PRICHARD AUDITORIUM GETS A NEW SPEAKER SYSTEM

By Robin Ankrom

One thing everyone in Falls City can agree on is that we are fortunate to have such a large and historic building like Prichard Auditorium in our town. It's host to many activities that bring people from miles away, includng basketball games, graduations, recitals, programs, wedding receptions, and banquets. Another thing that everyone in Falls City can agree on is that for such a wonderful building, the sound system at Prichard is lacking. Well, not anymore. That changed in November That changed in November 2019 when the sound system at Prichard received a much-needed upgrade. In June 2017, I went to the Falls City City Council to ask permission to apply for a USDA grant for Prichard on their behalf. My daughter had previous experience working with USDA grants and believed there were more grants available to help the City pay for a new sound system at Prichard. After some research, I found there was, indeed, a grant to help us. I solicit-ed two bids; one from a company in Kansas City and the other from a company in Saint Joseph. (Continued on Page 14)

The process in locating SCC in Falls City began in August of 2015 as EDGE worked closely with the SCC team of Bob and Kelly Mor-gan in identifying, touring, and negotiating different sites and buildings over a nearly two-year search. In 2017 a site was finalized, an architect was cho-sen to design the building, and approval was granted for the new facility by the Nebraska Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education. The planning phase was a success, and Dr Illich and the Southeast Community College Board of governors gave the green light for the construction of a nearly 10,000 square foot facility. The building took nearly a year to construct and now adorns the northern entrance of Falls City and is a beacon of hope to those seeking to upgrade their skills and earnings potential. Southeast Community College held public forums as a way to garner input from local citizens and employers when deciding what areas to focus on at the Falls City location. Healthcare and Manufacturing continually ranked at the top, and SCC took action as a result of the community needs assessment. The building currently has state of the art healthcare classrooms equipped with the most ad-vanced technology available, and the manufacturing area is a work in progress. The facility is also home to a host of other classes, both on-site and distance learning as a means to meet local demands. Robert Aitken gave the Falls

FINDING 2020 VISION FOR NEBRASKA By Governor Pete Rickett

As the 2020 session begins, it's important to remain clear-sighted about the most pressing priorities of Nebraskans. As special interests clamor for attention during this short legislative session, Senators must keep laser-focused on the priorities that will grow our state as we enter a new decade. These priorities are property tax relief, flood aid, veterans' tax relief, and workforce and business expansion. First and foremost, Nebraskans need property tax relief. Everywhere I go around the state, farmers, ranchers, and homeowres tell me story after story about how property taxes are over-burdening their businesses and families. They're fed up with heavy taxation and fired up to make sure Sentors deliver relief this year. In 2019, Senators and I delivered significant tax relief by increasing the property tax credit relief fund by over 20 percent. That fund has now nearly doubled during my time as Governor, from $140 to $275 million. That's a step in the right direction, but Nebraskans urgently need additional relief

With revenues having recently exceeded forecasts, Legislators have a golden opportunity to deliver more tax relief in 2020. The only sus-tainable way to achieve long-term tax relief is by controlling spendspending increases, on average, to about 2.4 percent annually. To achieve meaningful property tax relief, the local political subdivisions that levy property taxes—like public schools, community col-leges, and cities—must also do their part in showing fiscal restraint. I'll share more about my plans for property tax relief this year in my State of the State address this week.

Second, we need to deliver flood aid for Nebraskans as we continue to rebuild following the 2019 floods. The combined recovery efforts of volunteers, local governments, and state agencies have been extraordinary. Homes have been rebuilt, businesses have reopened, and bridges have been reconstructed faster than expected. We're on track to rebound even stronger than before the floods. Federal disaster assistance, federal highway funds, and insurance are covering a large percentage of the costs of recovery. The State, however, also has to do its share to fully repair our infrastructure. Third, Nebraska needs to do more to retain our retired veterans. We are the only state in our region with a declining veterans population. This week, Senators unanimously advanced LB 153, a proposal in-troduced at my request last year. This bill would exempt 50 percent of military retirement benefit income from state income taxation. LB 153 is a step to keep us competitive with other Midwestern states, most of which do not tax military retirement benefits at all. By helping to retain and recruit military retirees, LB 153 also strengthens our workforce. Since many military personnel can retire after twenty years of service, they often finish their military career in their 40s or 50s. At this age, they are still looking for ways to actively invest their wealth of skills and experience in a new job. Given our state's need for talented workers, we cannot afford to have military retirees exit our state for a more favorable tax situation elsewhere.

Fourth and finally, Nebraska needs to do more to expand job opportunities by attracting talented professionals and thriving businesses. The Legislature can help address our state's workforce shortages by moving forward with two initiatives that are already on the table.

From Main Street businesses to Fortune 500 firms, we need to do more to prepare the next generation to take the great jobs we have here in our state, so they can make Nebraska their home. Last year, I proposed Nebraska Talent Scholarships as a way to encourage young Nebraskans to pursue careers in high-demand, great-paying profes sions. These annual scholarships would go to students at community colleges, state colleges, and the University of Nebraska studying to enter fields that currently have a workforce shortage. The scholarships are a common-sense way to connect the rising generation of Nebraskans with rewarding jobs that our state's employers are looking to fill.

And finally, business incentives, which are set to expire at the end of 2020, must also be addressed. Unlike other state incentive programs, Nebraska's tax incentives are performance-based. Tax benefits aren't given in the hopes of future investment. They're only earned by businesses that have already made a significant and verifiable investment in our state. This feature ensures that incentives reward actual job creation in Nebraska. All 50 states have incentive programs, even states with no income tax like Florida and Texas. Senators should take action to refine and extend incentives, so Nebraska can remain competitive nationally.

Property tax relief, flood recovery, veterans tax relief, and economic competitiveness are key priorities that deserve to be first in line as Sentors begin work this session. On January 15th, I will outline these priorities and more during my annual State of the State Address. I invite you to view the speech and stay updated on legislative developments, by visiting www.governor.nebraska.gov. If you have questions about these issues, I hope you will write me at pete.ricketts@nebraska.gov or call 402-471-2244.

2 CLASSROOM VIOLENCE NEBR TEACHERS School discipline may not be the issue to debate right now

Capitol View health services Nebraska Press Association

By: J.J. Schmidt

Back when I was a kid, if you caused a problem at school you wound up in the principal's office. We all feared that and it kept most of us in line in that Panhandle com-munity we called home. Further, we knew what to expect when we got home and received the "real unishment

Fast forward six decades or so and we've got a Nebraska Leg-islature looking at ways to give teachers and administrators more "tools" to handle violent students. The measure proposed by Senator Mike Groene of North Platte would give teachers legal protection for defending themselves and others against violent students. Groene first offered the measure

(LB147) last session and filed a motion to place it on general file, even though the Education Com-mittee, which he chairs, had not voted to advance it. Senators adopted the motion but the bill was never scheduled for first-round de-

As introduced, the bill would authorize teachers and administrators to "use the necessary physical con-tact or physical restraint" to control a student who becomes physically violent and to protect school prop erty from destructive students. It would allow a teacher to have a disruptive student removed from the classroom under certain circumstances.

The senator says a 20-year-old Nebraska Supreme Court case de-termined teachers and administra-tors might physically intervene to preserve order in the classroom. He says teachers want to be able to pro-tect themselves and their students. But he called the current classroom situation a "free-for-all."

I don't have school-age children anymore. My granddaughter is not in kindergarten yet. I have teach-ers in my family and among my retired friends. I haven't heard of this so-called free-for-all from any of them. Maybe I'm just lucky. Groene says he has an amend-ment to replace the bill to authorize teachers and other school person-nel to use "reasonable physical in-tervention" to protect the student, another student, a teacher, other school personnel or another person from physical injury. Such action could also be used to secure prop-erty in a student's possession if it poses a threat. The amendment, thankfully would require each school district to have a policy describing a pro-cess for removing a student from a class and then returning him or her to a class and then returning init of her to a class. It would be my hope that such a policy would be open to public scrutiny by teachers and parents alike. Otherwise, there are ground and a school districts from criminal and school districts from criminal and civil liability if a physical inter-vention or removal was reasonable and in accordance with said policy. Yep, gotta have something for the lawyers

Omaha Senator Machaela Caya naugh opposes the measure. She says state law already authorize: teachers and administrators to de fend themselves. She says it also fails to address the root cause of problems such as large class sizes, adverse childhood experiences and a lack of behavioral and mental Her Omaha colleague, Senator Justin Wayne, has filed a motion to kill the bill. He says minority students in Nebraska are five times more likely than other students to become involved in the student dis-cipline process and therefore would be disproportionately affected by physical interventions

Wayne says the measure will destroy relationships between stu-dents and teachers, parents and schools and the community and school district. There's also a shared concern among Wayne and other senators that teachers and other school personnel need to be trained in intervention and de-esca lation techniques. One of the bill's supporters says he'll introduce a companion measure to require such training and provide funding for five years of such Read that: more school aid something that is debatable all by itself. Imagine the debate that could ensue about what that training should look like, to say nothing of the fact that it's maybe not a good idea for the state to dictate same. I'm sorry that it has come to this.

I agree with the opponents that per-haps the real problem is a whole lot of outside circumstances that have nothing to do with public education and a whole lot to do with parental discipline.

That's debatable and certainly not something that can be legislated. least not in a short session of the Unicameral in an election year.

have made significant contribu-tions in Falls City/Richardson County in the areas of volunteerism, leadership, and philan-thropic activity. The deserving thropic activity. individuals have been role models for citizens and were instrumental in making Falls City the Passionate, Proven, and Prosperous community we enjoy today. The Towle family's four gen erations of pioneering business savvy and entrepreneurial spirit provided the strong foundation which anchored Falls City into the community we know today. To fully understand their contributions one has to travel back to 1862, a mere four years after Falls City was incorporated, to explore where it all began. Edward S. Towle settled in Falls City, where he was a pioneer lawyer and where he served as the town's first mayor, as a member of the first state constitutional convention and as Speaker of the House in the Nebraska Legislative session of 1875 His successful public service was complimented by his calculated private endeavors, which included amassing productive farm ground and creating the Towle Realty Company in 1913.

The next generation of the Towle family continued to invest in Falls City with the purchase of the Falls City Telephone Compa-ny, which became Southeast Nebraska Telephone Company, and the First National Bank. These two companies were purchased from the Miles family Edwin H also known as Ned, ultimately assumed ownership of both companies and continued to grow the Towle Realty Company. Under the leadership of Edwin H., the Towle Realty Company acquired many additional acres of farm ground and included the purchase of several downtown buildings He had many other business in-terests, including the Towle Lumber Yard and Apple Orchards. Mr. Towle was a dominant figure in the economic life of Falls City due to his real estate, banking and telephone interests, but he was also very civic-minded. He served as mayor, as did his father before him, served as city engineer at the time the bricks were laid on Stone St., was manager of the Falls City Mink baseball league, and played an active part in bringing Missouri Pacific of-fices and shops to Falls City.

Edwin S. Towle II led the third generation of the Towle family, and he continued in a leadership role of all three companies while managing extensive agricultural interests and city real estate. He continued to add holdings by purchasing farm ground and buildings for the Towle Realty Com pany, including the First National Bank Drive-In erected in 1960. Mr. Towle also owned the Independent Pipeline Company, the General Loan Company, and the Missouri Valley Poster Advertising Company. He served on the Falls City school board, the Chamber of Commerce Board, was a director at the Falls City County Club.

Today, Falls City is blessed with the fourth generation of the Towle family at the helm of many business interests under the leadership of the late Edwin S. Towle III, and his wife, Dorothy Towle. Mr. Towle added to the business interests of the Towle family with the launching of two additional companies, Computer Business Services, and Southeast Nebraska Sales and Service. Of all the siness interests held by the Towle family, the most prominent would be, what is known today. as Southeast Nebraska Commu-nications. It has withstood the test of time and has always been revered as the most high-tech telecommunications company the state of Nebraska has known Under the leadership of Edwin H., the news media reported in 1952 that "Southeast Nebraska has the most up to date telephone plant in Nebraska." In 2010, under the leadership of Dorothy, the Lincoln Journal Star echoed the same sentiment, "Falls City is not building a baseball park on the edge of a cornfield to attract people to the southeast corner of Nebraska. It's working on some-thing more futuristic: a fiber-optic network that will connect to 2,366 homes and businesses basically the entire town." In 2015, SNC completed a fiber optic project that placed fiber to every home and business in its rural areas. At this time SNC was one of a very small handful of compa-nies in the state to be 100 percent fiber to the home across its entire service area. Under the direction of Dorothy, SNC continues to be on the leading edge of commu-nications, offers the best service possible, and continues the Towle family's dedication to the people of Falls City and the surrounding areas.

The Towle family's business and civic-mindedness was a fundamental part of Falls City's history and is still going strong today. They are a premier employer with 13 valued employ-ees. They are philanthropic and often a leading donor to many community betterment projects including recent endeavors like Southeast Nebraska Communications hall field the Roh Activity Center, and Community Medical Center. Their contributions span over a century in time. There are far too many to list, but, as a community, the community is grateful the Towle family chose to settle in Falls City.

Also honored was Mildred Appleoff. Appleoff came to Falls City 70+ years go and opened a private piano, organ, and voice studio. This small business, which was located in her home, taught hundreds of talented students, and touched many lives. In addition to this successful venture, she and her husband Bob started Mutt & Jeff Drive-In and operated Appleoff Appliance for more than 50 years. Mutt and Jeff still open every summer, and it serves as an iconic stop for many loyal patrons each year. Its rep-utation for scrumptious cheese bars and beef burgers spans gen-erations and keeps locals and tourists coming back year after vear

Mrs. Appleoff also had a very successful, 25-year teaching career where she spent time at both Falls City and Sacred Heart. She earned recognition throughout her time in the education system. including Outstanding Educator of the Year, Golden Apple Award, a Key to the City, Woman of the Year and she was chosen Cobblestone Grand Marshal in 2017. She is also responsible for starting the Falls City High School Show Choir program in 1973, and the show choir is still going strong today. She was se-lected, via audition tapes, for two World Fairs. One in Knoxville. TN and the other in Vancouver Canada. She also directed 20musicals and started the Madrigal Feast, which Falls City High School continues to perform. This drama-filled, theatrical performance continues to be a favor ite of the public.

Mrs. Appleoff has left her mark on this community in so many ways. She has touched the lives of so many students in many ar-tistic ways through music, performance, competition, and cre-ativity. She also left her mark as a successful business owner and entrepreneur. In some ways, she has touched every Falls City resi-dent, and we are thankful for her contributions

Mrs. Appleoff was unable to attend the Banquet, but she sent her gratitude for the recognition and award. Her daughter Sandy and son-in-law Tim received the award on her behalf.

Those selected for these prestigious awards will be recognized by having their personalized plaque line the walls at the Falls City EDGE office. This permanent display will serve to remind area citizens that the success we all share is thanks to those individuals who give back so gener-ously to their community. Their vision and leadership have been vital to the sustainablity of our local area!

Richardson County U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) announced that Andrew Johansen was elected to represent his local administrative areas (LAA) three during the recent county committee election.

Gabriel Ramsey of Falls City will serve as the first alternate. "County Committee members are a critical component of the day-to-day operations of FSA," said CED Brenda Fields, county executive director. All recently elected county committee members will take office in January 2020 and will be joining the existing committee."

Nearly 7,800 FSA county committee members serve FSA offices nationwide. Each committee has three to 11 elected members who Serve three-year terms of office. # Nebraska Teachers ask for safer environments for students and themselves

Nebraska teachers value and appreciate the enduring, strong support that Nebraskans have demonstrated for students, educators and our great public schools.

There are an increasing number of incidents where students lash out at other students or school staff, threatening and committing assaults. There is a lack of support for teachers who are desperate to keep their students and themselves safe. These stories aren't often disclosed due to student confidentiality, but they are very real and they're happening every dayand teachers need solutions

The Nebraska State Education Association received more than 160 responses to a Decem-ber survey in which educators across the state reported their experience with student behaviors threatening the safety of teachers and students. There are heartbreaking stories of teachers who have been assaulted by students, often with severe injuries. Students have been exposed daily to disruptive behavior from other students, significantly impacting their learning opportunity.

The Nebraska State Education Association, working with state senators, the Nebraska Council of School Administrators the Nebraska Association of School Boards, and other advocacy groups, worked to develop amendment 1803 to LB147, a legislative solution to address this growing problem. The two primary goals of LB147 are to: 1) allow a teacher to request that a violent or disruptive student be held out of the class-

On Thursday night, the Irish took on the #3 seed Trojans from Tri County. The Trojans kept it close all night, trailing 10-8 after one quarter and leading 21-20 at the half. SH moved back ahead 37-36 with eight minutes to play. That's when the Irish offense exploded for 20 points to pull away and head to the finals with a 57-44 win.

The Irish got off to a good start Thursday night as Jake Hoy picked the pocket of a Tri County player and went in for a layup to begin the game. Jakob Jordan did the same thing thirty seconds later, and SH led 4-0. It stayed close throughout the half, but SH saw its slim lead disappear as Tri County finished the half on a 5-0 run to take a 21-20 halftime lead.

In the third period, the Irish used an 8-0 run themselves to take the lead back midway through the third. The Trojans made three triples in the quarter to keep it close, but Jordan drilled a trey from the top of the circle with 13 left in the quarter to give the Irish a one-point lead heading into the fourth.

SH scored the first six points of the fourth quarter with Hoy and Jarrot Simon, each getting hoops Sanot Sinon, each getting noops in the paint and Witt getting an of-fensive board and put back to give SH a 43-36 lead with 6:10 to play. Simon followed that up with two more layups to extend the lead to 47038 with just over 4:00 to go. Tri County got no closer than seven points the rest of the way as SH held on for the 57-44 win.

Severe flu season having significant health impact on Nebraskans

The Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) is reporting very high levels of flu and flu-related hospitalizations across the state. A total of 14 Nebraskans have died from the flu so far this season including at least one child. "This is a severe flu season and it's having a significant impact on the health of Nebraskans," said Dr. Tom Safranek, State Epidemiologist for DHHS. "We expect high levels of flu activity for several more weeks, which means more illness, hospitalizations and deaths. Vaccination continues to play a critical role, especially for those at high risk of flu-related complications. Antiviral medication for people who have the flu is equally im-portant and so are preventive measures like washing your hands, covering your cough and staying home if you're sick." The Centers for Disease Con-trol and Prevention (CDC) recommend flu vaccine for everyone 6 months and older every year. Certain people are at high risk for serious complications, and it's extremely important they receive vaccine: Young children, Adults 65 years of age or older, Pregnant women, People with chronic lung disease (like asthma and COPD), diabetes (type one and two), heart dis-ease, neurologic conditions and certain other long-term health conditions, and residents of nursing homes and other longterm care facilities.

People should promptly seek medical care if they have flulike symptoms which can in-clude some or all of these symptoms: fever or chills, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, muscle or body aches, head-aches, tiredness, some people may have vomiting or diarrhea. This is more common in children than adults.

Antiviral drugs are the best vay to treat flu so take them if your doctor prescribes them. Early treatment with antivirals can lessen symptoms, shorten the amount of time you are sick, reduce the risk of serious flu complications, and potentially decrease additional spread of the virus.

A common respiratory virus called RSV (respiratory syn-cytial virus) is also heavily circulating in Nebraska. RSV usually causes mild, cold-like symptoms. Most people recover in a week or two but RSV can be dangerous for some infants and older adults. Right now, the state has the third highest number of cases recorded since DHHS began surveillance in 2003. Learn more about RSV - https://www.

cdc.gov/rsv/index.html. DHHS started its surveillance for the season in October. The Department uses multiple public health surveillance systems to track flu viruses, including phy-sicians who report the number of people with flu-like illness weekly, lab tests, school surveillance, hospital data, emergency department data and death re-porting. Flu surveillance shows where the flu is and how fast it's spreading across Nebraska.

(Continued from Page 1) Once bids were received, the paperwork was completed in October of 2017 and submitted to the USDA for their approval. The final amount requested was $48,000, $36,000 to be supplied by the USDA grant, and the ad-ditional $12,000 to be raised by the City. Knowing the generos ity of the community, we felt certain that we would have no problem raising the additional $12,000.

After several months, in April 2018, we received a response from USDA awarding the grant to us. However, as is common with USDA grants, we had to wait for the funds to be released, which would not happen until October 2018. It was in Octo-ing, I work hard for a living. I am now all beat up from a grisly day at the office. Couldn't life have spared me this and just let me stagger home in peace? His home is blocks away and not even one of the entrenched troops is thinking of him as a beloved daddy. Moreover, if that ammunition was molded out of freezing slush, it is now hard, something like can-non balls. So Mr. H's tactical problem is whether to cross the street in a flanking movement, or charge the foe like a a man and take what is coming to him, which is plenty. What would artist John Falter himself do? He says, "This scene (except for that ornamental ball, which I contributed) is a pleasant, typical Midwestern town I re-cently visited, named Bad Axe, Michigan." He says, 'I would charge the foe. I think ' ber 2018 that we received the paperwork to finalize the grant. Upon closer inspection of the paperwork, however, it was discovered that there had been a clerical error, and the amount to be awarded to us was only half of the amount requested. After much back and forth with USDA, it was determined that we would have to resubmit the grant and wait for more funds to become available. In the summer of 2019, we were informed that the grant had been awarded to us and that funds were available right away. However, we had to raise #12,000 before USDA would release the funds to us. I contacted Richardson Foundation, the and they generously agreed to donate $6,000 With half of the money donated by the Richard-son Foundation, the City agreed to pay the remaining $6,000. With donations in hand, we contacted the winning bid-der, Harvest AV Solutions out of Kansas City, and made arrangements for them to install the sound system. Harvest AV Solutions is the national company that has designed and installed sound systems across the United States, including Kansas City Live! and the Kansas City Ballet Harvest AV Solutions commissioned, designed, and installed the new sound system at Prichard. The installation took one week and included 17 speakers in a variety of sizes distributed throughout the auditorium. The system upgrade also included a new wireless microphone, a digital mixing console, digital signal processing, and new amplifiers. Upon completion, a member of Harvest AV Solu tions trained city staff on how to use the new system. The sound is crystal clear, and there is not a bad seat in the house.

The system was up and running on November 21, and only two days later, Prichard hosted national touring comedian, Dusty Slay-the first to use the new state of the art sound system. The new system has already been enjoyed by many and will help make Prichard a valuable community asset for years to come.
