'Classroom Christmas'
December 8, 1951

Now, says John Falter with his brush, something different enters the thinking and the feeling of people. In all sorts of symbolism it finds expression. Holly wreaths are woven and mistletoe is gathered. The little green trees are brought down from the woods. Shop windows glow; school windows are brightly decorated; before long, all the home windows will sparkle with the tinsel and multicolored lights and candles that are inside. Now the moods of everyone have less room than usual for tensions and worry and crossness, and there are more smiles than frowns, more cheery greetings that grunts, more happiness than melancholy in the air. Again, thank God, the world is exalted by that old, new blessing--the Christmas spirit.

Here Comes Santa Claus!

Santa's rules for staying on the nice list - you'd better not pout, you'd better not cry. And its hard to be good, for goodness' sake, when waiting outside for the big guy as a frigid ice storm pummels you from every direction. During this year's Falls City Chamber Main Street 'Home for the Holiday's' event, some parents opted to visit Santa at a later date, while the more brave parents brought their kids out to enjoy his ceremonious first visit, like Braxtyn Bauman, left, son of Jim Bauman and Karen Weaver, and an unidentified little girl who received the warmest gift a kid could get in the midst of a wintry November rain.. Luckily for those children who missed him, Santa Claus will be taking a break from his important toy-making duties to return to FC several different times prior to the big day.

Penalty to increase dramatically in '16 for those without health insurance

The Affordable Care Act's health insurance exchanges opened for business earlier this month. Now, millions of Americans who do not get coverage through work have the opportunity to shop for policies that will take effect in 2016.

But they only have a few months to do so. This open enrollment period will end on Jan. 31, 2016.

Those who currently lack insurance should sign up without delay. And those who have had coverage this year should investigate whether there's a better deal available to them for coverage that will kick in next year. Picking a plan can be complicated, but it's worth it -- and there's help available to ensure that consumers make wise decisions for themselves and their families.

There are many advantages to getting covered. The most important, of course, is that insurance ensures access to medical care. Robust coverage can be a life-saver in the event of a serious medical emergency.

But insurance also keeps people from having to pay the Affordable Care Act's penalty for not maintaining coverage -- a penalty that increases dramatically in 2016.

This year, those who were uninsured paid either $325 per adult and $162.50 per child, up to a maximum of $975, or 2 percent of their income -- whichever was greater. In 2016, those who don't secure coverage will pay much more. The per-person rates will more than double to $695 per adult and $347.50 per child, up to a maximum of $2,085. Wealthier uninsured will have to pay 2.5 percent of their incomes.

Additionally, federal tax credits subsidizing coverage are available through the exchanges for low-income individuals who need help paying for their policies. This year, 85 percent of those who bought private plans on the exchanges got financial assistance.

Buckminster wins IAA for design excellence for work on 19th Century apostle's chair from Mormon Temple

Buckminster Upholstery, of Falls City, was recognized with the 2015 International Achievement Award for design excellence in specialty fabrics applications for its work with an 1890 Turkish Rocker.

The piece is one of the original 12 apostle's chairs from the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake City, UT. It was passed down to the apostle's grandson from Tucson, AZ, who shipped the chair to Kim Buckminster for restoration to its original condition, based on archival photos. Over 300 hours were put into the project. Restoration included re-gluing and refinishing the white oak rocker base, extensive springing to the hand forged steel framework, plus many hours of hand stitching and sculpting horse hair and leather.

The chair was recognized in the competition's upholstery category. For more than six decades, IAA has recognized excellence in design and innovation, highlighting truly spectacular work in the specialty fabrics and technical textiles industry. The IAA competition is sponsored by Industrial Fabrics Association International, a not-for-profit trade association whose over 1,600 member companies represent the growing international specialty fabrics and technical textiles marketplace. IFAI received a total of 293 entries from 11 countries that were submitted for 31 categories in this year's competition.

Winners were selected based on complexity, design, workmanship, uniqueness and function. Judges included industry experts, editors, architects, educators and design professionals who were chosen for their knowledge in a particular field of study or product area.

This masterpiece is a milestone in celebration of 40 years in the upholstery trade and it's many other aspects of antique restoration. Kim has been in the trade for more than 40 years and has won numerous awards for his upholstery work. Specializing in traditional,

Millions of Americans in the Midwest, including myself, had to change their plans for Thanksgiving due to the weather. Last week I had a full column written about how terribly excited I was to head to Texas to visit family. Unfortunately, late Monday night, I talked it over with Brian and decided I wasn't comfortable driving all that way with the threat of an ice storm. I went back in to work, edited my column and tried to come up with an entirely new plan.

Since I wasn't going to be leaving on Wednesday, I decided to cook a little dinner for everyone at the Journal. I've been spending much more time in the kitchen lately and find it quite therapeutic to get lost in my own thoughts while cooking. I roasted a chicken, made garlic potatoes, rolls and a pumpkin pie. It was nice to sit in the office with the people I spend 75 percent of my time with and enjoy a meal. The excitement of the upcoming long weekend had put everyone in good spirits and made for the perfect way to end the short work week. The chicken and potatoes I made ended up being pretty good and I had them again for dinner, then again for a late night snack. This ended up being a big mistake because I was up at 7:00 a.m. on Thanksgiving morning with an upset stomach. Only I would think it's a great idea to eat a bowl of garlic butter potatoes loaded with sour cream at 1:00 a.m. I'm not sure if it was over eating, or what but I got sick. I spent most of Thanksgiving Day miserable. I missed all the dinners and sat alone throughout the day slipping in and out of sleep.

That evening, once water and solid food started to agree with me, I opened myself up to the idea of heading out to my aunt and uncle's house for some dinner and maybe a bit of Black Friday shopping. First, I had to run and get a newspaper so I could get my coupons and check the sales. When I got in my car, I saw that everything was glazed over with a sheet of ice. It took a long five minutes before I could see out my windows. I drove down Harlan Street and to the gas station knowing that I wasn't leaving town for dinner or shopping. It was a tough pill to swallow. Black Friday is my favorite holiday. It isn't the sales, the fighting or the rush of it all. For me, it's the time I get to spend with my family. My cousin Hannah and I usually sit with my Uncle Matt at his house and watch a movie as we wait for my sister to drop off her babies and come back to pick us up. Around midnight we head south to St. Joe with a car full of music, laughter and gas station junk food. We shop, we go eat mozzarella sticks and BLT's at 4:00 a.m. and we finish the day by running through Dunkin Doughnuts. I like to bring home six triple chocolate doughnuts for myself. I have to do it because I did it once and it was so good it turned into a tradition. I bring home the doughnuts, go to bed with the box next to me. I wake up a few times and eat a doughnut each time, there is no rhyme or reason as to why I do it but I do and I love it. I love it so much that I will never be a size four and that is fine with me. Usually we're home in time to hit the local Black Friday sales and it's a perfect end to a perfect day.

This year I didn't get that. I ended up falling asleep early, only to wake up every hour checking the weather to see if it was clear enough to go. I knew it wasn't going to suddenly warm up and thaw out, but my heart wanted it to so badly. I was up by 7:00 a.m., ready to mope though the day. Brian came to the rescue and said this year, as I had with everything else, I could just find the good in doing something different, and so I did. Brian offered to hit up the stores around town so I could get my shopping fix. So the guy who hates Black Friday and everything it stands for, joined me as I hit the local stores to get my shopping started. We came home and I finished the days shopping online, not exciting but something different.

That night I wasn't deliriously tired from being up over 27 hours straight. I sat and wrapped the gifts I did purchase while Brian, Alex and our niece Emma played games. We drank hot chocolate with marshmallows, listened to Christmas records and took it easy. It wasn't how I planned to spend my beloved Black Friday, but it was good, really, really good and I'll never forget it.

Nothing truly went my way this weekend and I assume many of you had the same experience I did. The ice put a bit of a damper on long thought out plans. I was miserable about not getting to do all the things I wanted to do or all the things I usually do, but I had the weekend I always say I want. We drove around town and looked at the ice covered trees and photographed their beauty. We drank more hot chocolate than we ever should have. We took naps, played games, watched old Christmas movies and slept in. It wasn't like any Thanksgiving weekend I've had before, but it was so good I don't even care that we broke tradition. I decided to play it safe and stay home for Thanksgiving and Black Friday and I'm so glad I did because if I hadn't, I would still be driving no more than 15 miles per hour through the state of Oklahoma at this very moment.

Gov. Ricketts' first year: Give credit where credit is due

Capitol View
By J.L. Schmidt
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

Beyond the contention, controversy and headlines, the real work of government gets done. As the calendar year draws to a close, let's take a look at the positives of Governor Pete Ricketts' first year.

In case we missed it while focusing on the high profile issues ranging from the death penalty to gas tax increases for road projects, I asked a Ricketts' spokesman to list a dozen accomplishments. Here is the list and what, in my opinion, the accomplishments mean.

—Worked with the Legislature to pass $408 million of property tax relief for the biennium and cut the rate of growth in spending to about 3.5 percent. That's keeping his promise of running government like a business. It came through a bi-partisan effort working with the Appropriations Committee to craft a budget that passed without a single veto. That's a first in some time.

—Improved call wait times at ACCESSNebraska call centers, bringing them below a new target of five minutes for the first time in years. This is a major accomplishment in a government department that has been hampered by a multitude of problems. People deserve a quick response when they are troubled enough to resort to calling.

—Led two international trade missions to introduce the new administration to Nebraska's trade partners and visit with them about growing our trade relationships. Trade missions have always been a favorite of governors. It's an opportunity to tout the state to a new audience — a global audience. That means more than just a good feeling about Nebraska. It can result in contracts that can bring jobs to both the agricultural and industrial sectors.

—Launched the Developing Youth Talent Initiative that will expose young Nebraskans to IT and manufacturing careers. This is an essential element for keeping young people from getting an education and leaving the state. It will be interesting to see if it works, but it's a step in the right direction.

—Launched online permitting for two kinds of permits with the Nebraska Department of Environmental Quality. This probably doesn't seem like a big deal, but it makes life easier for the folks who have to negotiate an area of red tape in a place most of us never go. If this is a test, perhaps more legal and technical dealings with government might be easier in the future.

—Launched a first-in-the-nation reemployment program offering individualized job search services. One size doesn't fit all and this is another opportunity for folks to see the caring side of government which - I am sure in many instances - people didn't even know existed.

—Announced that the Roads Department would be returning $3.3 million annually to counties and cities for roads projects. Have you ever said, "it's our money, give some of it back"? Well, there you go.

—Announced cost savings of $5.3 million over the next decade from centralizing services and eliminating waste. How many government computer servers are really necessary?

—Announced the largest restructuring of the National Guard in 20 years, creating additional career opportunities for our soldiers. Another change that has been a long time coming. There's more to it than just weekend drills.

—Announced the automation of sentencing calculation processes at the Corrections Department. A major step in the right direction following the embarrassment of more than a year ago when it was revealed that a lot of inmates had been erroneously released too early.

—Held approximately 20 town halls across the state to update Nebraskans on his priorities and listen to them. These are new for the Governor's Office. Caring enough to show up and do more than just cut a ribbon. Representative government at its finest.

—Recruited top talent through national searches to lead two agencies: Health and Human Services and Corrections. OK, so the national search for a director of the Department of Economic Development ended poorly (she was fired). But two out of three isn't bad. Turns out that the DED director hired was an administrator when the state wanted — as it should — a cheerleader.

THINKING ABOUT HEALTH

So much for dreaded ‘death panels,’ as 81% say Medicare should pay for end-of-life care

By Trudy Lieberman, Rural Health News Service

What a difference six years makes!

In 2009 at the height of the debate on the Affordable Care Act, New York’s former lieutenant government Betsy McCaughey appeared on television and made this startling remark: “Congress would make it mandatory-absolutely require-that every five years people in Medicare have a required counseling session that will tell them how to end their life soon-er.”

McCaughey said the proposed law would help the elderly learn how to “decline nutrition, how to decline being hydrated, how to go in to hospice care...all to do what’s in society’s best interest or in your family’s best interest and cut your life short.”

Her remarks, though false, played well in the media. Former GOP vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin showed up on TV to talk about “death panels” that she and others claimed would ration care at the end of life.

“No death panels” became a rallying cry for opposition to the health law. A man I interviewed at a Pennsylvania Wal-Mart that summer brought up the so-called death panels. “If people are going to die, he [Obama] is going to put them to sleep,” he told me. “It’s like Soylent Green (a 1973 science fiction movie). That’s his health plan.”

Another man I met outside a church in Scranton told me, “I am against a panel of doctors telling you when you can live and die.” When I explained that wasn’t what the law would do, he said he didn’t believe me.

If the death panel hysteria taught us anything, it’s that false beliefs die hard. Polls from the Kaiser Family Foundation conducted from 2010 through 2014 repeatedly found that 30 to 40 percent of respondents mistakenly believed that the health law established a government panel to make end-of-life decisions for Medicare beneficiaries.

In the wake of the political storm that followed the death panel hysteria, Congress dropped provisions in the ACA that would have paid doctors to counsel their patients about end-of-life treatment. Later Medicare tried to add such consultations to a package of proposed regulations but again scrapped the idea because as Oregon Rep. Earl Blumenauer, who championed the provision, told the New York Times, “The administration got cold feet and yanked it.”

But “the times they are a changin’ — With hardly a peep of opposition, Medicare announced in October that beginning next year it will pay healthcare professionals, including nurse practitioners, for discussing end-of-life decisions with their patients. In fact, Medicare said a large majority of the public comments on the proposal agreed the time has come for such consultations.

A new Kaiser poll found that about 89 percent of adults say doctors should discuss end-of-life care issues with their patients and 81 percent reported said they believed Medicare should cover those discussions. “Almost universally, people say doctors should be talking to their patients about this,” Lisa Hamel, who directs Kaiser’s public opinion research, told the Times. But when Kaiser asked people if they had had these discussions only 17 percent said yes. Half of those who had not had such conversations said they wanted one.

Americans are just not comfortable discussing death and care at the end of life. Medicare payments might just be the spark needed to make such conversations more likely. Doctors and other healthcare professionals will be able to bill Medicare $86 for the first half hour conversation in a doctor’s office and $75 for an additional 30 minutes. And if a doctor needs to talk later on about the subject, Medicare will pay again.

No one, however, should think those relatively small payments will instantly make it easier for seniors to have their wishes carried out. Even if they do what the doctor advises and set up powers of attorney, make advance directives, and fill out other documents that specify what kind of care they want or don’t want if they become incapacitated, the decision could be taken from them.

Families often complain that treatment decisions are still made by hospitals and doctors and that even when patients and their families say they don’t want extraordinary measures, it’s hard to buck the ingrained culture of medical professionals trained to do everything possible.

Still, we’ve moved way beyond where we were in that summer of 2009, and people preparing for the consultations with their physicians might want to consider the following:

- Keep your wishes up to date in legal documents.
- Have end-of-life discussions with your family before an illness strikes.
- Make sure the person with your power of attorney knows what he or she is supposed to do.

We’d like to hear about your end-of-life experiences with family members. Write to Trudy at trudy.lieberman@gmail.com.

Falls City Middle School has its very first Chess Club, with 13 members participating. FCMS, represented by Jacob Craine, Chris Yeatts, Marcus Liberty-Elder, David Kuker and Perry Adams, captured first place at the 15th Annual Omaha Central Meet, which hosted a total of 287 students from across Nebraska. Crain placed 2nd, Yeatts and Kuker each placed 1st, Liberty-Elder finished 3rd, and Adams placed 4th.

“We did not expect to finish in the team standings,” sponsor Jack Munford said. “We were really surprised when they approached us halfway through the individual presentations and asked us to stay. When the second place school was announced, we were stunned to realize we won 1st place in the team competition.

“We worked very hard this year to study several strategies and worked to help each student improve on their chess game. Their hard work and effort paid off at its competition. We are looking for additional middle school and high school players to join our club. We look forward to seeing new faces at every level and welcome any competition,” Munford said.

Seek to break up ‘public power monopoly’

A Nebraska organization has launched a new interactive website where Nebraskans can go to see an estimate of how much money they could save on their monthly electric bill if the state had competition for their ratepayer dollars. The website is www.NebraskaPowerToChoose.org

“Unfortunately, as we all know, Nebraskans don’t have competition for their electricity service. Nebraska has a public power monopoly that has a stranglehold on a service that in several other states has at least some competition for the ratepayer dollar,” said Michael Matheson, Executive Director of Wind Is Water, the organization behind the website.

“With the low electricity prices from the energy market, that is mostly due to low-cost renewable energy and low natural gas prices, Nebraskans are not receiving the benefits of lower cost electricity. In Nebraska, we are mostly stuck in the last century and huge rate increases since 2009 have increased rates more than they should have risen,” Matheson said.

Nebraskans have suffered several hundred million dollars in rate increases since 2009.

“This website provides a powerful tool that estimates how much money Nebraskans could save if they had the power to choose their own electricity provider,” Matheson said. “Consumers can go and compare what they are overpaying for today, with what a competitive provider could offer them if they only had the choice. If Nebraskans had access to choice and competition, along with that comes the kind of innovation that could offer consumers newer technology and tailoring their electricity charges to how they use that power in their home or business, and that would assist them in saving money or using their electricity more efficiently,” Matheson said.

“This is a non-partisan issue and one of simple fairness. The ability to choose works for all Nebraskans. If some Nebraskans want to be more empowered and in control of their own pocketbooks, then competition is the right way to go. If other Nebraskans want more environmentally-sound electricity generation, like wind and solar, then choice and competition will offer everyone the options they deserve, want and need, and if you are satisfied with your existing electricity provider, you can remain their customer,” Matheson said.

SOCIETY

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA

Alpha Kappa Chapter of Phi State of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International met Nov. 7 at the Spring Creek Golf Club House in Seneca, KS, and hosted by Barb Vitt and Betty Gleason.

The business meeting was conducted by Vice-president Glenda Foley. The Teacher Appreciation Committee reported that gifts will be given by individuals to teachers whom they choose. A personal note will be included with the gifts which will be given in March 2016.

The Spelling Bee Committee reported that Barb Vitt will pronounce the words and accepted offers from Becki Sherrow, Sue McAllaster and Karen Benson to be judges. Sue, Barb, Lucille Pennel and Ardis Huston will provide cookies.

A letter to Governor Brownback was composed by Alpha Kappa Chapter President Mary Parrish. After discussion, members made suggestions which Mary will consider in making a final draft which will be made available to members to send as they choose.

An application has been made for the current grant-in-aid. Karen Benson told of the impressive Welcome Home Ceremony for Vietnam veterans held at Ft. Riley on Nov. 7. The goal was to help provide closure for those involved.

Barb Vitt presented the program, "A New Vision for Kansas Education," as presented by Kansas Education Commissioner Dr. Randy

Watson, at the Kansas Dept. of Education's annual conference. He outlined this "new vision" for Kansas schools after getting input from community leaders in the state as well as Kansas employers. The new plan would put more emphasis on individual learning, career planning and readiness, and the development of both academic and nonacademic skills.

One of the goals of this plan would be to make Kansas schools more responsive to the expectations of communities and to the needs of the Kansas workforce. The vision is for Kansans to lead the world in the success of each student. Meeting the requirements of school is a good indicator that a student will be able to meet job requirements.

Education must be flexible enough to meet the needs of today's students and the future workforce. While academics are and will remain very important, students who lack non-academic skills, such as conscientiousness, perseverance and the ability to collaborate and communicate will struggle both in the pursuit of post-secondary education and in the work force.

Donations for the Bakeless Bake Sale were given to help fund the grant-in-aid. Lunch and social time followed.

The 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6, meeting at Dickey's BBQ in Falls City will again be a guest night.

HUMANE SOCIETY

The Humane Society held its regular monthly meeting Nov. 17 at the Sun Mart cafeteria. President Ardis Ramsey called the meeting to order, with eight members and three guests present. Prayer was offered by Pastor John Hogue. The secretary and treasurer's reports were given by Julie Phroper, and both were approved as read.

The Halloween party was a success; the Humane Society thanked all who helped and donated, especially FCTV and Elise Waller.

The bake sale at Shopko was held last weekend and Breezy Hill hosted a Thanksgiving dinner with all proceeds going to the Humane Society. T-shirts with our logo are currently available at Sportin' Falls City.

Kamdyn Huppert celebrated his fifth birthday by collecting dog and cat food instead of presents! "Thank you, Kamdyn!"

Three dogs were adopted — Missy, Odie and Chloe. Also adopted were three kittens, as well as Elsa, who went to share the lap of a sweet lady at Eastview. New arrivals, a yellow kitty named "Sawyer," and a brown Tabby were picked up.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, Dec. 15, at Sun Mart. All are welcome.

Hunters Help the Hungry with 530 lbs. of deer

Southeast Nebraska Community Action Partnership Nov. 20 received its first donation of the season from Den's Locker in Table Rock through the Hunters Helping the Hungry Program. SENCA Family Development Specialists will distribute the 530 pounds of ground venison to eligible households who utilize food pantries located throughout the six southeast Nebraska counties of Cass, Johnson, Nemaha, Otoe, Pawnee and Richardson.

Hunters Helping the Hungry was created in April 2012 with the Nebraska Legislature's passage of LB928 authorizing the deer donation program. According to information provided through the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission website, any whole field-dressed deer harvested and checked with a valid Nebraska deer permit is eligible for donation at any one of the contracted processors throughout the state.

During the first three years of the program, 2012 through 2014, hunters donated 971 deer totaling 47,891 pounds of ground venison that has been provided to economically challenged Nebraskan's throughout the state. For more information regarding distribution and eligibility please contact the SENCA outreach office serving your community or call the SENCA Central office at 402-862-2411.

Middle School Students of the Month of November

The Falls City Middle School Students of the Month for November were: Dillon Ebel, eighth grade, Shaylee Mackey, seventh, and Madilyn Scholl, sixth.

Each student received a T-shirt printed with the Student of the Month logo, compliments of Stripes and Signs. The Elks Club will sponsor a complimentary meal during Youth Week for all of this year's student of the month recipients and their parents.

To receive student of the month, students must first be nominated by one of their teachers. The criteria for nomination this year once again focuses on the 212 degree message. The teachers are continuously looking for the students that give the extra degree. This is an exemplary student who demonstrates extra effort and who internalizes the truth that is "Not enough to be good when you have the ability to be BETTER!"

The 212-degree student meets the following criterion: turns work in on time, demonstrates exemplary behavior everywhere, goes out of his or her way to help peers, earns good grades and/or shows improvement; always shows effort, is active and/or involved in the community, has garnered leadership accomplishments in academics, athletics or in the community, strong school attendance, a positive attitude toward others and school, is honest and trustworthy, cooperative and dependable, is helpful to teachers and considerate of other's feelings.

Teachers vote by private balloting. Those students who don't win are given honorable mention and are eligible in future months.

Madilyn, the daughter of Janelle and Chad Scholl, is a very responsible student who truly cares for her classmates. She is a regular on the honor roll, and also participates in chorus. Outside of school, Madilyn keeps busy with club basketball and Travelers Softball. She is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, ELCA, in Falls City.

Shaylee, the daughter of Karen Gunnarson and Jon Dunlap, is an active student who is polite and focused on doing her best in the classroom. She has received recognition for honor roll and ABBIT. Shaylee participates in band, chorus, show choir, volleyball and track. Outside of school, Shaylee is active in church activities.

Dillon, the son of Stacy and Jeff Ebel, is described as a strong and positive academic leader in the classroom. He is a regular on the honor roll and ABBIT lists each quarter. Dillon participates in chorus, football, wrestling and Circle of Friends.

Students who received honorable mention for November include: Summer Richey, Faith Zimmerman, Ali Ivey, Randall Richard, Hannah Clary, Helen Walker, Brittney Steinhauer, Sara Black, Ashlynn Strauss, Abby Harms, Courtney Rumbaugh, Tyler Uhri, Carson Simon, Abby Fritz, Makayla Mason, Makenna Pfohl and Kyle Eickhoff.

NEW ERA FOR NATIONAL GUARD

By Governor Pete Ricketts
November 30, 2015

Since 1854, the Nebraska National Guard has played a pivotal role in helping keep Nebraska safe and secure. Through the years, members of the guard have deployed overseas, supported local law enforcement, and provided disaster relief among many other important duties. For thousands of Nebraskans, the Nebraska National Guard has been a way to serve our state and country either full-time or while building a career in another field.

A couple of weeks ago, I joined Major General Daryl Bohac, Nebraska's adjutant general, to announce the first major realignment of the Nebraska Army National Guard in 20 years. These changes are the beginning of an exciting new era for the Nebraska Army National Guard, and will expand missions led by the guard in Central Nebraska and the Panhandle. The restructuring will create new opportunities for roughly 1,100, or about one in three, Nebraska Army National Guard soldiers located in units in 16 Nebraska communities across the state. This realignment is a part of a much larger national reorganization of the Army National Guard.

Realigning the National Guard in Nebraska is critical to ensuring that the guard's force meets 21st-century priorities. Over the next three years, the guard will dramatically expand opportunities for Nebraskans seeking to serve in the guard. For example, the guard will add new military police, field maintenance, and distribution units in Central and Western Nebraska. Previously, Nebraskans in these regions only had the option to serve in transportation companies – now, they'll have more choices than ever before. Expanded career opportunities are great not only for recruitment and retention within the guard, but they will also enhance response readiness for state and national emergencies.

This realignment will affect units in Lincoln, Omaha, Beatrice, Columbus, York, Hastings, Kearney, Grand Island, Mead, O'Neill, Broken Bow, North Platte, McCook, Sidney, Scottsbluff, and Chadron. During this realignment, existing armory and readiness centers are expected to remain open. Maj. Gen. Bohac noted at the announcement that the force structure changes give the Nebraska Army National Guard the rare opportunity to reorganize itself to provide greater opportunities for soldiers to receive training, offer improved promotion opportunities closer to home, and better serve the citizens of our state.

As we celebrate the 161st anniversary of the Nebraska National Guard during this holiday season, let's remember the service and continued sacrifice of the many Army and Air Guard members and veterans. During this season, we pray for the safe return of those serving overseas. I also encourage you to take the time to stop and thank the guard's veterans for their service to our state.

As always, if you would like to share your thoughts or feedback on this topic or any other, you are welcome to email my office at pete.ricketts@nebraska.gov or call 402-471-2244.

On Nov. 5, the Falls City FFA chapter traveled to the Lincoln City Mission for a community service project. The FFA officers and a few members helped with a coat drive sponsored by Raising Canes. The students sorted coats, picked up trash at the Mission gym, and helped with the Christmas festival. By the time the day ended, FFA members had worked three and a half hours of community service to help provide clothing for people for winter, a warm meal and a place to stay. "We can truly say we're thankful that we could make a difference in a life," FFA reporter Brooke Lotter said. Ben Bachman, his sons and grandsons in October sat down and spent some quality time with legendary Hall of Fame Husker Football Coach Tom Osborne. "It really was just an amazing deal," Mr. Bachman said. Stan Bachman, of Overland Park, KS, is seated on the left; and standing, from left: Greg Bachman, of Hiawatha, KS, Osborne, Ben Bachman and his grandsons, brothers Aaron, Cody and Reggie Johansen, and Eli Bachman, all of Falls City.

A Husker legend to the nth degree, 'T.O.' still makes time for the fans

By Reggie Johansen

If you're a Nebraska football fan, the years 1973-1997 are remembered as the epitome of Husker football. It brings to memory some of Nebraska's finest athletes such as Johnny "the Jet" Rodgers, Dean Steinkuhler, Mike Rozier and Tommy Frazier. But the name that stands out more than all of them is head coach Tom Osborne, the man who recruited and coached all those Husker greats. Osborne is known in the hearts of Nebraska fans across the world, especially to one Nebraska fan, my grandpa, Ben Bachman.

My grandpa started getting season tickets in 1964. Ever since then he has attended every game possible, including the National Championship games in the mid 90's. However, in the last few years he hasn't been able to go to Lincoln due to a battle with pancreatic cancer, and it was recently discovered that he has cancer in his lungs and liver also. But he makes sure to still watch every game from home, and cheers and tries to let the team know what they're doing wrong, even though they can't hear him.

My uncle, Greg Bachman, is also an avid Husker fan. And it just so happened that he knew a guy that knew a guy, no pun intended, that was an acquaintance of Coach Osborne. So he asked a favor of a sit down meeting with the legendary coach, just for fun. To my uncle's surprise, he received a phone call from Osborne just a few days later.

"Dr. Tom" said that he'd enjoy meeting my grandfather and his family, so in October, my two brothers, Aaron and Cody Johansen, cousin, Eli Bachman, uncles Greg and Stan Bachman, and my grandpa headed to Lincoln.

(The group met at Osborne's TeamMates Mentoring Program office at 68th and 'O' Streets.)

When the meeting started, my brothers, cousin and I waited outside while my uncles and grandpa went in to meet him. About 10 minutes later, we were invited in. Right away you could see that Osborne was a very sincere and knowledgeable guy. He learned we were a farming family and, to my surprise, he was very well-versed in agriculture, and actually even dabbled in corn and soybean market stocks. Then he asked me about Sacred Heart football. I told him of our success over the years, the 87-game winning streak, the state titles, and this year's success.

"I think I better call the NCAA and have them investigate you guys down there!" he said, chuckling.

The meeting lasted about an hour, and it was 60 minutes my grandpa will never forget.

"It was really just an exciting experience. He was a great guy to sit down and talk to and was very knowledgeable and open to talk about anything we wanted to talk about, including Husker football," my grandpa said.

"It was fun to listen to him talk about the '95 football team. It really was just an amazing deal."

My grandpa is a very special man to me; he's been kind of my stand-in dad since my father (Larry, aka "Reggie") passed away when I was just 10 months old. I will remember it until the day I die.

This article first appeared in the Fall 2015 edition of the FCSH School magazine, "The Spotlight."

*We'll all stick together,
In all kinds of weather,
For dear old Nebraska U*

While the happenings inside Lincoln's Memorial Stadium on fall Saturdays are less sure-fire than they once were, two certainties remain: All the seats will be taken and Butch and Dobeys will occupy a pair of them in the northwest corner. And while the some 92,000 "Greatest Fans in College Football" doggedly pass through the gates in time for the Tunnel Walk, the two "Greatest of the Greatest" are equally unwavering (unFaltering?) about encouraging their players when they exit the field. Dobeys was honored prior to last Friday's regular season finale against Iowa for attending every single Nebraska home game the past 50 years, beginning with a 14-10 victory over TCU in the 1966 season-opener. It was the 20th-consecutive sellout, played in front of 60,974. That streak stretched to 347 Friday - and Dobeys has been there for all but 19. That's not even the half of it. The truth is, she hasn't just seen every game - she's seen EVERY PLAY! Butch and Dobeys don't leave until the Huskers leave - win, lose, or even lose to K-State.

Not the victory but the action; Not the goal but the game; In the deed the glory.

The Journal will interview the Falls City-native Superfans Thursday and then let you know next week what it takes to be "The Greatest of the Greatest." (ED NOTE - They don't just let anyone through with Big Cletus Billy Bob Teeth and an Extreme Big Foam Butt.)

NRC names new Senior Resident Inspector at Cooper Nuclear Station

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission has selected Patricia Voss as the new Senior Resident Inspector at the Cooper Nuclear Station in Brownville.

“Patricia Voss’ technical experience and regulatory perspective will assist the NRC in carrying out its mission of protecting people and the environment and ensuring the safe operation of the Cooper Nuclear Station,” said NRC Region IV Administrator Marc Dapas.

Voss joined the NRC as a reactor engineer in 2007, after participating in a student internship with the agency. For the past five years, she has served as the Resident Inspector at the Monticello nuclear plant in Minn. Voss graduated from the University of Michigan with a Bachelor’s of Science degree in nuclear engineering and radiological sciences.

Each U.S. commercial nuclear plant has at least two NRC Resident Inspectors. They serve as the agency’s eyes and ears at the facility, conducting inspections, monitoring significant work projects and interacting with plant workers and the public. Voss joins NRC Resident Inspector Chris Henderson at the site.

The Cooper resident inspectors can be reached at (402) 825-3371.

Free Radon test kits

Radon is the odorless, colorless gas that is the second leading cause of lung cancer in the U.S., as each year up to 22,000 deaths are attributed to radon-induced lung cancer. In Nebraska, one out of every two homes tested has high radon levels, so it is important to test your home.

The SEDistrictHealthDept. offers free radon test kits in partnership with Community Medical Center. The kits are available by contacting the SDHD or at one of their traveling immunization clinics.

Testing takes 3-7 days and kits come with instructions and postage-paid packaging to submit to a lab. Radon test results can be checked online and if additional testing or radon mitigation is necessary, you can contact the Nebraska Radon Program online at www.dhhs.ne.gov/radon or by calling 800-334-9491.

To obtain a radon test kit or for more information contact Southeast District Health Department at 877-777-0424.

Husking corn in the fall of 1927 on the Henry C. Bull farm, Douglas County.

The 'bearly possible' corn-shucking tall tale

On Jan. 12, 1884, the North Loup Herald ran a story headlined, "Bearly Possible," in which editor N. H. Parks reported a visit to a local farmer who had a black bear that had been taught to shuck corn. While the story's conclusion suggests that Parks had crafted a tall tale, keeping a country newspaper going was often a daunting challenge. Journalists can be forgiven for thinking up ways to enliven their papers' otherwise generally bland fare of local news and patent insides. Off-beat stories were sometimes picked up by other state papers, providing an extra measure of publicity for the originating sheet. In this case, the Nebraska State Journal reprinted the bear story in its Jan. 17 issue.

"Mr. Candlemas McGowen, having read the statement in the Herald (Dec. 22, 1883) in regard to fast corn shucking, called at this office on Thursday and wished us to accompany him to his farm, which is about ten miles from town on Myra Creek, and said he would show us something in the corn-shucking line we had never even dreamed of. It was a raw, cold day, and we were loath to leave our warm hive, but when duty—that is, an item—calls, we will always be found at the front. We at once made up our mind to go along with Mr. McGowen and accordingly jumped into his lumber wagon and after a cold and jolting drive of an hour and a half, we arrived at our destination.

"Our new friend took us into his sod house, where he lives a bachelor life, and soon had a nice fire burning. After warming ourselves he piloted us to a 60-acre corn field nearby, which he informed us he had delayed shucking because it was a little soft, and he wanted it to freeze good and hard. We thought if anything would freeze it the little spell of weather we have just had would do it, and so told him. He never hinted at what he was about to show us. We entered the field of corn, and were soon made aware that someone or something was at work there.

Suddenly our guide gave a whistle and cried 'Here, Tom! Here, Tom!' Immediately appeared before us walking on his hind legs a huge black bear. Perhaps he looked larger to us than he really was, but he was a monster. We were not afraid—oh, no—but an irresistible desire took possession of us to get out of that corn field. Mr. McGowen ran after us—we thought he was the bear—and for some time it was nip and tuck. He finally caught us and assured us that bruin was perfectly harmless; that he was and had been his constant companion for five years, ever since he was a cub in fact, and that he had never shown any disposition to hurt anyone; that he slept with him and ate with him, and was his only pet. Duty called us, and we again entered the field.

"Now" said he, "I want to show you some corn shucking." Then he said to Tom, 'Shuck,' and Tom bounded away and we followed. A few rods distant was a patch that had not been touched and here Tom commenced work. He walked between two rows and shucked the corn on both sides of him with lightning rapidity. He used his long claws much better and faster than any man could use his hands, and while we timed him he shucked 600 ears of corn in 10 minutes. 'That,' said the enthusiastic McGowen, 'is what I call corn shucking.' And we were bound to admit that it was. Mr. McGowen informed us that his bear could shuck and carry out of the field 200 bushels of corn in 10 hours. We could not deny it.

"There is a bare possibility that this bear story will be doubted, but it bears on its face the mark of truth. Mr. McGowen was there, the bear was there, we were there, and the corn was shucked."

Keep poinsettias looking great through the holidays

Along with the fragrant evergreens and twinkling lights synonymous with the holiday season, poinsettias make up a key component of holiday decorating. Unlike holly and some of the other greenery that is commonly associated with the holidays, poinsettias do not naturally thrive in the colder temperatures. These plants originate in southern Mexico and were considered an exotic plant when first introduced to the U.S. by Joel Robert Poinsett, the first American ambassador to Mexico. Poinsettias can be fickle plants and ones that gardening novices may find challenging to maintain. The plants are comprised of green foliage, colorful (often red) flower bracts, and the actual flowers of the plants, which are the red or green button-like parts nestled in the center of the bracts.

Because they are a tropical plant, poinsettias can be damaged by exposure to low temperatures, even if they are only exposed for short periods of time. They should be wrapped and protected against the elements when brought home. For maximum plant life, poinsettias need to be placed near a warm, sunny window, or another area that has ample amounts of light. They thrive in temperatures between 60 and 75 degrees and should be kept away from warm or cold drafts.

Water the plant whenever the surface feels dry to the touch. Water until it drains out the bottom, but don't let the plant sit in water. Over- or under-watering can cause leaves to drop prematurely and wilt. If your home lacks in humidity, you may need to water the plant more frequently. Poinsettias do not need to be fertilized while the plant is in bloom.

The Ohio State University Extension says poinsettias can be reflowered the following Christmas, but unless a yearlong schedule of care is observed, the results usually are not good. You can speak with a gardening expert or consult online resources for the proper care schedule. Caring for a poinsettia year-round involves gradually drying out the plant and storing it in a cool location. The plant later will be moved outdoors and then back inside and pruned to keep a full shape.

Poinsettias are short-day plants, which means they flower about 10 weeks after the daylight shortens to about 12 hours or less. Therefore, to have the plant in full flower by Christmas, it will have to be kept in complete darkness between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. from the first part of October until Thanksgiving. Many people find the affordability of poinsettias makes it more convenient to buy new ones each year than try to foster regrowth.

Contrary to popular belief, poinsettias are not poisonous to humans or animals, but they should not be ingested due to the potential for allergic reactions. Poinsettias can help remove pollutants from indoor air, which is advantageous during the winter months when doors and windows are typically kept closed.

Select plants that have dark green foliage and no low or damaged leaves. This ensures the best success for keeping poinsettias looking healthy and vibrant throughout the holiday season.

Holiday entertaining without the hassle

(StatePoint) Rather than worry about the hassle of hosting this holiday season, prepare for visitors and entertaining with these tips and tricks.

Get a Fresh Start - Trying to prepare everything at the last minute when guests are knocking at your door creates unwanted stress. Instead, clean and prep the house a few days in advance. Quickly turn chores to checks on your to-do list. For example, use a dab of glue to fix the pesky towel rod in the powder room that keeps coming loose, or to repair broken handles on drawers and cabinets.

While you're making home improvements here and there, get organized for holiday guests by relocating your own coats from the hall closets, leaving room for your visitors' winter gear. If your guests are bringing appetizers or cocktails, clean out the fridge in advance to have ample storage space.

Don't Buy It, DIY It - Tired of hanging the same wreath on your door year after year? Create a new, modern focal point that can be used for multiple occasions. Spray paint a wooden wreath form and mini clothespins silver and gold. Once dry, adhere the clothespins to the wreath form in varying layers. Use an adhesive that dries instantly and won't leave you with messy glue gun strands, such as Crazy Glue's Maximum Bond No-Run Gel, which will give you time to decorate the rest of your home, rather than cleaning up your crafting space.

By flipping a few of the clothespins around on the outside, you can attach pictures of friends and family or holiday cards to create an eye-catching display.

Make a Game Plan - Seemingly daunting tasks can be fun if you're strategic and give yourself time to do them right. When it comes to shopping for your main course, avoid weekend crowds. The day of your event, set the table in the morning so that unforeseen events or last minute stops won't throw you off course.

Deck the Dinner Table - Rather than spending time and money shopping for expensive décor for each upcoming party, create your own one-of-a-kind centerpieces and place settings. Add flair to your tablescape by affixing decorative gems or outdoor sprigs onto napkin rings and handwritten name cards. A glue pen designed for delicate tasks, such as Crazy Glue's Precision Control Pen, is easy to hold and dries instantly. Guests will appreciate the personal touches, which will be sure to spark some dinner conversation.

Wrap it Up - Chances are you'll need some last-minute gifts for unannounced guests. Stock up on a few items with universal appeal. Jars of locally made preserves, decorative candles, wrapped soaps or bottles of wine are good to have on hand to make everyone feel welcome this holiday season.

'Tis the season to be festive, not frazzled. Keep guests -- and yourself -- happy with simple tips and tricks, and have time to relax and enjoy your get-together.

The annual County Government Day was held Nov. 16 at the Richardson County Courthouse. High school juniors from the three county schools — Falls City High, Falls City Sacred Heart and Humboldt-Table Rock-Steinauer received a day-long introduction to local government operations.

Lions Club drawing pulls down a cool grand

Dennis Meyer, of Falls City, won a 50-inch TV, Traci Hug, of Auburn, a Kindle Fire, and Ryan Larsen, of Falls City, took home a Blu-ray player at the Lions Club drawing held Saturday at the annual Craft Fair at Prichard Auditorium.

More than $1,000 was raised to fund the Lions Club Scholarships, which are awarded to seniors who plan on attending a trade or technical school or nursing program.

"Thanks to all who purchased tickets to support our scholarship fund," Lions Club member Chick James said.

Peru SAAC makes another donation to Project Response

For the past six years, Peru State's Student Athlete Advisory Committee has participated in the annual Make A Difference Day sponsored by the USA magazine. SAAC is made up of student-athletes representing the nine athletic programs offered at the College.

Each year, a competition has been held among the athletic programs to see which team could come up with the most winter season items on a proportional basis determined by their squad size. A deserving agency has been selected by SAAC and this year's recipient was Project Response that serves Nemaha, Otoe, Pawnee, Richardson and Johnson counties.

This year, SAAC decided to coordinate their effort during the College's Homecoming week instead of waiting until later in the month as there were no football games at home the last two weeks in October. Normally, the Make A Difference Day is the last Saturday in October.

Five bags of items were donated to Project Response representatives — Julie Hafner and Sandy Streit (a 1999 PSC grad). Making the presentation to Project Response representatives was SAAC Communications Director/Secretary Marisa Pribnow and fellow golf team member Jessica Weickert.

"SAAC determined again this year to help Project Response because it serves many people and families in the five-county area," Pribnow said. "The Project Response staff seemed to be very appreciative of the items donated."

In the competition among the athletic programs, the golf team claimed their first title by accumulating 182 points on items donated. The football team, thanks to the help of the Peru State Football Booster Club, was the top team in terms of total donations as they had 367 points. The other team totals included: Softball — 103, Cheer — 80, Men's Basketball — 71, Cross Country — 54, Women's Basketball — 50, Baseball — 47, and Volleyball — 23.

"The Student Athlete Advisory Council members are pleased with all of the donations given toward this project," SAAC president Chaz Dunn, a Falls City Sacred Heart graduate and the son of Joe and Jenny Dunn, said. "Also, I would like to thank Marisa and her teammates for their efforts as they did a nice job of coordinating the effort for SAAC."

"The members of SAAC and the entire athletic department realize the importance of doing community service which is part of the NAIA's Champions of Character Initiative," Bobcat Athletic Director Steve Schneider said.
