hits and Buchholz scored both FC runs. The Lady Tigers will look to get back in the winning circle Thursday when they travel to Auburn for a triangular with Freeman.

FC freshman Morgan Bletscher is one of two freshmen starting for the 4-2 Lady Tiger softball team. Bletscher has hit safely in five of the six games and is currently batting .400 (8-of-20).

Thank you Betty for the years you gave being mom's caregiver, and thank you Ruth for filling in as mom's caregiver to give Betty some relief. Thank you to the Community Health Center Hospital staff for your kind and professional care of mom during her lengthy illness. Thank you Dr. Borg for the years of overseeing mom's care and treatment, and for always being available to us when we needed your advice and consultation. Thanks to the In-Home Health Care staff for always being there for us to help allow mom to remain in her home the past 3 years, and for In-Home Hospice staff for being there for mom and us at the end. Thank you Falls City Care Center staff for the wonderful care given to mom during the last 3 months when she was unable to remain in her home any longer, and for accepting her as one of your residents and your professional management of her complex condition. She enjoyed living in your facility where she was surrounded by her friends. Thank you also to all our family and friends who visited mom during her time of illness. Those visits brought her more joy than you could ever know. May God bless you, each and every one.

The Family of Darleen Honea 35

"Thank You" just doesn't seem to be enough. Recently, my 29 yr. old nephew died unexpectedly after a short hospital stay. Michael Bennett, Lincoln, was my sister, Rita's son. You don't know how much we appreciated all the calls, cards, plants, flowers, food, texts, emails, etc.....and the hugs! There were a lot of people..... individuals, churches, friends, neighbors.... so many people praying for him and for my family. And not a one of them even knew him. Some of you might not even know me ! Only in a small town; one of the blessings of living in Falls City. We can't thank you enough for your caring and concern. Thanks again & God Bless You All.

Shubert ALA #222

Shubert’s ALA Unit #222, met at the Shubert library on Aug. 13. President Tana Brown called the meeting to order. Linda Patchen gave the opening prayer from the ALA magazine. Everyone saluted the flag, sang God Bless America, and repeated the ALA preamble. The meeting was declared convened. Six members answered roll call.

Secretary Elizabeth Ketner read the minutes of the July 9, 2013 meeting. They were approved as read. She reported no luck in obtaining Travis Jorm’s address. Dona Hall said she knew of the address and would see that Mrs. Ketner would have it.

Lana Willman gave the treasurer’s report. Eleanor Last moved to accept the report, seconded by Mrs Ketner. The motion carried. (And so far the bakeless bake sale has taken in $315.)

There will be a leadership school in Palisade (near McCook) on Sept. 21.

The Nebraska Department president is now JoAnn Ward. Her theme is “Soaring in Service,” and she would like more outreach to newer veterans, especially those with PTSD.

Everyone learned that units are classified as to number of members. Unit 222 is in Class 2.

ABC books are being re-issued. All unit presidents received a free one, all others cost $10.

Unit 222 will work with three pods. Veterans Military Support includes poppies, legislative, national security, and VA&R. Youth Development includes Girls State, Junior activities, and Children and Youth. Family Support includes community service, Americanism, and education. All other committees are under Administrative.

Mrs. Ketner and Mrs. Last said they are assisting Ella Mae Romine of the Falls City unit to re-charge that unit. Mrs. Ketner’s ABC book is on loan to Mrs. Romine to help her.

Bills were presented in the amounts of $35.96 for flags, and $10. for school supplies. Mrs. Willman moved to allow the bills, seconded by Ms. Patchen.

The unit will be doing tray favors for Christmas 2013, and Veterans Day 2014. Margaret Rowell is making the Christmas favors. Ms. Hall suggested that the unit make tray favors for local nursing homes. A suggestion was also made that the unit send birthday cards for veterans.

Ms. Hall and Ms. Patchen are going to check into the possibility of free grave flags for veterans.

Mrs. Ketner mentioned that Honor Flights may be resumed, this time for Korean War veterans. She will check at the veterans’ service office for further information.

The recent Shubert4Kidz day was discussed. Mrs. Last said she had made up several games for the children and they were enjoyed.

An Oct. 19 fundraiser was mentioned. Mrs. Brown will contact last year’s craft fair vendors. The unit will have a bake sale in conjunction with the fair. The Mennonites from Nemaha could have a farmer’s market stand. Ms. Hall will put an article in the newspapers.

Ms. Patchen suggested that the unit sponsor a Christmas tour of homes that would end at the Brick Church.

The next meeting will be Sept. 10 at the Shubert library.

The closing prayer was read by Ms. Patchen from the ALA magazine.

Late September best for over-seeding

With the weather getting colder, September is a good time to start preparing lawns for the changing season, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension educator said.

“The weather seems to cooperate so well,” said UNL extension educator John Fech of this time of year.

Fech said homeowners need to think of the individual needs of their lawns.

“Evaluate what your current status is,” Fech said. “Evaluate what the highest priority is in terms of the biggest need.”

If the homeowner determines that his or her biggest need is the lawn, late August through the middle of September is a good time to over-seed, Fech said.

If over half of the homeowner’s lawn is undesirable weeds and grasses, treat the lawn with Roundup. This will kill the lawn so that it can be replanted. Then rake it until there is bare soil showing; using a power-rake is best, Fech said.

Owners should be careful when applying Roundup, Fech said.

“Be aware of all the plants around you that could be sprayed,” Fech said.

Fech suggests using a barrier such as a plastic sheet between desirable plants and undesirable grasses during spraying. Adjusting the nozzle on the tank sprayer to allow for bigger droplets will also help keep the Roundup contained to one area.

Wind speed is also an important factor. Wind speeds should be 5 mph or less in order to ensure safe spraying, Fech said.

Fech recommends two types of grass for over-seeding; Kentucky bluegrass and turf-type tall fescue. If the lawn is in mostly shade, turf-type tall fescue would work best. At least 3-4 hours of sunlight are required for turf type tall fescue to perform well. If the lawn is in a sunny location, either type can be planted.

“If your lawn is not in bad shape, just a little thin, simply skip the first step of applying Roundup,” Fech said.

Fech said that even if homeowners decide not to apply Roundup, they still need to power rake their yard.

“Seed-to-soil contact is really important,” Fech said. “Keep seed moist until it germinates.”

Fech said that people should be careful when using a mixture of seeds not to stop watering after only one type of seed germinates.

“Some seed naturally germinates faster than others,” Fech said. “Wait until all the grasses have germinated to reduce the frequency of watering.”

Other tips include:

- Make sure to turn off and drain all automatic sprinkler systems by Halloween to prevent pipes from freezing. You may wish to hire a sprinkler company to help with this procedure.
- When applying nitrogen fertilizers, carefully follow the label and directions in regards to how much fertilizer to add. When calculating how much fertilizer to put on the lawn, first consider the desired level of maintenance. For low maintenance lawns, apply 1-2 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet per year. Medium and high maintenance turfs should receive 2-3 pounds and 3-4 pounds per 1,000 square feet respectively. This amount should be spread out over the year, typically applied in late April around Arbor Day, early June around Memorial Day, early September around Labor Day and early November around Halloween. Next, divide the amount desired expressed as a percentage by the concentration of fertilizer product to determine how much to spread over 1,000 square feet of the lawn. Then, measure the lawn area to be fertilized by marking off roughly rectangular areas and multiplying the length and the width of each.

For more information on lawn fertilizers and how to reduce water pollution from fertilizers, visit water.unl.edu.

More than 70,000 attend fair Sunday

The Nebraska State Fair has set a new single day attendance record since moving to Grand Island with a total of 71,355 fairgoers on Sunday, Sept.1, 2013.

“This single day attendance record surpassed our previous record of 67,929 on the same Sunday in 2011,” according to State Fair Executive Director Joseph McDermott. “It was only 367 visitors short of the all time State Fair single day attendance record of 71,627 set in 2009—the final year the State Fair was in Lincoln.”

“The heat was certainly an issue for the first 9 days when temperatures were much higher than weeks previous to the start of the fair, McDermott said. “Happily, our total attendance came in at 334,931 which is just 2,056 visitors behind 2012.”

“The one thing we’re not able to control is the weather, but happily we rallied the final two days of the fair when even Labor Day attendance was 3,500 higher than the same day a year ago.”

Each year, the Nebraska State Fair contracts with EventCorp Services to conduct electronic surveys on the fairgrounds to learn what fairgoers are thinking day by day.

While the full electronic survey has not been tabulated, McDermott said, “We do know that 60% of our attendance came from Grand Island and Central Nebraska and 17% came from Lincoln and Omaha. The Lincoln/Omaha numbers are up a percentage point over 2012.”

Kruger said, “We want to thank all our guests and we are hopeful that each of them will continue to visit and tell others what they may be missing, if they haven’t attended. This is truly a family event, and we don’t spare anything to make it better each year.”

Heat hard on cattle, other livestock

A mild, rainy spring has yielded to heat, humidity and lack of moisture, and the state’s livestock have begun to suffer the consequences.

Heat stress is hard on cattle and other livestock, especially when combined with high humidity and low wind speeds; those are precisely the conditions occurring in many areas now. Heat stress can reduce feed intake, weight gain, reproductive efficiency and milk production, while increasing susceptibility to diseases.

Signs of heat stress can include animals bunching, seeking shade, and panting, slobbering or excessive salivation, foaming around the mouth, open mouth breathing, lack of coordination and trembling, said Lindsay Chichester of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension.

If such symptoms are observed, handlers should assume the animal is suffering from too much heat and immediately try to minimize the stress to the animal, especially by reducing handling or movement of the animal. Previous health of individual animals is an important risk factor, as animals with past health problems will be more affected by heat stress than animals with no prior health problems. These animals will generally be the first to exhibit signs of heat stress and be the most severely affected.

As county fair season gets under way, Chichester said, there are several things people showing animals should keep in mind, beginning with the heat index commonly reported by media outlets.

If the heat index is above 100 degrees, animals can tolerate it if shade is available and/or wind speed is at least 10 miles per hour, so show animals should be provided shade and/or moving air via fans.

If the index gets above 110 degrees, animals will stressed regardless of wind speed. Show animals should be in the shade with fans, especially market ready animals, and have plenty of access to water. If a heat index above 110 is predicted, livestock shows should be completed by noon. In addition, livestock that need to be moved or transported should be out of the facilities by early morning but certainly by noon, if possible.

If the heat index is above 115 degrees, avoid moving or handling market ready animals. Livestock show rings should be shaded with fans and misters; the show staff should consider postponing the show due to excessive heat.

If the heat index is above 120 degrees, no activity should occur for animals or humans.

During the heat of summer, livestock management musts include providing: shade, ventilation and air flow, clean and cool water, wetting, cool water drench and sprinklers or hoses. Shade can be provided by trees, buildings or other sunshades. In addition, the temperature can be lowered by spraying cool water on the roof and walls of buildings where the animals are being housed. Improved ventilation can be provided by fans or opening windows on a breezy day. Sunshades should be high enough off the ground (10 feet or more) to allow for adequate air movement.

Chichester stressed that if one is wetting cattle, the droplet size should be large enough to wet the skin, not just the air. “A small droplet size will usually just wet the hair creating more humidity for the animal, thus not helping at all.”

During times of heat stress, animals should not be subjected to too much activity, including movement or transportation.

Rural Futures Institute has vital questions to explore

When Ronnie Green was growing up on his family’s farm in southwestern Virginia in the 1960s and ‘70s, traveling to Roanoke, Va., the regional center 15 miles away, was an adventure.

But his kids “grew up thinking it was not a big deal for them to live in Sutton, Nebraska, and go to a movie in Lincoln 90 miles away, which to me when I was growing up, it would be, are you kidding? To them it’s no big deal,” said Green, NU vice president and Harlan vice chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

To people who live in rural areas, just what constitutes a community or regional center is all a matter of perspective. And Green points to differences between his perspective and those of his children to illustrate the kinds of questions the Rural Futures Institute should explore.

The institute will host its second Rural Futures Conference Nov. 3-5 in Lincoln to explore those and other questions. The conference theme is “Beyond Boundaries” and registration opens Sept. 1 at <http://ruralfutures.nebraska.edu/conference>.

If a 15-mile trip in the ‘60s was a big deal and 50 years later, 90 miles for a movie seems ordinary, how will people define their regional center 50 to 75 years from now as they increasingly communicate instantaneously around the world and need not always rely on place-based occupations?

Green readily acknowledges he doesn’t know. But he’s convinced the university, in keeping with its land-grant heritage, should be leading the way in asking those questions and collaborating broadly with rural people and rural communities to envision some answers.

“Envisioning the future has to be at this big level of saying, how do we get out of the mud where we’ve been for a long time in thinking about rural issues and really be thinking up instead of being bogged down in the mud of hanging on,” he said. “We haven’t really been thinking about the long-term future; we can’t get past the near term.”

Green knows it’s a tall order. People are products of their own times and places, and it’s always difficult “to fully view the world through a forward lens,” he said.

Green noted that up until about the 1950s, rural development efforts were largely focused on providing rural communities that initially sprouted where there was water and railroads with the same kinds of infrastructure that city dwellers enjoyed. Thus rural electrification and road-building efforts took priority. Since then, however, innovations in agriculture that have dramatically increased productivity also have contributed to outmigration from rural areas because it no longer takes as many people to operate farms and ranches.

Consequently, the rural landscape is dotted with abandoned farmsteads, merged farms and once-thriving small towns that functioned as commercial centers for more populous regions.

So people who care about rural places now face a different developmental era, Green said. “We need to be looking at all the big issues that are out there...We need to ask: What is this potentially going to look like beyond us?”

For example, Green asks, in 2075:

- What will the transportation system look like?
- Are county boundaries and the governmental structures that made sense when they were created still functional for the long term?
- What about rural schools?
- Does it make sense to support every community dotted across the landscape at 10-mile intervals?
- How do you best provide rural services?

“What we’re talking about is marshaling the resources of the university system to take on those challenges,” he said, “to explore and ask what these things need to look like in the future?”

And at another level, people need to deal with rural communities as they exist today. “How do you actually take the landscape as it exists today and identify the ways that communities and places are going to be more successful in the long term?” Green asked, adding: “Not every rural community is going to be successful, as hard as it is to say.”

“We’ve tended to say, let’s throw some rural development money at the problem and try to save the day, but those days are over. That’s my personal belief; those days are over.”

In a way, Green said, people who care about the future of the rural landscape are “in this kind of no-man’s land between the future world and the past world.” It’s the difference between thinking 15 miles is a major journey or taking 90-mile trips for granted.

Green envisions the Rural Futures Institute as a mechanism to bridge that gap, by asking tough questions, exploring possible answers and enlisting people with many perspectives to envision – and create – a new rural future.

Last year’s first Rural Futures Conference drew 475 participants and registration was closed two weeks prior to the event because the venue capacity had been reached.

It is anticipated that this year’s conference will again draw a large crowd and registration will only be open until all the seats are filled. The university is currently interviewing finalists and it is expected the institute will have an executive director identified by November.

Dividing perennials

Garden perennials, such as purple coneflower, tall sedum and garden phlox add color and beauty to any landscape. To keep perennial plants healthy, gardeners should divide them every three to five years, and with winter just around the corner, now is a good time to get started, said Sarah Browning, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension educator.
“We usually have cooler, moderate temperatures in the fall with good rain and several months of growing time for root development before winter,” Browning said.
Plant roots continue to grow until the ground temperature reaches below 40 degrees.

Homeowners may have noticed dead sections in the middle of their perennials, along with decreased blooming, which are common indicators that a plant needs to be divided.
“When you are dividing a perennial, the goal is to remove any old, dead sections of the plant crown and divide it into several new divisions that you can replant in the garden,” Browning said.
To divide plants, the preferred method is to dig up the plant and then cut the original crown into sections, Browning said. Make sure each section has at least one growing shoot. Bigger divisions result in faster plant recovery and blooming.
“You are trying to keep it in more of a young, juvenile state so that it is actively growing,” Browning said. “The crown will get bigger and bigger every year.”

Take care to prevent plant roots from drying out during the digging and dividing process, and water plants immediately after transplanting. After that, new plants need to be watered at least once a week for 3-4 weeks.
“Perennials need to stay well watered while they are trying to get reestablished,” Browning said.
Finally, apply a 2-3 inch layer of wood chip mulch to hold moisture in the soil and keep plant roots cool.
For more information about dividing perennials, watch this YouTube video from UNL’s Backyard Farmer.

Corn crop strong barring early frost

Late corn planting in some areas because of wet field conditions last spring could lead to reduced yields if an early frost hits this fall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension experts say.

Overall, Nebraska's corn crop is looking strong, and for farmers who planted around the average time, in mid-May, yields in irrigated fields are projected to be up 5 to 10 percent over the 30-year average, said Jenny Rees, UNL Extension educator.

But some farmers didn't get into the fields until after Memorial Day because of wet conditions. Expected yields in those fields could be down as much as 13 percent from the 30-year averages, thanks to late-season lower temperatures and a dramatic increase in the probability of frost damage before the crop matures.

The projections were made using UNL's Hybrid-Maize model, a computer program that simulates the growth of a corn crop, and weather data from the High Plains Regional.

Yields for rainfed fields are harder to project, but the model simulated yields where corn was planted on the average planting date to be lower than an average year for most areas, but close to or higher than a normal yield in the northeast, thanks to above-average growing season rains. For fields planted around June 1, simulated yields are also lower than an average year for most locations.

Several steps to reduce water use inside home

By Kristen Cope and Bruce Dvorak

Every day people use water not only for drinking and cooking, but for bathing, cleaning and many other purposes. However, the amount used by families in their homes can vary because people have different water use habits and a variety of fixtures and appliances installed in their homes.

Water-using fixtures and appliances (such as faucets, toilets, showers, clothes washers, dishwashers) designed in the past two decades typically use less water than older devices, and water-using devices labeled as "ENERGY STAR" or "Water Sense" are the most water efficient.

The ages, gender and number of occupants in the home also plays a role in how much water is used. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the American Water Works Association collected water use data from over 1,000 homes in different North American cities. They found a wide range of water use rates, depending on whether or not families addressed leaks, how efficient the fixtures and appliances were in the home, and whether or not families applied conservation practices.

Families that used the most water did not fix leaks; used older and less-efficient fixtures and appliances, and did not use water-saving practices. A family of four used about 499 gallons of water per day under these conditions. The largest amount of water use was from bathing, followed by the kitchen faucet and toilet. These were followed by the clothes washing machine, leaks, and other uses. The fixtures in this scenario were over 20 years old and had higher flow rates than newer more efficient fixtures. Leaks were most commonly due to the toilet, followed by faucets.

Alternatively, a family that fixed leaks and used the most efficient fixtures and appliances (meeting the Water Sense/ENERGY STAR standards) but maintained the same water use pattern (e.g., same frequency and length of appliance use) saw significant reductions. The total water consumption for a family of four under these conditions was about 176 gallons of water per day, which is less than half the water use as the first example. Further reductions in water use can be realized as the water use patterns are changed.

- What can you do to be more water-efficient in your home?
- Identify and repair water leaks.
 - Change water use practices. Take shorter showers, flush the toilet less often, do fewer and fuller loads of laundry or dishes.
 - Add aerators to faucets to reduce water flow while maintaining wetting ability.
 - Replace older fixtures and appliances (especially toilets and washing machines) with more efficient, up-to-date versions.

Saving water in your home is important. Changing water use practices will cost nothing and may even save money as less water might be heated and used. Other methods like taking care of leaks or adding an aerator to your faucet are fairly inexpensive. Water is a finite resource, and it is important that we work to conserve it, so it will be available for future use.

(TOP) Husker running back Imani Cross puts the finishing touches on a brilliant 31-yard touchdown in the second half of NU's 37-34 season-opening win over Wyoming Saturday night at Memorial Stadium. He finished with 105 yards. (RIGHT) Randy Gregory sacks QB Brett Smith, but the play drew a bewildering roughing the passer penalty. Still, it was perhaps the highlight of the night for the Blackshirts, who allowed 602 yards to the Cowboys.

Kunc exhibit opens Friday, Sept. 6

After Friday, Sept. 6, artist and professor Karen Kunc will add Falls City to a list that includes (among others) Egypt, Italy, Finland, Bangladesh, Poland, Japan, France, Mexico, and Iceland. The latter are the countries in which Kunc has lectured, exhibited her works, and held printmaking workshops.

Karen Kunc's solo art show, Elusivematter: The Prints & Artist Books of Karen Kunc, will open in the Stalder Gallery of the Falls City Library and Arts Center next Friday at 6 p.m., with a gallery talk at 7 p.m. On Saturday, Sept. 7th, the artist will hold an adults-only mono-print workshop titled Printing Impressions and Ghosts. The workshop is limited to the first 10 people who reserve spaces. (Call Christina Wertenberger at 402-245-6034.) The cost is just $20.

Kunc is a Cather Professor of Art at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln where she has taught since 1983. The awards that she has received include Fulbright Scholar awards to Finland and Bangladesh, two fellowships for the National Endowment for the Arts, and a Nebraska Arts Council fellowship. Her works are also held in private collections worldwide. She has lectured as a visiting artist to over 200 institutions.
