SPANISH TEACHER DISCOVERS AMERICA

When most of us seek adventure from our normal, boring lives, that means we change our hair styles, or maybe even jump out of an airplane. Not so for Maria Lopez de Merlo, the new Spanish teacher at Falls City High School.

Adventure for Maria, who is from Alicante, Spain, means applying for a visiting teacher position in the U.S., accepting an offer in small-town Nebraska, then leaving a beautiful city on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea to travel 4600 miles around the world to teach.

The hardest part was saying goodbye to her inner circle. Her husband, Javier, had to stay behind because of his job as an insurance adjuster. Maria also left her parents, friends, and a classroom full of students. However, her two daughters—Beatriz, 13, and Estela, 11—decided to join their mom on her adventure.

"My girls really like it here," Maria said, during a recent interview in her classroom on the third floor of Falls City High School. "They've made friends at Falls City Middle School, and have gotten involved in activities."

So, how did Maria choose Falls City?

The application process began in November, 2017. Maria was feeling the itch of adventure, so she checked a website that pairs visiting teachers with interested schools. She decided to apply to the U.S. just to see if anyone would hire her.

"The positions are only open to people who have been teaching for at least two years, and are currently working," Maria said. "New teachers aren't eligible, and neither are retired teachers."

In January, she received a message that she'd been chosen for an April interview in Madrid, Spain—for schools in Nebraska. All of a sudden, the dream of an adventure looked more like a reality. She started waffling about her decision.

"One day, I said to myself that, yes I would go," she said. "The next

COMMISSIONERS APPROVE PURCHASES AND RECEIVE SHERIFF'S REPORT REGARDING HIRING OF SCHOOL RESOURCE OFFICERS

By: Charlie Radatz

During the Tues., Nov. 13th meeting of the Richardson County Commissioners, Highway Superintendent, Steve Darveau, Jr. updated the Board on the routine maintenance being done on county roads and bridges this week. After hearing from Superintendent Darveau, Commissioners voted to table a claim filed by Windstream for damages done to a Windstream cable in the area of 631 Avenue and 710 Road near Humboldt, NE on or about August 10, 2018.

A report was presented to the Board from the Highway Superintendent regarding the findings for the request to close a road by a petition that was filed on October 9, 2018, by Joe Bangert and 10 other electors residing within 10 miles of the road. The report stated that there have not been any findings that should keep this road from being permanently and officially closed. The Board will determine a date for a public hearing to be held at next week's meeting and set the date by resolution.

On the recommendation of the Highway Superintendent, the Board voted to purchase a heavy-duty gooseneck trailer from Farm & City Supply, Falls City for the purchase price of $11,210.00.

Also on the recommendation of Darveau, Commissioners voted to approve the purchase of a new Caterpillar 12M3 motor grader as per the specifications included in the State Bid Contract 141920C with Nebraska Machinery Company, Inc. for the purchase price of $241,500.00 less a trade-in allowance of $56,200.00 for existing Highway Department equipment, for a net purchase price of $185,300.00.

The Board also approved the purchase of a 2019 Ford F250 Crew Cab 4X4 pickup available as priced through the state bid contract

#14657 submitted by Sid Dillon with Hullman's Ford Lincoln-Mercury, Falls City, to obtain the vehicle and make the delivery to Richardson County.

Sheriff Don Pounds updated the Board on the business within the Sheriff's Office and the Law Enforcement Center. Sheriff Pounds informed them that he is working with the Community Medical Center on completing a contract for the CMC to provide the health and medical treatments for the inmates at the Law Enforcement Center. He reported he would be contacting Advanced Correctional Healthcare, Inc. to terminate the current contract for similar services that expires on December 31, 2018.

Sheriff Pounds also reviewed with the Board the status of deputies currently employed and the upcoming training that will be completed by some. He reported that there has been an increase in the number of calls during the night shift that have involved threats of gun violence. He also informed the Board there will be some hiring of jailers as there had been some terminations and resignations during the past month.

Sheriff Pounds provided the Board information on Assertive Community Treatment (ACT), a group of professionals including persons involved in the medical, education, and law enforcement fields, seeking to obtain additional mental health treatment services in Richardson County. The Sheriff said the group's goal is to have a K-9 drug dog available in this area. ACT is also recommending employment of school resource officers. Sheriff Pounds reported that the HTRS Board of Education has committed $20,000 to have a school resource officer hired on a part-time basis, but the Sheriff

LET'S KEEP GROWING NEBRASKA

By Governor Pete Ricketts

Growing Nebraska has been the vision of my administration during my first four years. Whether it is achieving one of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation, winning awards for the most new investments among all states, or leading the nation in fiscal restraint, we have been successfully building the environment to encourage growth. Over the next four years, we have the opportunity to build on that vision. By developing our people, running government like a business, cutting taxes, and promoting our state, Nebraska will continue to grow.

We have been developing our people to take the great jobs available in the state. To do this, we are expanding educational opportunities and connecting Nebraskans to great careers in three ways: The Developing Youth Talent Initiative has been helping demonstrate unique opportunities in manufacturing and information technology to middle school kids. Our re-employment program has transformed our unemployment system by requiring participants to search for a job more often, utilize an online jobs database, and meet with job coaches. This program has been so successful, we are using it to help families on food stamps achieve greater independence by helping them find a better opportunity with a higher income and greater benefits. In the coming years, we can build on these successes. Right now, I am working with my team on looking at what other states are doing to help develop their people, so we can take some of the best ideas and apply them here.

Over the next four years, I will continue to put my business experience to work to make government more effective, more efficient, and more customer-focused. Some have tried to say you cannot run government more like a business – and the 13,000 teammates at the state of Nebraska have proved those critics wrong. Across the board, agencies are delivering a higher level of service. We are delivering professional licenses more quickly through the Department of Health and Human Services. Our Department of Environmental Quality has put permits online and slashed wait times. The Department of Motor Vehicles is opening up new locations in the Omaha area to improve the customer experience. By utilizing process improvement techniques employment in the private sector, our team is looking at new ways to deliver a higher level of service and bring our costs down every day.

Each year I am Governor, I have pledged to push for tax relief. Early in my first term, the Legislature and I worked together to increase the Property Tax Credit Relief Fund by 60 percent, and to put in place some spending control for schools. This was some notable progress, but more needs to be done. The last two years, a minority in the Legislature has opposed attempts to cut property taxes. My hope is that the new class of senators, many of whom ran on property tax relief, will work together to control spending and accomplish long-term structural property tax relief and reform. The key to long-term tax relief is controlling spending, and I will continue to work to control spending at the state level and urge local governments, who levy property taxes, to do the same.

Finally, promoting Nebraska nationally and internationally is key to growing our state. Over the last few years, I have traveled to Silicon Valley to help recruit Facebook to Nebraska and to New York City to promote our beef. With over 95 percent of the world's population outside the United States, we must take our message around the globe to sell our products. I have led trade missions to Japan twice, China twice, the European Union, Canada, and Mexico. We have seen great results. For example, Nebraska saw a 26 percent increase in our beef exports to Japan and a 46 percent increase in pork exports from 2016 to 2017. We must continue to go out and develop those overseas markets, and that is why my team is currently working on our plans for additional trade missions in the coming months.

I am grateful to the people of Nebraska for the opportunity to continue to serve. Over the next four years, let's keep growing our state. This will only happen if we all pull together and work to keep Nebraska the best place in the world to live, work, and raise a family. If you have thoughts on how we can grow our state, I hope you will email me at pete.ricketts@nebraska.gov or call 402-471-2244. Working together, we will grow our state for the next generation.

THANKSGIVING AND THE UNINVITED (?) GUESTS STARTED A TRADITION...

Capitol View Commentary by J.L. Schmidt
Statehouse
Correspondent The Nebraska
Press Association

Let's set the record straight on Thanksgiving. It started as a celebration of the first successful harvest by the Pilgrims probably in 1621. It lasted three days and was likely attended by 53 Pilgrims and as many as 90 Native Americans who may, or may not, have been invited.

There was no turkey or sweet potatoes or pie. They probably dined on fish stew and cornmeal mush and wild game if they were lucky. What we know of the meal is limited to a few lines in two books by Pilgrims: Mourt's Relation by Edward Winslow and Of Plymouth Plantation by William Bradford, the founder and governor of the Plymouth Colony settlement.

The Pilgrims were celebrating their first "halfway decent harvest" when members of the Wampanoag tribe showed up, likely uninvited, according to journalist Charles Mann, who wrote 1491: New Revelations of the Americas Before Columbus and 1493: Uncovering the New World Columbus Created.

Bradford's account doesn't mention the Wampanoag, but Winslow describes Pilgrims rejoicing the "fruits of our labours" with "many of the Indians coming amongst us, and amongst the rest their greatest king Massasoit, with some ninety men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted, and they went out and killed five Deer, which they brought to the Plantation and bestowed on our Governor, and upon the Captain and others."

Mann said it's unlikely they ate turkey (though Bradford describes a "great store" of the birds). Nor were there any of the potato or sweet potato dishes enjoyed today, as those didn't grow in the colonies yet. They may have had cranberry sauce, though the Pilgrims didn't recognize cranberries as edible. Without wheat or apples, they probably didn't enjoy pies, either.

A few years before this potluck, a disease from shipwrecked French sailors swept through New England and killed most of the Wampanoag. The Pilgrims from the Mayflower essentially set up shop in one of their decimated villages, but they did bring valuable trade goods from Europe.

In the spring after the Mayflower's arrival, the Wampanoag allied themselves with the Pilgrims to gain British goods and protection from warring tribes like the Narragansett, who wouldn't mess with an ally of their trade partners. The Pilgrims in turn looked to the Wampanoag for survival, gaining valuable tricks like using fish for fertilizer to make effective use of the cornfields they stole from the Indians. They had a mutually beneficial relationship for about 50 years.

"I have no problem calling the three-day feast of '21 Thanksgiving," said historian Melanie Kirkpatrick, who wrote Thanksgiving: The Holiday at the Heart of the American Experience. "But from the perspective of the Pilgrims, that was not a Thanksgiving. Because it was a feast, it wasn't a religious event. They would have had prayers giving thanks." The first Thanksgiving the Pilgrims likely would have recognized actually came in July 1623, summoned by Bradford as a day spent in worship and prayer to give thanks for rainfall that ended a drought. Connecticut was the first state to call a Thanksgiving for general, everyday blessings, in 1639, according to Kirkpatrick. Other states followed suit. In 1789, George Washington issued the first presidential proclamation ever, and it was for a day of Thanksgiving on the last Thursday of November to nationalize the tradition.

But Congress objected – imagine that – saying the president didn't have that authority over the states. As a compromise, Washington recommended a day of thanks and sent a copy to every governor requesting, not ordering, them to issue their own day of Thanksgiving.

Those days were finally consolidated when President Abraham Lincoln, in 1863, proclaimed a national day of Thanksgiving on the last Thursday of November for "Thanksgiving and praise to our beneficent Father who dwelleth in the Heavens."

In my humble opinion, we ought to start EVERY day giving thanks. That will lead to a better attitude, which could, ultimately, lead to a better world.

Try this. Keep a Thanksgiving journal. Every morning when you get up, write down what you are thankful for. Before you go to bed, record what you are thankful for. Do it for the rest of this month and maybe, just maybe, you'll want to do this for the rest of your life.

Community Medical Center "Ground Breakers"

As we approach the 100-year anniversary of a hospital in Falls City, we recognize some of those that pioneered health care in our community and made a difference in our history—people we call Groundbreakers. On September 22, 1918, community members broke ground on a new hospital. The hospital officially opened October 15, 1919 (and re-opened in 1922), eventually becoming Community Medical Center. Charles Luke Husted, M.D. Dr. C.L. Husted practiced in Falls City from 1912 until 1952.

Dr. Husted was born in 1881 in Linn, KS, and graduated from medical school at Creighton University in 1912. Richardson Co. voter turnout information incorrect for the 2018 Midterm election

As reported in of last week's issue of the Falls City Journal, it was reported that turnout in Richardson County was lower this year than in the previous election in 2016. However, the Journal was sent incorrect information. Nationally, voters turned out last week at rates not seen in a midterm election in half a century. We reported that all of the percentages of voter turnout in Richardson County was below 50 percent. That was incorrect. This is a break down of the updated voter turnout for Richardson County broken down by Precinct.

Bippes added 39 tackles and a fumble recovery, and Simon finished with 38 stops, three for loss.

"It was a great season," said Coach Doug Goltz. "We came up short against two very good teams this year. Johnson-Brock who made it to the State Final game and St. Francis who made it to the Semifinals. We really improved as the season went along and that's a credit to the boys who came to practice every day. Looking forward to next year already with an experienced group of players coming back. We just have to work hard between now and next August."

RIGHT OR WRONG? IT'S MY OPINION.

By Brian McKim

On a cold, windy and snowy November Saturday afternoon, the Nebraska Cornhuskers got Coach Frost's first signature win under less than ideal conditions against an excellent Michigan St team. For those who braved the elements, you saw the crowning moment of a season that has progressed very nicely for the Big Red. After a disappointing 0-6 start, the Huskers have now won four of five, and after a win vs. Iowa next week the Husker faithful will be thrilled with a final 5-7 mark. Sure, it's not the season that we all envisioned, but each and every week we continue to get better and better. If the team keeps improving at this rate, I would be worried if I were the rest of the Big 10.

For the first time in a while, a Husker team is building an identity. I saw emotion, excitement, and determination from them that I haven't seen for a very long time. With just over 12:00 minutes on the clock in the fourth quarter, the Huskers fought back and kicked field goals on three consecutive drives to take a 9-6 lead, which was enough to earn the hard-fought victory on Senior Day. For the first time in 81 years, Nebraska won a game without scoring a touchdown. As the final seconds ticked down I caught Coach Frost celebrating with a massive smile on his face, go ahead and smile Coach, you deserve it.

Nebraska's offense only put up 248 total yards, while the Blackshirts surrendered just 289 yards. Both were solid numbers given the conditions. Speaking of bad conditions, as I was warming up at halftime under the West Stadium I had the pleasure of visiting with Jerry Joy. As many of you know, Jerry is an avid Husker fan when he's not attending Peru St games. It was nice to visit while we warmed our feet and discussed the first half.

So, what's next for the Huskers? Well, after they take a day or two to celebrate the win over the Spartans, they will get ready for the Hawkeyes. Iowa is coming off a 63-0 win over Illinois but let me tell you something. The Huskers aren't Illinois, and they are feeling pretty good right now. They will roll into Iowa City and roll back out with a big win. Nebraska isn't done proving who they are and who they have become quite yet. Iowa has won three straight in the short-lived rivalry, but this is a different team and a diverse staff. What happens next week? My prediction is the Huskers win by double figures. This is an entirely different team than it was early on and now it doesn't just think it can win, they expect it. Go Big Red!

reported that staffing is not available to fill this position at the current time. Shannon Roberts had previously met with the Board as a representative from the ad hoc "Take Back Our Community" group. She inquired about three matters: 1) drugs found in the cells with inmates; 2) inmates getting assaulted within jail cells, and 3) officers reportedly not taking witness statements at accidents/incidents.

Sheriff Pounds reported he had met with the group and had made a PowerPoint presentation regarding these items. The Sheriff said the response from those in attendance was favorable and the group thanked him for explaining the matters so well.

Sheriff Pounds told the group that he was unable to make their last two meetings of TBOC due to a shortage of deputy manpower that required him to work an accident during the first of these meetings and to work a bomb threat incident that involved a man with a loaded shotgun threatening officers that resulted in civil protective custody of a male high on drugs at the time of the second meeting.

Emergency Management Agency Director Brian Kirkendall presented the Board a letter of agreement from Nebraska Public Power District, Cooper Nuclear Station regarding the funding they provide to Richardson County to maintain a radiological emergency response plan.

Commissioners voted to approve a letter of agreement with Nebraska Public Power District, Cooper Nuclear Station, to accept the funding for the calendar year 2018 of $72,500.00 under the terms and conditions outlined in an agreement dated January 1, 1996.

On a motion was made by Davidson, Commissioners voted to recess the regular meeting agenda and go into an executive session at 11:13 a.m. with County Attorney, Doug Merz to discuss county litigation and for the protection of the public interest. The Board voted to close the executive session at 11:20 a.m. and returned to regular session.

A settlement agreement to resolve cases C116-151 Lazy J. Farms, Inc. v Richardson County and C116-152 Twin Oaks Bachman v Richardson County will be considered at a later meeting.

The Board reviewed the monthly operating statement for October 2018. Reports were approved for the following officials for fees they collected during the month of October 2018:

Mary L. Eickhoff, County Clerk, $361.96; Mary L. Eickhoff, Register of Deeds, $6,790.25; Pam Scott, Clerk of Dist. Court, $1,062.25

The meeting was adjourned after Commissioners voted to approve all claims that were submitted with the exception of one to Handley Construction for $6,100.00 held for further review.

FCHS Lifeskill's Class honors Veterans

Two thousand, three hundred and ninety two is the number of plastic military figures that are glued onto the flag made by Falls City High School's Lifeskills class. While there is not a significant meaning for each figure included, there was much meaning and learning to be had as the students created this work of art.

Mrs. Gifford, the teacher of FCHS Lifeskills class, was inspired to make the flag after seeing it on social media this past summer. She shares, "I knew it was something my students could do and my hope was that they would be able to learn more about the gift our military personnel give us each and everyday." As the project took shape, so did much learning.

Students of different ability levels calculated how many figures would fit in the flag so the appropriate amount was purchased. Other students sorted them by color and everyone helped count to get the official starting number. Some of the pieces came with imperfections which opened up a conversation on how our military heroes sometimes come back from service with imperfections whether they are visible or those we cannot see, like mental health issues. The bottom line is, we need to respect and thank those who have chosen to give years of their life to protect our country and our freedom.

The flag was made to honor all veterans, but especially those who are alumni of Falls City High School. During the current semester students have had the opportunity to send some smaller pieces of artwork and cards to FCHS alumni who are currently deployed in the US Army.

The recipients of these items are 1LT. Ethan Fritz, a 2011 graduate and SPC Luke Gifford, Mrs. Gifford's son, graduated in 2016. Mrs. Gifford recently commented, "Obviously, we miss our son, but this flag and the month it took our class to make it, helped the time pass by a little more quickly. It was also interesting to hear stories from students about family members who have served our country."

The Lifeskills Flag will be on display at the Falls City Art Gallery at 1622 Stone Street until the end of November when it will be moved to its permanent home in the Falls City High School Media Center.

day, the answer was no." Unable to make up her mind, she decided to weigh the pros and cons. At home, she lived in a lively city of 300,000 people.

The streets downtown were filled with activity every night. She and her family biked across town to beautiful beaches, or drove four hours to the mountains anytime they wanted to. In addition, the winters were beautiful, with temperatures that hovered around 65 degrees.

Nebraska, Maria learned, was mostly made up of rural communities, and the economy centered around agriculture. There were no beaches nearby, and no mountains. The winters were unbearably cold, and snow sometimes accumulated in feet rather than inches.

Nebraska was 180 degrees different than Alicante. And that was exactly what Maria was looking for! But still, she couldn't decide if she could leave her family for ten months or not. Then Beatriz stepped forward.

"I'll go to Nebraska with you, mum," the teenager said. Maria was shocked. Beatriz loved her school, and she had a lot of friends. But she was so willing to join her mom in the adventure that Maria decided to go through with the interview process.

She went to Madrid in April, and met with a recruiter from Nebraska. The recruiter seemed excited about her potential, so Maria went home and nervously waited for a call. She continued to wait.

One month later, she received notice that the administrators of two Nebraska schools wanted to interview her. Falls City was one of them.

"Mr. Heckenlively and Mr. Dunkhas were both so lively and smiley," Maria said. "I felt very wanted and supported."

When they made an offer, she immediately said, "Yes!"

She and Beatriz arrived in Falls City in late July. Estela decided to join them after her mom and sister had been in the U.S. for two weeks.

"Now, Estela is the one who loves it most," Maria said. Maybe so, but her mom isn't far behind. Sure, Maria misses her hometown, husband, and extended family. She misses the activity in the streets at night, and the festivals in the villages that surround Alicante. She misses going to the beach or cinema whenever she wants to. And she misses having dinner with friends.

"I haven't made a lot of friends here yet," Maria said. "In my country, people invite others to drinks or dinner at least once a week. But here, everyone is so busy with family, school, and church activities. So I do miss going out with my friends."

She also misses having access to stores of all kinds.

"The stores here are very nice," she said. "But the shopping is limited."

However, she is quick to point out that the pros of Falls City—and America—far outweigh the cons.

"I have enjoyed the cold weather just as much as I thought I would," she said. "It never gets this cold in Alicante."

And, she has really enjoyed her students. "The children are so well-behaved here!" Maria said, excitedly. "Sure, I have a few problem students, just as all teachers do, no matter the city or town. But problem students are the exception here, not the rule."

To emphasize her point, she walked over to a desk by her classroom door, and pointed at four plastic bins, each of which held stacks of colored pencils.

"Just look at this!" she said, pointing at the bins. "These pencils have been here since my first day. One-hundred-twenty students come through my door every day, but none of these pencils have ever gone missing. Plus, the students return them to the right bins at the end of their classes! I want to take pictures of these pencils, and my clean classroom, to send to my friends back home! They won't believe it."

In addition to the well-behaved students, she appreciates the support of the administration.

"If I need something, like a cable moved for my computer, it is done that day," she said. "If a student behaves poorly and is sent to the office, the principal backs me. That doesn't happen very often at home. The student's word is generally believed over the teacher's."

She shook her head in awe, and grinned broadly.

"I really like the administrators here," she said. The feeling is apparently mutual. Gale Dunkhas, principal at FCHS, had this to say—"Maria has really done a nice job of transitioning to Falls City High School. Her career experience teaching English to Spanish speakers in Spain is what set her apart from other applicants. She is excited to teach Spanish in Nebraska and at FCHS. She not only is teaching Spanish, but is sharing the Spanish culture with our students, daily. This cultural exchange and collaboration enhances our regular Spanish curriculum." For Maria, she is simply sharing her way of life, with students she has come to love. But this opportunity to teach has also given her the chance to learn—about Americans, and our country.

"I'll be honest," she said. "The people in Spain think that all Americans are like the ones in Hollywood movies, or on the news. Some of my students at home thought I would be killed in a mass shooting because they think every school here is unsafe. They wanted to buy me a bullet-proof vest."

Now that she has lived here for four months, she chuckles at the thought. "Our perceptions can be so wrong," she said. "I have never felt unsafe at school. There are just so many things that I love about America now." "I love the sense of community," she said. "I am overwhelmed by the way that Americans take care of their poor, and the way everything revolves around school and church activities. In my country, we go to church on Sunday mornings and listen to the priest for half an hour. Then, church is over for the week. That's not the case in America. Americans are very deep and God-centered."

"I love the sense of independence in your young adults," she said. "At home, our high school graduates go to college, then live at home until they are married, which usually happens around 28 or 29. I know a doctor who still lives with her parents, and she is expected to live with them until she's married. In America, some children live with their parents after college, but most are on their own right after high school. That sense of independence is freeing."

"I love the way that you feel your country," she said. "Not feel about your country, but feel your country. It's the pride that you have. Your children learn that pride by saying the pledge of allegiance and by placing their hands over their hearts to sing the national anthem. It's all so unifying."

As our interview wound down, Maria thought about the day that she will leave America. She and her girls will go home next summer, but if her contract is extended, Maria has the option of returning to her classroom for a maximum of five years. "Whether I come back after this school year or not, I know that I will never be the same after this experience," she said. "Whenever a person travels, she never again belongs to one place. She feels homesick for any country she leaves behind. And I know, when I do go home for good, I will be homesick for Falls City."

Now, that is the true mark of one great adventure.

Sydney Armbruster intersects housing and healthcare on Episode 17 of Rural Futures Podcast

"I really have a passion for helping people," says Sydney Armbruster, who hopes to be a physician assistant in a rural community one day.

The Falls City native is a senior disease and human health major at Peru State College. She shares her rural experience in healthcare and housing in the Bold Voices student segment at 13:53 of Episode 17 of the Rural Futures Institute's weekly podcast launched today with featured guest Christina McFarland of the National League of Cities.

Expecting to be placed in a rural community after becoming a Rural Futures Institute (RFI) Serviceship student in 2018, Sydney was surprised to learn she would spend her summer in Omaha, Neb., with the Omaha Municipal Land Bank.

The Omaha Municipal Land Bank is a local governmental nonprofit organization that was established by the Nebraska Legislature to develop housing strategies for regional organizations in rural communities across Nebraska.

"Once I got to Omaha, I learned a whole new world that joined housing and healthcare," she says. With the Land Bank, she got an inside view of how important housing is to a community and witnessed the critical connections between health and housing.

"It made me grow as a person and will definitely shape how I practice medicine in the future," she says of her RFI serviceship experience. "It definitely opened my horizons to what the world has to offer and how many people are working for positive change in the world today."

The RFI podcast, "Rural Futures with Dr. Connie," is available on iTunes, Stitcher, SoundCloud, Google Play and Spotify.

Neighborhood Closet and Project Response in Auburn join forces to assist those need

According to the World Health Organization (WHO), violence against women—particularly intimate partner violence and sexual violence—is a major public health problem and a violation of human rights. Global estimates published by WHO indicate that about 1 in 3 (35%) women worldwide have experienced either physical and/or sexual intimate partner violence or non-partner sexual violence in their lifetime.

You might be saying, "Yeah, but that is globally, it's not a problem around here." Project Response wants to share with you the number and types of services they provided to survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault throughout their five-county service area in the last quarter of this year.

First, domestic and sexual violence is not limited to women. From July 1, 2018 to September 30, 2018, Project Response served 21 victims of violent crime and their families, including women and men. There were victims of child abuse, child sexual assault, physical assault, adult sexual assault, domestic and/or family violence, stalking or harassment, and bullying. These survivors that Project Response served included some that were homeless, some with disabilities and some that are members of the LGBTQ community.

The services that Project Response has been able to provide these survivors include transportation, emergency financial assistance

Keeping your baby safe while sleeping

(StatePoint) Bringing home a new baby is a big adjustment and can feel overwhelming for parents, particularly when it comes to safety.

While certain statistics can be alarming -- there are approximately 3,600 sudden unexpected infant deaths yearly in the U.S., according to the most recent government statistics -- parents can take comfort in knowing that following safe sleep practices can go a long way towards prevention, say experts.

The three commonly reported types of such infant deaths, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) are Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS), accidental suffocation and strangulation in bed, and deaths from unknown causes.

Parents should understand the differences between SIDS and suffocation -- and, more importantly, to learn best safe sleep practices.

While not every infant death is preventable, there are ways to lower risks, especially when it comes to suffocation while sleeping.

- Always place babies on their backs for sleep, for both naps and night sleeping. A baby's gag reflex and anatomy will help prevent choking, as opposed to those babies who sleep on their stomachs or sides.

- Babies should always sleep on firm surfaces, such as a mattress in a properly approved crib or bassinet, covered by a fitted sheet, not a blanket. This lowers risk of suffocation and SIDS.

- Keep pillows and other soft objects out of your baby's sleep area. Pillows, loose bedding and stuffed toys can raise suffocation risks.

- Don't sleep with your baby in the same bed. A baby can sleep in your room, but not in an adult bed or on a chair or couch. Sharing a bed can risk strangulation, suffocation or wedging your baby between objects. Sharing a room (not a bed) may decrease the risk of SIDS by as much as 50 percent, according to the CDC.

- Never allow smoking near your baby, as this is a major SIDS risk factor.

The right sleep products are an essential part of keeping your baby safe. Many experts espouse the importance of choosing a firm, breathable crib mattress.

Most conventional, waterproof mattresses are covered with impermeable skins that prevent air circulation and increase suffocation risk, whereas a breathable alternative allows a baby to breathe safely even if he or she rolls over during sleep. For example, the revolutionary design of the fully breathable Newton Crib Mattress allows a baby to breathe right through it. An independent, blind, scientific study demonstrated that a baby gets 97 percent more air while breathing through a Newton mattress than on a traditional crib mattress. More information is available at newtonbaby.com.

"As a pediatrician and mom, knowing that my baby was safely sleeping on a breathable mattress gave me full peace of mind and brought all of us better sleep," says Dr. Deena Blanchard, a New York-based pediatrician and mother.

While you can't protect your baby from everything, it's important to lower the risks that you can, and creating a safe sleeping environment is a great start.

Whirls of Squirrels!

Invitations to a festival were sent on oak leaves to all squirrel family members:

- These squirrels build nests in branches and hollows. They do not store food, but bury it to find later.
- These are the noisiest squirrels. They like to live in forests. They are the smallest of the tree squirrels, but they are very fast.
- These squirrels sleep during the day. They move and eat at night. They climb to high spots in trees, then jump and glide!
- These members of the squirrel family -- woodchucks, prairie dogs and marmots -- all have burrows in the earth. They store food and hibernate in winter.
- These dig burrows. They have dark and light stripes on their faces. They carry food in cheek pouches to store it for the winter. They sleep, but they wake up to nibble food.

Read the clues to fill in the puzzle to find out who is at the festival.

Read the clues to fill in this puzzle:

- may be as small as a mouse or as large as a _____

The Mighty Oak Tree
