O'Reilly Auto Parts is nearing the final phase of their 2623 Harlan Street location.

The anticipated opening of the store is projected to be later this quarter (mid-fall), according to Eric Bird, External Reporting and Planning Manager of O'Reilly Auto Parts.

The store will be approximately seven-thousand square feet, which is prototypical store size according to Bird.

Bird said they expect to have eight to 12 team members at the store as they do at each location.

When deciding to open a store in Falls City, several factors went into the final choice. O'Reilly's opens approximately 200 new stores each year across the country and do a great deal of research in determining where to open their stores.

"First, we look for growing and thriving markets with good job markets and a strong local economy where we can come into and partner with the local community to provide great customer service," said Bird. "Every location involves a study of traffic patterns, the local competitive environment, as well as the number of mechanics in the area. We also look at our distribution model to ensure we will be able to service the stores and provide our industry-leading parts availability."

The Springfield, Missouri based company began in 1957, has 5,344 locations in 47 states with 45 in Nebraska alone.

The publicly traded chain sells over 30 different categories of product, ranging from shocks and struts to batteries and brakes.

DR. DAVID BORG CELEBRATES FORTY YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

It was 1979, and the medical community in Falls City was in an up-ramp. Doctors Theodore Kiekhaefer and Richard Gentry had left the community, and L.V. Brennan had retired. The only two physicians still practicing here were Bill Farmer and Bob Burghart. Farmer had all the patients he could handle and had actually stopped taking new ones. That left one doctor for everyone else. Hospital CEO Max Rathman and several community members like Ken Kunce and Charlie Smith decided to go hunting for doctors. The three set their sights on a young physician named Dave Borg, who was in his residency as a family practitioner with the Lincoln Medical Education Foundation. And when they got his attention, they used everything in their arsenals.

They knew that Dave, who had been raised in Minden, Nebraska, wanted to start his career in a community much like his hometown. He had a wife and two small children, and wanted his kids to grow up in a small-town environment. The problem was, Dr. Borg and a friend from medical school at UNMC had vowed to open a practice together, but the friend liked Wayne, Nebraska, and Dave liked Falls City. He not only liked the area, he also enjoyed the recreational activities that it offered. For instance, he was taking flying lessons to become a pilot, and the community had a nice airport. There was also a river nearby for fishing, and woods and natural grasses that were perfect for hunting.

As a matter of fact, it was a hunting trip that sealed the deal. Dr. Borg had told his recruiters that he enjoyed the sport, so on one particular visit, Dr. Burghart and Sam Cowan took him quail hunting. He had so much fun that he chose Falls City as the place where he would begin his career. He went into practice with Dr. Burghart, and began to raise his family here. He and his wife, Kristy, later had two more children, and settled into the Falls City community. (The two were later divorced).

Fast forward forty years.

On Friday and Saturday, August 16 and 17, 2019, Dr. Borg, his family, and three generations of patients celebrated his 40 years of service to this region. The Falls City Community Medical Center, and Family Medicine held an open house on Friday that was attended by an estimated 200 people. Jerry Clark, a patient of Dr. Borg's for 40 years, was one of them.

"I've got nothing but praise for him," Clark said. "He's a great doctor and good friend, and has kept me going all these years."

Marcia Harmon, also a longtime patient, had a story to tell as well.

"Twenty-one years ago, when I went into labor with my daughter, all of Falls City was completely shut down because of a blizzard," she said. "Dr. Borg was on his tractor hourly, to keep a path clear so he could get to town. When he got here, I needed a C-section, and the surgeon from Hiawatha couldn't get through the snow, so Dr. Borg performed the surgery. He hadn't done one in a long time, but he did a really good job. My daughter just turned 21 in March."

More stories were shared throughout the morning, and then Saturday night, the hospital hosted a dinner at Seid's event center for the Borg family, several friends, and the hospital board and staff. Joyce Borg, Dave's wife of 25 years, said that five of their six children were able to attend, as well. Another 120 people were there, too.

Both celebrations were nice for a man who has given 40 years of his life to the Falls City community. However, it was everything that happened between 1979 and 2019 that formed the foundation for who Dr. Dave Borg is today.

"I have had the most amazing career here," he said, during a recent interview in his office at Family Medicine. "As a family practitioner, I've not only treated patients who were neighbors and friends, I've been involved with their families, and delivered their children and in many cases, their grandchildren, too."

All totaled, Dr. Borg has delivered 1335 babies.

"Delivering babies has been my greatest joy with this job," he said.

One delivery, in particular, has stood out in his mind, and it was early on in his career.

"I was in practice with Dr. Burghart at the time," he said. "I went into a small exam room to see a patient who was pregnant and complaining of abdominal pain. I did an exam, but she began pushing, and before I knew it, the baby's head was crowning. The woman gave birth right there."

"After the delivery, Dr. Burghart walked in, looked over my shoulder, Dickey's Barbecue in Falls City has reportedly closed its doors while new management takes over and the location makes some updates.

Dickey shut down operations a couple of weeks ago with no notice. At last check, there were no signs posted alerting the public to the closing or how long.

There is currently no exact date the restaurant will re-open, but Greer Martin, Dickey's Public Relations Manager, said the location is expected to re-open in mid to late September.

"Ownership of the store is under transition, and our guests can expect the same beloved legit Texas Barbecue come September," said Martin.

Dickey's Barbecue opened its 117 E. 17th location in Falls City in May 2015.

Remember last season, when everyone was in an uproar because QB Tristan Gebbia was leaving the program, leaving Nebraska with unproven options at the quarterback position. Well, I think everything has worked out just fine, shouldn't be any starting QB controversy's this year. Gebbia saw the writing on the wall with Adrian Martinez getting the starting nod. All Martinez did last year was complete 65% of his passes for 2,617 yards and 17 touchdowns while rushing for another 629 yards and eight scores, all the while doing so as a true freshman. Gebbia knew he was not going to be a starter at Nebraska so he moved on to somewhere that he would be given a chance. Now the Oregon St. transfer is in a battle for the starting spot with incumbent Jake Luton. In a scrimmage over the weekend Gebbia helped his cause, completing 8-14 passes for 113 yards and a TD while also rushing for a touchdown. Best of luck to the youngster from Calabasas.

In other news for the week, it was announced that freshman Wan'Dale Robinson would not be charged with possession of marijuana, in an incident from June. Neither will Jeremiah Stovall, Mylaysia Farmer, or Maurice Washington. The ability to prosecute and lack of evidence were reasons cited to not progress with the charges.

Last week I heard from the University in regards to the issuing of press credentials for the fall. As we are such a small publication, it is never guaranteed that I receive credentials for the home contests, although I have never been turned down. I was excited to see that I was approved for the home opener but then dismayed to see that I was turned down for Ohio St. without an explanation. I understand only so many passes can be issued, but the local media should be taken care of first. Who fills those seats every Saturday in the fall, the locals. Who makes the "donations" every year to keep their season tickets, the locals. As is usually the case in Lincoln, the little people get the short end of the stick. If you're not a big enough donor, you may get your seats moved, or your parking spot was taken away. I guess the same goes for the media, they enjoyed the coverage when times were terrible, now that the Huskers are turning the corner, thanks but no thanks, we'll let the big outlets take over from here.

Now that I've stood on my soapbox to complain let's get the season underway. There are some high expectations for this program; let's hope we are not disappointed. Go Big Red.

Back-to-school safety guidelines

As children head back to school, they and their parents have lots to do to be ready for the first days of school. Clothing and supplies may be top priorities, but families also should focus on safety as the first day of school draws close.

The following are some key tips families can keep in mind to ensure a healthy and happy upcoming school year.

School bus safety: The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says that school buses are the safest way for children to travel to and from school. The majority of school bus-related injuries occur while students are boarding and getting off the bus. Over the last 10 years, the NHTSA says nearly two-thirds of school-age pedestrians who were fatally injured by school buses or other vehicles were hurt after being struck while entering or exiting the bus. While at the bus stop, children must remember to stay at least five large steps away from the road and wait to board until the driver says so. When leaving the bus, students should make sure there is no oncoming traffic and wait for a signal from the bus driver before crossing busy streets. While on the bus, observe the rules and stay seated at all times. Keep the center aisle clear of backpacks.

Walking/biking safety: Students may walk or bike to school if the school permits. School tends to begin during the morning rush hour, so students must exercise extreme caution when walking or biking to school. Stick to sidewalks whenever possible when walking. Cyclists should follow the rules of the road, including riding in the same direction as traffic. Choose the safest route as a family and practice it before the first day of school, advises the security company ADT.

Backpack safety: Choose an ergonomically designed backpack to enhance safety and comfort. Backpacks should weigh no more than 5 to 10 percent of the child's body weight, advises the National Safety Council. Rolling backpacks should be avoided since they are a tripping hazard.

With a new school year on the horizon, students and their parents can discuss school safety so the year starts off on the right foot.

NEBRASKA ADDICTION MEDICINE FELLOWSHIP A GOOD APPROACH

Capitol View

Kudos to Governor Pete Ricketts and others for their unusual but sensible approach to fighting the burgeoning opioid abuse problem sweeping the country.

The Governor, Attorney General Doug Peterson and representatives of the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), and the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC) teamed up to create the addiction medicine fellowship program and will partner to oversee it.

Ricketts said the addiction fellowship will address substance use disorders, not only illicit drug addiction, but also the even larger public health issues of nicotine dependence, alcohol use, and binge drinking. The collaboration will allow Nebraska to train its own specialists and increase visibility for UNMC's excellence.

DHHS Chief Executive Danette R. Smith says the time has come to fully integrate the science of addiction into medical practice. Such a move will improve the health of all Nebraskans and recognize the fact that while the state has a commendably low rate of opioid use disorder, it is not immune.

Addiction medicine fellowships are multispecialty-training programs that focus on the provision of care for persons with unhealthy substance use, substance use disorders, and other addictive disorders. Addiction medicine physicians work in diverse settings, including clinical medicine, public health, education, and research.

The addiction medicine fellowship provides fellows with experience in the prevention, clinical evaluation, treatment, and long-term monitoring of substance-related disorders. The training emphasizes the management of medical and psychiatric conditions in the comprehensive care of these patients and utilizes a wide range of evidence-based interventions.

UNMC Chancellor Dr. Jeffrey P. Guld said the center has an opportunity to lead and educate a new generation of physicians to address the opioid epidemic and other substance use disorders. He said the school educates the workforce to serve individuals with organ system disease, trauma, cancer and more, so it's fitting that it continues as a national leader in addressing the prevention and treatment of substance use and addiction.

Gold says healthcare providers who are comfortable and competent with addiction-related care will serve as change agents to transform the healthcare system. Primary care, internal medicine providers and specialists who have daily patient contact are a natural place for those with underlying substance use disorders to seek help.

DHHS Director of Behavioral Health Sheri Dawson says the fellowship will allow health care professionals to address substance use disorders which are the largest and most costly preventable health problem and account for almost a quarter of Nebraska's annual deaths. She says more than 90 percent of individuals are exposed to alcohol or substance use before the age of 21. One in every four deaths in our country is attributable to alcohol, nicotine, opioids and other drugs, including non-opioid prescription medications. Peterson says addressing the importance of treatment is vital in an integrated approach to fighting the opioid problem and other addictions.

The fellowship provides experience in the prevention, clinical evaluation, treatment, and long-term monitoring of substance-related disorders. The training emphasizes the management of medical, psychiatric, and social conditions in the comprehensive care of substance abuse patients. The educational program is 12 months in length and designed to be completed in no more than a two-year period.

Assistant Professor of Psychiatry and Addiction Division Director at UNMC, Dr. Ken Zoucha, will direct the fellowship program. He said the first year would be spent building the infrastructure for the fellowship in partnership with academic institutions such as UNMC and Creighton University. The first fellow will start in September, 2019 and graduate in August 2020. Initial funding is provided through a DHHS Division of Behavioral Health grant. Sustained funding is being sought beyond the initiative's start-up phase.

The fellowship is part of a movement by the American College of Academic Addiction Medicine, which currently has 67 addiction medicine fellowship training programs in the United States. Their goal is 125 by 2025.

Good move Nebraska. Definitely a giant step in the right direction.

-der, and said, "I'll go boil some water."

Dr. Borg laughed as he reminisced. "That's just how things were sometimes," he said.

He and Dr. Burghart later parted ways, so Dr. Borg opened a clinic of his own, in the space where Malcolm Dental Clinic is today. The move, however, left very little time for anything other than the work.

"I did everything," Dr. Borg said. "I did all of the book work, saw 40 to 50 patients a day, was on-call 24/7 for my patients, and was unable to leave town for anything. I missed my kids' activities, and had to leave holiday dinners for ER calls. I was making a good living, but I didn't have a life.

"My first marriage ended during that time," he said. "But I refused to let my schedule destroy my relationships with my children. When the hospital CEO, Vic Lee, came calling three years after I opened my clinic, I was ready to talk."

Lee wanted to start a clinic at the hospital (which was then located at 2307 Barada street).

The CEO offered to buy Dr. Borg's practice if Dave would work for Family Medicine. Dr. Borg accepted.

"It was the best professional move I ever made," he said. "I still had to take ER rotations every third week or so, but I finally got my life back." And that life was about to take a very big turn.

In March of 1995, he married Joyce, and he brought four kids to the union. She brought two. Dave was able to spend time more with all of the kids, and was also able to start enjoying some of his hobbies again. He bought an airplane kit and built a two-seater so that he and Joyce could fly anywhere they wanted to go. He continued hunting and fishing, started playing more golf, and began tinkering with projects in his garage.

"I love anything mechanical," he said. "I like to build things, and I like to fix things."

Fixing things is only natural for someone in the medical profession. It was Dr. Borg's job to fix things. He was always able to do so at home, but at the clinic, there were times when he just couldn't.

"When I was unable to help someone, or had to tell a guy that he had cancer or tell a woman that she was going to lose her baby... those times were hard," he said. "And losing patients was definitely the worst part of the job.

"As a small-town doctor, I was friends with most of my patients, and still am. Some, I've known on a social basis. My wife and I have traveled with them, socialized with them, played golf with them. When I've had to declare a friend's death, and then watch his family grieve... well, those moments will stay with me forever."

But there have also been moments of joy.

"One time, I listened to a young man give a speech as valedictorian of his class," Dave said. "Eighteen years prior, when I had delivered him as a baby, he had started to turn blue because the umbilical cord had prolapsed. I administered CPR and brought him back. Watching nearly two decades later as he delivered a commencement speech was one of the best moments I've ever had."

There were other joyful times, as well.

"Being a part of the medical community while tremendous advances were made has been downright incredible," he said. "In the late 1980s, I was the first doctor in Nebraska to send a cardiac patient to Bryan to receive a stent.

"In addition, I was practicing medicine during the onset of HIV, but also watched as a vaccines were developed that prolonged victims' lives. I witnessed the development of DNA, and of genetic research that can actually predict the potential for cancer in any given patient. I've seen the medical miracles that will be possible someday with further stem cell research."

In other words, he has seen a lot in his 40 years. Both good, and bad.

The worst development, in his opinion, has been the invention of Electronic Medical Records or EMRs.

"Twenty years ago, when I dictated medical charts, I saw 40 to 50 patients per day, and actually had more time to spend with each," he said. "Nurses had time to tend to patients, too. Now that we have to document everything ourselves, I spend half of my time in front of a computer screen, and the nurses do, too. EMRs have definitely been detrimental to patient care."

On the opposite side of things, one of his favorite developments has been the hiring of hospitalists, or ER specialists.

"When I was a young doctor with a young family, physicians worked full schedules in their offices, did rounds in the mornings and evenings, and also had to be on-call about 40 hours a week. Now, for most of us, when we're off, we're off. Hospitalists take care of the ER, and we physicians only receive calls when they need advice or assistance.

"Doctors aren't as worn out or burnt out anymore," he said. "It is a win-win for everyone involved. Especially the patients. Now, they are cared for by people who aren't exhausted all the time." And by people who are allowed to have lives outside of work. "I'm in my late 60s now," he said, "So I work Tuesday through Thursday, and am off for long weekends. When I want to go somewhere, I can. Joyce and I can travel now. We went to Europe last spring. Two weeks ago, we took our whole family to Gulf Shores, Alabama. We had a great time."

"When my grandkids have activities, my wife and I can drive to their schools or fly in to watch. Our grandkids have been the greatest gifts we've ever received, and I'm not missing their events like I did my own kids."

Now, he has time to spend with all of them. He also has time to spend with his golfing buddies, on courses around Nebraska and the U.S. He has time to tinker in his garage, and to fix and build things in his shop.

He has time. But those who have been on the receiving end of his medical expertise need to remember that it's time for which he made sacrifices. It's time that he spent in hospital rooms when he was on his 24th hour on-call. It's time that he spent in the ER while his family was home unwrapping Christmas presents. It's time that he delivered babies when his kids were participating in school activities.

It is time that he gave to his patients. And, in a circle of life experience, it is time that Dr. Borg gave to a young doctor named Justin Westengaard, when hospital CEO Ryan Larsen was looking for someone new to come to town.

It was about four years ago, and Dr. Westengaard just happened to be helping a friend remodel the Borgs' house during a two-week break from medical school in Omaha. He briefly mentioned to Dr. Borg that he would soon be graduating from medical school and starting his residency. For Dr. Borg, the hunt was on. He began using everything in his arsenal.

Fortunately, Dr. Westengaard fell in love with Falls City during that two weeks, but his wife, Holly, had never been here. When Justin was in his residency in Kearney, NE, Dave and Joyce flew out there to talk to both about moving to town. The Borgs later hosted a luncheon at their home to introduce the Westengaards and their two children to some of the hospital and office personnel.

The family committed to the Falls City community shortly after.

A few years later, Dr. Alyssa (Sickel) Finck came back to her hometown to practice at Family Medicine, as well. Sandy Catlin and Gayle Keller, APRNs who have each served the clinic for more than a decade, are still on staff there, too. "Now, Family Medicine has four medical experts who can handle things just fine if I want to take some time off," Dr. Borg said. "Plus, the staff at the clinic is unequalled. I not only feel comfortable leaving the place in their hands, I feel confident."

So, does that mean that he will retire soon? Not soon, but someday. Until that happens, though, he'll be in the office three days each week.

With that kind of schedule, he could probably work forever. After working brutal schedules for decades, a three-day week seems like a gift—a gift that is almost as precious as his grandchildren. It is the gift of time.

So, take off, Dr. Borg, and spend it however you wish, because this is a gift that you have most certainly earned.

Scholl Lawn and Landscape is the Chamber's Member of the Month

Matt Kirkendall and staff at State Farm had the difficult task of picking the next Falls City Chamber Member of the Month. After taking a drive down Stone Street, it was evident that Scholl Lawn and Landscape deserved high praise and recognition for their hard work maintaining the beautiful flower beds downtown. We're proud to announce them as the August Member of the Month.

Chad Scholl started Scholl Lawn care as a side business while working at Cooper Nuclear Plant in 2008. After a few years of mowing lawns on his own, he decided it could easily become a full-time job. Scholl Lawn and Landscape now employs seven full-time employees and works all around the tri-state area. In the warm months, you can find them fertilizing, spraying, mowing, and completing other landscaping work. During the cold months, they stay busy pushing snow for many businesses and homeowners.

"Chad has to be one of the hardest working guys I know. He's up town watering the plants at five a.m. before Stone Street gets busy and he can still be found playing in the dirt as the sun goes down. I've even seen him plant flowers in the rain." Commended Chamber and Main Street Director Amber Holle.

Falls City Public Schools Superintendent's District Update - August 13, 2019

By Superintendent, Tim Heckenlively

The Falls City Public Schools held its regular monthly board meeting on August 12, 2019. Here are the highlights of the meeting.

The Falls City High Cheer Program led by Courtney Kreifels and Machia Kirkendall enters the new school year with 10 members on the cheer squad, representing every grade at Falls City High. A report on the financial status of the cheer program along with costs associated for membership were reviewed with the board. Fundraising and donations are the primary source of income for the cheer squad, generating funds for cheerleading apparel and cheer camps. A Turkey Bingo fundraiser will be a new fundraiser for the cheer squad coming in November.

A contract with Bahr, Vermeer and Haecker Architects for the design and construction administration for the construction of the High School Career and Technical Education (CTE), Instrumental Music and Chorus Renovations and Additions and the SFM Protocol for Falls City Public Schools was reviewed and discussed by the Board of Education. Action on the architect's contract was tabled by the board for additional review and editing of the contract, and will again be considered at the next meeting of the board.

Nebraska Department of Education has selected FCPS to participate in the USDA's Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program for the 2019-2020 school year. The Nebraska Department of Education will award the district $8,874 to fund the program.

Employee Safety Award Recognition - The Falls City Public School is being recognized for the third year in a row as one of the 2018-2019 Safety Honor Roll school districts in the ALICAP pool. Our employee safety program requires the combined efforts of all those who work for the school district, and our employees should be commended. The effective and proactive efforts of the Safety Committee continue to make a positive difference. Only the top 33% of ALICAP's membership earn this safety.

Nearly all projects scheduled for completion over the summer months are wrapping up. A summary of completed projects and projects underway include:

High School: Turf Maintenance Program; Parking lot concrete expansion; Parking lot asphalt seal; Tuck point stadium wall; New stage platforms; Auditorium stage reinforcement, extension, and new stairs and handrails.

Middle School: North entrance concrete expansion and outdoor commons tables and benches; Gas line service relocated to north side of building; Replaced mobile bench lunch tables; Re-lamped hallways with LED lighting; Gym walls painted.

South School: Main front side sidewalk replaced; North side sidewalk replaced; New chest freezer for kitchen; Gym roof replaced.

North School: Epoxy bathroom floors - east end; Wood chip fill in playground areas; Ceiling repairs; Classroom painting; Installed new bathroom dividers.

Continuous School Improvement and Strategic Planning leads FCPS into year four of our school improvement cycle and directs the focus to updating our district profile, collecting student data and analyzing the data. We will be conducting stakeholder surveys during fall parent/teacher conferences again this year to collect perceptual data.

Richardson County Emergency Management has been working with FCPS to develop crisis reunification plan for each school building in the district to include (fire, EMS, law enforcement). The best solution for getting this information out to groups has been determined to be a power point delivery with discussion and question for each organization separately. The training for administration and counselors will be August 27th at 10:00AM.

The District 56 Board of Education acted on two items before concluding the regular meeting.

- 1) Approved the final reading on Board Policy Reviews and Revisions: 1) 7138 Safe Pupil Transportation Plan Rule 91
- 2) Set the Budget Workshop for August 23, 2019 at 12:00 p.m. in the High School Conference Room

The next regular monthly Board of Education meeting was held on August 9, 2019, at 6:30 P.M. in the Central Office in Falls City Middle School. Regular and special meeting agendas are kept in the Office of the Superintendent.

Joe Dunn, Jason Vitosh, Robert Baker, and Superintendent Tim Heckenlively.

Falls City cross country ready to hit the course

The Tiger cross country team will consist of 20 total athletes, 16 boys, and four girls as well as 11 middle school runners. The Tigers will have five senior boys, five junior boys three sophomores and four freshman boys. The girl's team will consist of one senior, one junior and two sophomores.

For the girls, three-time state qualifier senior Mazey McCullough will look to lead the way as well as junior Brenna Leyden who just missed a spot at the state meet last season. Nia Crawford also ran well last season as a freshman, finishing 30 at the district meet at Boys Town. McCullough ran a 21:29.9 at the state meet last year to finish 22.

For the boys, junior Jared Hawley finished 20 at districts last fall, and Eli Bottom came in 32. Look for both of them to improve their times this season and make a run at the state meet.

According to Coach Hawley, it's been a very long time since the teams have qualified for state as a team. The girl's team last did it in 1984, and the boys made it in 1995. In the past 20 seasons, the Tigers have sent 20 individuals to the state meet but continue to work on getting there as a team.

The Tigers will have big shoes to fill on the boy's side as they look to replace Braden Kobza. Kobza became the first Tiger runner to earn All-State recognition as a cross country runner. Kobza finished fourth last season at the state meet with a time of 17:19.8.

Coach Hawley thinks the boys can run in a tight group and hope to finish each race in close proximity to each other. If they can accomplish this, they can score well as a team. The girls' group should be fun too as they are very motivated and share the same goal of getting to Kearney to end the season. "I feel that has the potential to be the highest achieving group in my tenure," said Hawley.

Coach Hawley will be coaching his 20 seasons as coach at Falls City and will be joined by Amanda Merz who has been coaching the past four seasons. "Self-accountability is going to be a huge factor! The runners will get out what they put into their training," said Coach Hawley.

The Tigers have nine meets on their schedule with the tenth being the state meet at Kearney on October 25. The season will kick off at Auburn on August 29 at 4:30. Then on to Beatrice on September 5 at 4:30, Fairbury on September 12 at 4:30, Hiawatha on September 19 at 4:00, Nebraska City at 4:30 on September 26, at Rock Port on October 1 at 5:00, at Syracuse on October 4 at 3:45 and at Falls City on October 10 at 4:30. Mayor Shawna Bindle, Governor Pete Ricketts and Senator Julie Slama talk with local citizens.

Governor Ricketts and Senator Slama visit Falls City

An estimated 100 people filled the banquet facility at the Falls City Elks Club last Tuesday morning for a town hall meeting arranged by Governor Pete Ricketts, and Senator Julie Slama. The purpose of the meeting was to inform the citizens of district one about the current events in state government. Falls City's mayor, Shawna Bindle, introduced Governor Ricketts. "The sun always shines in Falls City," she said. "But today, it shines just a little brighter. It is my honor to introduce Governor Pete Ricketts."

Nebraska's 40th governor, who has served this state since 2015, quickly turned the stage over to the district's senator, Julie Slama. Senator Slama was appointed to finish the term that was vacated by Dan Watermeier when he was elected to the Public Service Commission. Her term ends in 2021, when she will then run for re-election. Senator Slama said that she was told before her first session, (2019) that she should consider her service a success if she was able to pass one bill.

"But I've passed four," she said. One of the two most crucial, in her opinion, was LB 399, which requires every graduate of a Nebraska high school to pass a course in civics.

"I traveled a lot across the state during the first several months of my appointment," she said. "And I ran into kids who had no idea what a legislature was. They had no idea who their state senator was, or even what a state senator did. Every student should have a basic understanding of how government works."

The other crucial bill that she was able to get passed was LB519, which eliminated the statute of limitations for cases of sex trafficking of a minor, and extended the statute of limitations for possession of child pornography to seven years beyond a victim's 18th birthday. In addition, the bill increased the statute of limitations for labor or sex trafficking of an adult from three to seven years.

Senator Slama also went on record this past session as opposing the repeal of the death penalty, which Nebraska voters voted to approve during the 2016 election. In that election, 61% of those who voted elected to reinstate the death penalty after it was repealed by legislators in 2015.

"The people of Nebraska have spoken," Senator Slama said. "And I just don't believe in overriding the vote of the majority."

She then switched gears to the next session, and her top priority. "I hope to pass legislation that ensures equality in the funding of education," she said.

"Right now, all of the state aid to public schools goes to three communities in Nebraska: Omaha, Lincoln, and Millard. All of the other school districts are funded by local property taxes, and something has to be done about that disparity. Students in our rural communities deserve the same opportunities as those in Omaha and Lincoln."

The room erupted in applause.

Senator Slama then turned the floor back over to Governor Ricketts, who focused his speech on the four pillars that he believes produce a healthy state government, and as a result, a productive state. "The first is connecting people to great-paying jobs," he said. "The second is managing our operations well. The third is controlling spending so we can provide property tax relief, and the fourth is promoting our state."

The governor then covered several initiatives and programs for each pillar, including working with initiatives like the Industry Consortium for Advanced Technical Training, the leading apprenticeship program in the Midwest for high-tech manufacturers and companies. "It's an earn-while-you-learn type of program," Ricketts said. "You start working for a company, they may help pay for your education. You're earning while you're doing that, and then become more employable with a marketable skill."

For the second pillar, he mentioned that Nebraska has gone from an unemployment system to a re-employment system. "We ask everyone seeking those unemployment benefits to sit down with a jobs coach first, and create a resume online," he said. "That resume is searchable by companies so they can reach out to those folks. The unemployed person also gets tips on how to find another job, and gets job training. All of this makes finding a job easier and quicker. Plus, initiatives like this and others that we have implemented have saved Nebraska businesses nearly $20 million per year that they can then reinvest in growing their companies."

He then switched gears to the issue of highest interest statewide. Property tax relief.

"The only way to provide sustainable property tax relief is to control spending," he said. "Before I became governor, the budget was growing at 6.5% per year. But by working with the legislature, we have been able to control that spending, and the budget that we just started on July 1st is growing at 3%. That allows us to put more money into tax relief."

He then gave several examples of the ways that Nebraska's government has tried to help, including the property tax credit relief fund.

"This is a fund that the state puts money into that basically helps you pay your property tax bill," he said. "When I took office, the annual budget for aid to property tax was $140 million, but because we have controlled our spending, we have been able to nearly double that fund."

"I have also proposed to the revenue committee that we apply a constitutional limit on how fast your property taxes can go up," he said. "This is something that the legislature needs to pass so that voters can vote on it next year. That proposal is currently stuck in committee, and the revenue committee hasn't done anything with it, but I would like to see it move forward."

"Property tax relief is multi-faceted," he said. "And we are trying to come up with a variety of solutions."

Lastly, the governor talked about ways in which he and the state legislators have been promoting Nebraska to the world.

"Trade missions open up opportunities for our farmers and ranchers, and the companies in this state," he said. Next month, he will be traveling to Vietnam, a country of over 100 million people. "Our beef exports to Vietnam are up 127%," he said. "Our overall ag exports are up 40% year-to-year. We want to visit Vietnam to sell more of our high-quality products there."

He will also be traveling to Japan. "Japan is the largest export market for our beef," he said. "Our beef exports there are up 11%. We want to expand that relationship, as well."

"When we put all of these things together, then we get national recognition for all of the great things that are going on in Nebraska," he said. "Over the last three years, we have won governor's cups for the most economic development projects per capita than any state in the country. Companies are investing in our state, and are creating great-paying jobs here."

Following a question-and-answer session, the governor and Senator Slama thanked everyone for coming, and encouraged the crowd to continue its support of the Falls City community, and of Nebraska as a whole.

Student cyber security precautions

Thanks to advancements in technology, students and educators are increasingly turning to birth, tablets and computers when working on daily assignments and classroom activities. Students rely on the internet for research and keeping in touch with teachers and other students, and work is even assigned and completed via digital platforms.

Despite the upside of technology, cyber crime is a potential pitfall of all that time spent online. The internet provides instant access, and that can put students at risk.

According to Verizon's 2016 Data Breach Investigations Report, the education sector ranked sixth in the United States for the total number of reported "security incidents." Schools are data-rich, meaning they give hackers access to information like identification numbers, birthdates, email addresses, financial data, medical records, and more.

Students must understand cyber security risks when working and sharing data online. The following are some tips students can follow.

- Protect passwords. Students are urged to keep their passwords to themselves. This prevents others from using accounts maliciously or even in seemingly harmless ways that can put you in trouble, such as searching for inappropriate content in school. Choose complicated passwords that can't be easily guessed, and opt for two-step authentication whenever offered.

- Use secured WiFi networks. Free or open WiFi connections are not encrypted, meaning they can be accessed by anyone. Many cyber criminals gain access to information through these channels. Schools should have encrypted systems in place.

- Limit what you share on the internet. Students are urged to be aware of what they share online. According to DataManagement, a computing service, information posted to social media is permanent, and deleted items aren't necessarily gone. Exercise caution on social media. Don't post unless it is something you would be comfortable sharing in public.

- Watch out for phishing scams. Phishing usually occurs through fraudulent email messages that mimic the look of reputable solicitations. Scammers rely on these tactics to tempt people to click on links or download attachments that can put malware on a device and steal personal data. Exercise caution with all links and downloads.

- Schedule routine backups. Data can be lost if a device crashes, so routinely back up personal devices and home computers. Backups can be stored on external hard drives or with cloud services.

- Exercise caution when file-sharing. UC Santa Cruz's information technology services says viruses and malware can be transmitted by file-sharing software, and files offered by others may not be what they say they are. Only used school-approved file-sharing options.

Cyber security is something students should prioritize this school year. The right security measures can protect students, their classmates and their schools.

We're going to our state fair.    We love the rides, food and crowds!  Kids: color stuff in!

Newspaper Fun!

www.readingclubfun.com Animills LLC © 2019 V11-33

Let's Go to the Fair!

People all over the country are gearing up for fun at a fair! At town fairs you can join in many activities with your friends and neighbors. Large county or state fairs have exciting, big midways, exhibits and crowds.

Read these fun state clues to fill in the crossword:

- Washington - experience an underwater deep dive without getting wet - on a _____ dome divers surround people in full 3-D
- Kentucky - entertains with a _____ all about the War of 1812
- Indiana - an American _____ named Kachunga does stunts; helps to educate about reptiles
- New Jersey - take a ride on the _____; fill up on a special cheeseburger made with donuts instead of a bun or a fried peanut butter and jelly sandwich
- Minnesota - learn about 15 different kinds of horses; visit the village, where kids can add their word to the special dictionary
- Ohio - sets up a _____ of a Civil War camp; soldiers wear uniforms; teach about "their" lives
- North Carolina - visit the Village of _____, where people make arts and crafts in past styles
- New England's Big E - _____ American buildings house crafts, products and treats from the six New England states: Maine lobsters, Vermont maple syrup...
- Iowa - home to a hand _____, lifesize butter cow since 1911
- California - area all about _____; learn how lollipops are made
- Texas - hosts _____ races; taste a "Texas Fried Fireball"
- Colorado - has a petting zoo that specializes in _____

Can you match each area of the fairgrounds to the events there?

1. midway	A. where animals sleep and eat
2. barn	B. to buy snacks, dinner
3. food court	C. game booths, rides
4. petting zoo	D. monster trucks, fast cars
5. race track	E. children pet and feed animals

Something for Everyone!

Fairs have something for everyone. Some people enter their livestock or produce into contests to be judged. People learn more about community groups by viewing their displays. Many people love the parades or fireworks! What is your favorite activity?

Fill in the crossword with all the cool happenings at the fair.

What is this amazing sideshow at the fair? To find out, fill in the letters that match the numbers below:

Cobblestone parade line-up area

The parade line-up area is around Pioneer Park, between 18th and 21st Streets, and on Barada and Towle. The area is also extended up to 22nd Street on Towle, and on 19th Street between Chase and Barada. If residents in those areas would please remove their cars from the street before 8 a.m. Saturday, August 24th, the city and parade committee would appreciate it! If parents need to drop off band kids or children who will be riding on floats, please do so at Prichard Auditorium, and let them walk into the line-up area. It is simply too congested that morning, and drivers won't be able to turn around inside the area. Questions? Call Lori Gottula at (402) 245-8145.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF NYC

August 17, 1946

The enthusiasm for sun bathing is so general, these days, that the roofs of any major American city would have provided a scene such as John Falter painted for this week's cover. He chose New York. The view is from the fifty-fourth floor of the Chrysler Building, looking south. There were sun bathers on almost every roof, stewing, frying and boiling in the early afternoon sun, some in quest of health, and more, perhaps, in quest of an expensive-looking sun tan. A good many office workers at that altitude stand prepared, in case anything really beautiful comes into view, to look more closely. They keep telescopes handy.
