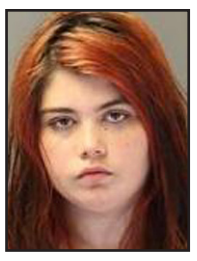
Missing FC teen being held in Omaha

By Molly Chapple

A 16-year-old Falls City girl reported missing earlier this summer last week was found in Omaha, according to her mother. She was taken into custody by Omaha police and is being held at a youth center and was scheduled to appear in court today.



Sarah Norton

Sarah Norton, of Falls City, went missing from her home at 212 W. 10th St. on Saturday, June 28, her mother, Veronica Hall, said. At the time, Sarah was serving house arrest in connection with past incidents of running away from home.

"I am relieved she was found and hope she gets the help she needs," Hall said.

Sarah was wearing an ankle monitor when she went missing, but the monitor was found hidden on the neighbor's property shortly after the girl's disappearance.

The girl failed to appear at a July 2 court date regarding her probation. She's due in court again on Aug. 18.

FC Aquatic Center hosts 54 for annual triathlons

By Jason Schock

The annual Falls City Aquatic Center Sprint and Super Sprint Triathlons hosted 54 athletes from surrounding states Saturday, including 15 from Falls City, event coordinator Denise Daake reported.

"It was a great day for a race," she said.

The theme — Because "I DID" is better than "I Will" — was printed on the back of each participants' T-shirts.

"For some of these athletes, they return each year, the other athletes, this was their first time competing here, while for others, it was their first triathlon," Daake said.

Lincoln Murdock, of Omaha, proved age certainly can be a state of mind as he not only won the 55-59 Male Division — one of the oldest available — he came across the finish line before any of the other 32 competitors in the Sprint Triathlon, an ultimate test of endurance that starts with a 300-meter swim, followed by a 15K bike ride north of Falls City along Highway 73, and finishes with a 5K run throughout the northern portion of Falls City.

Female Champion Miriah Lewis, of Raymore, MO, also outdid a solid collection of whipper-snappers, taking the title out of the 30-34 age group.

Tanner Cromer, of Falls City, crossed the finish line first in the Super Sprint Triathlon — a 150-meter serpentine swim, two-mile bike ride and one-mile run open to those 7-14 years of age. The son of Nick and Beckie Cromer ran in the 12-14 age group. The female champion was Thea Seibel, of Lincoln.

"This event can't be possible without the support of the Richardson County Emergency Management, The Sheriff's Dept., The Falls City Volunteer Ambulance, and the volunteers who take the time out of their morning to help ensure the athletes are safe and show them our hospitality of this town," Daake said.

"Thank you also to the sponsors who support this event each year.

"Save the date — July 25, 2015 — become a triathlete; if you feel that is too much, a relay team of three is an option," she said.

The relay team "Nebraska-Kansas Act," comprised of Beckie Cromer, FC, and Bruce and Rachel Whitten, of Topeka, KS, came in first, ahead of a FC relay team of Noala

Dickey's gets OK from Commission

Dickey's Barbecue Pit, 117 E. 17th St., in Falls City, was approved for a liquor license at a show cause hearing held with the Liquor Control Commission Thursday in Lincoln.

The restaurant, which opened last May, is owned by Witt &Witt Investments and operated by Rachel Witt.

Mrs. Witt appeared before the Falls City Council on June 2 asking for its blessing to sell beer with meals. The Council voted 4-1 to accept the request. Dickey's also reportedly has the approval from First United Methodist Church, which is located caddy corner (and within 150-feet) to Dickey's at 17th and Harlan Sts.

Main Street Falls City launching Lane Leadership Program

Main Street Falls City, Inc. and the Leadership Advisory Committee are pleased to announce the launch of the Lane Leadership Program for the Falls City area this fall, beginning in September. Applications for the first class are now being accepted.

The purpose of the Lane Leadership program is to identify and train Falls City area individuals for leadership roles by educating them on area issues, institutions and resources through a structured curriculum.

Over 50 Falls City area organizations will be showcased over the ninemonths, from September through May including manufacturers, businesses, educational facilities, and organizations associated with agriculture, commerce, the economy, energy and the environment, health and wellness, area human services and programs, recreation, heritage, education, communications and civic organizations, state and local government, and emergency services serving the Falls City area.

The program will 1) increase human capacity by developing individual leadership skills; 2) increase social capacity creating awareness of local, county and/or regional issues, as well as, state, regional and local resources and processes; 3) increase cultural capacity by examining assets that give the Falls City area a unique sense of place; 4) create a culture of collaboration through nurturing group dynamics and building a network of relationships with current participants, past and present leaders; and 5) provide an opportunity for each year's participants to incorporate and implement all they learn into a collaborative class capstone community development, community betterment project.

Lane Leadership is a two-year commitment. Year one, participants will be required to attend the full-day Orientation and Skills Training Retreat session on Sept. 18 and eight additional full-day sessions (from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.) the second Thursday of each month from October through May. Attendance at several board meetings (school board, city council, etc.) and active participation in a class capstone project are both an additional requirement, and both occur outside of the scheduled day sessions. The full program schedule with the session topics is available in the application. Each month, there is a different focus, and meetings include activities designed to increase community awareness, network with other leaders and build participants' leadership and board readiness skills.

Year two, participants must assist in coordinating a session for the following class, and if necessary, continue to complete their class project. In order to be eligible to graduate at the end of the second year, participants must have attended all sessions, the outside board meetings, provide active leadership coordinating a session in year two and be actively involved throughout completion of the class project.

Shawnna Silvius is consulting with the Leadership Advisory Committee helping create a customized program for the Falls City area. Silvius was a graduate of Leadership Kearney in 1997, which she used as a model to develop the Leadership Nebraska City (LNC) program in 2005. She coordinated and directed the award-winning LNC program for five years before turning it over to the alumni. The LNC program is in its tenth year and Silvius remains involved by providing skills training each year.

Silvius has witnessed first-hand many positive impacts a leadership and board-readiness program provides participants, businesses, organizations and communities. Whether the community gains direct improvements from class projects or whether from programs and efforts led by past participants pursuing their interests and passions using the skills and knowledge they gained from their experience throughout the program, communities benefit from informed and engaged leaders and people benefit as a result of a structured community leadership program.

"Specifically, Nebraska City has benefited from many aesthetic enhancing class and individual led projects, such as, downtown murals, a dog park, tree planting, community garden, benches on a park trail, a community-wide art project (which enhanced a community branding campaign), and even several long-term tourism and economic opportunities that resulted from clean-up projects at historic buildings, museums and park properties."

New programs, projects, activities and opportunities for youth and residents aimed at improving the quality of life for residents and visitors have also been

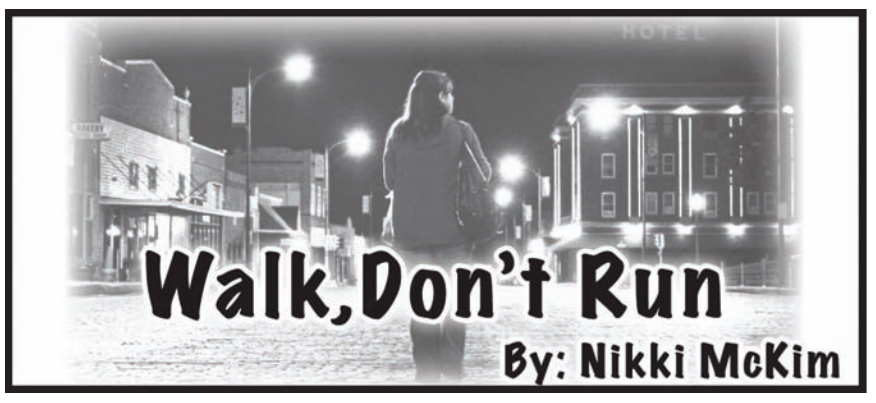
Gorgeous Rooms at Great Rates
Experience the past with the comforts of today



I have received a lot of comments regarding my last column. People e-mail, call or come up to me and say, "So you really disliked New Orleans didn't you?" I wouldn't say that I really disliked it. I would say that it's a very unique place to visit. I failed to mention on the great things that New Orleans has to offer.

I hold some very wonderful memories near and dear to my heart from our New Orleans trip. There is nowhere else in the world you can have a "Beignet" for breakfast as you sit along the Mississippi River. Two to three times a day we would find ourselves at the famous Café Du Monde. Some days we would walk to Jackson Square and sit with the pigeons and devour these little bits of heaven. The original Café Du Monde was established in 1862 in the French Market. The café is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week and only closes for the occasional Hurricane and Christmas Day. The menu consists of Coffee and Chicory, "Beignets", Milk, Iced coffee, soda, fresh orange juice and the amazing "Café Au Lait." The moment we stepped into New Orleans we fell in love with the "Beignets". A "Beignet" is a fried piece of dough covered with powered sugar. I like to describe it as a heavenly mix between a doughnut and funnel cake. At the original location in Jackson Square we could watch the performers entertain crowds of tourists. Some days we would watch pigeons land all around us and devour the powered sugar left behind. There are more pigeons with powered covered feet and beaks in New Orleans than you could ever imagine. We frequented another location a bit closer to our hotel that sat along the river walk. We would sip our "Café Au Lait's" and devour a few orders of Beignet's as we watched barges and tugboats go up and down the Mississippi. It was the most amazing way to start the day.

One rainy afternoon we took the $2.00 ferry across the Mississippi to Algiers Point. We had a great lunch in a quiet little restaurant and enjoyed an amazing view of Saint Louis Cathedral from across the river. The skyline from Algiers Point is truly breathtaking. Back in the city down in Jackson Square the view of the Cathedral and the park is beautiful, especially with all the horse carriages sitting out front. There are moments when the traffic is quiet and you could almost forget its 2014. Along some streets you see the gas and electric lanterns line buildings and its everything you want New Orleans to be.

The best thing about the city is obviously the food. The moment we stepped off the airplane we decided we would only eat things that we couldn't easily get here in Nebraska and that is exactly what we did. We feasted on Crawfish, PoBoy's, Gumbo, "Jambalaya", raw oysters, fried oysters, "grits", Alligator sausage, "Étouffée" and crab cake. I would be lying if I told you I didn't miss red meat. The moment we landed in Kansas City the race was on to find a cheeseburger. Within 15 minutes of leaving the Airport we each had a couple of the greatest cheeseburgers we've ever had.

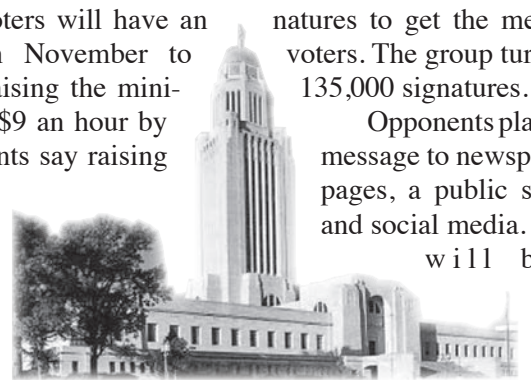
On our final day in town Brian and I found our favorite place in all of New Orleans. Music Legends Park and Café Beignet. The park houses a number of bronze statues honoring a few of the city's artists and performers including: Al Hirt, Pete Fountain, Fats Domino, Chris Owens, Ronnie Cole, and Louis Prima. As you venture further in to the park you find Café Beignet. The last night of our visit we sat for hours in the park listening to Steamboat Willie perform Jazz hits as well as Sinatra classics and inhaling "Beignets" as if it were our last day on earth.

Anywhere you visit you will see both the good and bad. Some people's opinions of what is good and what is bad are different. I unfortunately witnessed more of the bad than the good on this trip. It doesn't mean we didn't have a great time. The wonderful things we were able to experience are memories I would never trade for anything. The night we spent hours listing to jazz, as the sweet smell of "beignets" floated around us was magical and makes me smile every time I think of it. I honestly believe I would go back for the food alone. In my opinion New Orleans is a once in a lifetime kind of place you need to visit and see for yourself, just make sure you bring be back a few boxes of "beignet" mix.

Opposition forming to ballot question on minimum wage

Capitol View
By J.L. Schmidt
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

Nebraska voters will have an opportunity in November to weigh in on raising the minimum wage to $9 an hour by 2016. Proponents say raising the minimum wage would allow more Nebraska families to make ends meet. Opponents say it will be a burden to small businesses and will force them to increase prices or lay off staff to make ends meet.



State Senators Jeremy Nordquist of Omaha and Danielle Conrad of Lincoln spearheaded the statewide drive to petition the matter onto the ballot after lawmakers failed to pass a bill that would have increased the wage from $7.25 an hour – which is also the federal minimum wage – to $9 making Nebraska the 22nd state to raise the minimum above the federal standard.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Nebraska ranked 13th-highest for the percentage of hourly workers making at or below minimum wage and second highest among neighboring states. Voters approved minimum wage increases in 2006 in Colorado and Missouri and four other states. State officials in four more states also raised the minimum wage. The rates in border states Colorado and Missouri are $8 and $7.50 respectively. Washington State has the nation's highest at $9.32. Seattle has a minimum wage of $15 per hour.

Nebraska Taxpayers for Freedom spokesman Doug Kagan admits that opposition to the measure, following a successful grassroots petition effort to get it on the ballot, will be difficult. Similar proposals have been overwhelmingly successful in other states. He says the campaigns against those efforts have been weak, but he hopes the effort in Nebraska will be stronger.

Kagan says increasing wages will result in an increase in the cost of goods and services, an increase that can only be passed on to consumers. In labor-intensive industries, it will be hard to keep a strong employment force.

Low unemployment in Nebraska has created a labor shortage, which naturally pushes wages higher, thus negating the need for the ballot approved increase.

A lobbyist for the Nebraska Federation of Independent Business says raising the minimum wage hurts employment and often results in the lowest-paid employees losing their jobs. He cautions that an increase in the minimum wage, particularly on the heels of a recession, simply adds cost to the bottom line for already struggling small businesses.

Nordquist argued during the waning days of the legislative session that Nebraska's middle class is shrinking and the median household income is shrinking along with it. When efforts by lawmakers failed to advance the bill on a 20-20 vote, Nebraskans for Better Wages was formed and paid petition circulators between $10.50 and $12.50 an hour to collect the necessary 80,000 signatures to get the measure before voters. The group turned in nearly 135,000 signatures.

Opponents plan to take their message to newspaper editorial pages, a public speaking tour and social media. The message will be the impact of increased wages on small business and the layoffs and closings that could follow if labor costs soar.

Proponents simply say that it's time to raise the wage, which has not been increased since 2009. They cite what they call continuing poverty and the struggle for single parents to survive.

Increasing the minimum wage is an admirable goal. But, who knows what the right minimum wage is for each business? Who knows what the breaking point will be for each business? Counting the cost of raising the minimum wage makes sense. Let's hope that voters consider the issue carefully before marking their ballots.

FROM THE COMMUNICATIONS OFFICE OF
GOVERNOR DAVE HEINEMAN
WWW.GOVERNOR.NEBRASKA.GOV

Dear Fellow Nebraskans:

We are blessed to live in a state with abundant water resources. However, there are times when the state experiences flooding or drought conditions. When our water resources are stressed, Nebraskans have always looked for common sense solutions. In times of drought, we look for ways to conserve our water resources and when flooding occurs neighbors come together and help each other.

July 16th marked 10 years since LB962 - the Nebraska Ground Water Management and Protection Act, became law. The last decade has seen significant progress in managing our surface water and groundwater resources through an integrated management planning process. This planning process brought together local natural resources districts and the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources to work in partnership with stakeholders to develop integrated management plans. This process works to develop practical solutions to difficult water challenges.

The Nebraska Department of Natural Resources and local natural resources districts work collaboratively in areas like the Upper Platte River Basin and Republican River Basin to turn what many have thought were insurmountable challenges in 2004 into great success stories in less than a decade. This collaboration illustrates that when Nebraskans work together we can solve our problems.

Legislative Bill 962 also provided provisions for proactively identifying future potential conflicts so that a planning process can be put into place before more difficult water challenges emerge. This process of proactive evaluation has been significantly advanced by the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources and local natural resources districts as demonstrated by their efforts to upgrade groundwater models, data, and hydrologic tools to support future wise water management decisions.

Over the past several years, modifications have been made to LB962 including provisions requiring the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources to forecast water supplies in the Republican River Basin. This forecast provides local natural resources districts a critical piece of information that they need to proactively manage the groundwater resources to address potential interstate compact shortfalls before they happen.

Another important modification has been the inclusion of provisions for a voluntary integrated management planning process. To date, eight natural resources districts have chosen to voluntarily initiate the integrated management planning process. With these eight districts, in addition to the ten natural resources districts with required integrated management plans, over three-fourths of the natural resources districts within Nebraska are now participating in the integrated management planning process.

Our farmers and ranchers continue to do their part in water management through improvements in efficiencies and technologies in how water is used. Farmers continue to make significant strides in implementing new irrigation technologies such as monitoring real-time soil-water moisture and water application.

Most recently, I signed LB1098 into law increasing the membership of the Natural Resources Commission and providing guidance for the governance of a new fund, the Water Sustainability Fund. I appointed eleven new Commission members representing a variety of water interests on May 15, 2014, increasing membership from 16 to 27 members.

The goals of the Water Sustainability Fund are (1) to provide financial assistance to programs, projects, or activities that increase aquifer recharge, reduce aquifer depletion, and increase streamflow, (2) to protect against threats to our drinking water, (3) to provide increased water productivity and enhance water quality, and (4) to assist in continuing to meet our compliance obligations under interstate compacts and agreements.

The Water Sustainability Fund was provided $21 million of state funds on July 1, 2014, and $11 million of state funds will be transferred to the fund each year thereafter.

The foundation of integrated water management plans, sound science, and funding has set Nebraska on a very bright path for ensuring that our water resources will be effectively managed now and into the future.

developed. "The Nebraska City Youth Football Association and football program, as well as, the youth cheerleading programs were goals and visions of two graduates. Numerous fundraising campaigns for park improvements, non-profit organizations and community enhancement projects have also been inspired by or lead by past graduates; and, the long-term outcomes are continuing to be realized from these efforts. Several grads have run for political and elected positions serving on city council and school board, on a school bond initiative, and many have been appointed by our previous and current mayors to various city boards, committees and special projects. Most everyone has taken on director positions serving on boards and various committees across the community."

Silvius says those participating in the Lane Leadership program will gain similar experiences and benefits as they learn about the history of their community, get access to the "behind-the-scenes" operations of many businesses and organizations, learn about the development process, identify their personal mission and interests which help direct their involvement, learn about issues and challenges of interest to them, and identify volunteer opportunities available in Falls City and the area to plug in and utilize what they take away from their experience.

The overall funding for the program is from contributions from Main Street Falls City, Inc., area businesses and individuals. The tuition fee to participate is $200 per participant. Similar programs across the state require $350-$3500 tuition. Individuals or employers may fund the participant tuition. Supportive employers allowing time off for the required sessions is essential. The 2014-15 class is limited to ten adults age 18 and up, residing or working in Falls City or the surrounding area.

Individuals interested in becoming more involved in the Falls City area are encouraged to submit a completed application. Applications are available at the Main Street Falls City/Chamber office, online at http://fallscityareachamber.com/lane-leadership and at the Falls City Library and Arts Center after Aug. 1.

Applications are due into the Main Street Falls City/Chamber office no later than 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 29, 2014. For more information about the program, contact David Branch at directorccms@sentco.net or call 402-245-4228.

"THANK YOU NUMBER TWO"

By Rod Vandeberg

By Rod Vandeberg

I remember that when Coach Tom Osborne used to be a bit distressed, the harshest word he would ever use was "dadgummit!"

Well, "dadgummit", I am distressed because in my "thank you" in last Tuesday's Journal, I forgot to say "thank you" to three very wonderful ladies who should have been at the top of my list!

So, here goes and I hope the three of you will forgive me because I have no excuses for forgetting you.

First, to my dear friend, Barb Parrish, who put my newspapers and mail in my kitchen every single day, "thank you" very, very much! As most of you know, they don't come any better than Barb, and I am so fortunate to call you my dear friend! Thank you again Barb!

Second, and Barb offered to do this too, but "thank you" to my wonderful neighbor to the east, Jill Meyer, who insisted on keeping my plantings in front of my home watered! Jill, they look absolutely great and I really appreciate your help and friendship! Thank you again, Jill!

And, finally I "thank" B.K. Brott, my wonderful neighbor across the street, for backing Jill up with the watering! B.K., you are the greatest and I really appreciate your help!

Interestingly, when I returned home, and since I am alone, my daughter, Lori, insisted that I sign up for "LifeLine", so here came the very nice Peg Adams from Community Medical Center who quickly got me hooked up and I now wear what looks like a watch on my right wrist. And, would you like to know who my three responders are? Barb Parrish, Jill Meyer and B.K. Brott! Thanks again guys!

Very Sincerely,
Rod Vandeberg

Evan Bailey, son of Tim and Stacey Bailey, recently celebrated his 7th birthday and instead of asking for gifts, asked for donations to the Richardson County Humane Society. He found his best furry friend at the shelter, and puppy "Hugo" is now a happy member of his family.

Stenberg warns of misleading postcards

Postcards stamped on the fronts and backs with the words, Unclaimed Property Notification, are not being sent by the Nebraska State Treasurer's Unclaimed Property Division, State Treasurer Don Stenberg said today.

The postcards instruct receivers to call a toll-free number and enter personal identification information. The recorded message at the toll-free number instructs receivers to search for unclaimed property at www.unclaimed.org

"These cards are not being sent by the Nebraska State Treasurer's Office, and the website mentioned when receivers call the toll-free number is not the State Treasurer's website," Stenberg said. "I recommend that Nebraskans who have received these postcards not call the number on the card or respond to the card in any way.

"We continue to encourage Nebraskans to check for unclaimed property at our website at www.treasurer.org or by calling our office at 402-471-8497 or 877-572-9688 toll free," Stenberg said.

Stenberg said Nebraska's Unclaimed Property Division has received complaints and inquiries about the postcards. The National Association of Unclaimed Property Administrators and unclaimed property administrators in other states also have reported receiving consumer complaints over the past several weeks regarding the postcards, which are postmarked from Denver, CO.

A NAUPA spokesman said the cards appear to have been sent by a debt collector. They have shown up in a variety of solid colors – green, blue, yellow, and orange.

"I want to assure Nebraskans that these misleading postcards are in no way related to the work of the Unclaimed Property Division of the Nebraska State Treasurer's Office. My staff works diligently to promote our unclaimed property program through clear, consistent messages that Nebraskans can trust. I encourage all Nebraskans to contact my office if you have any question about any unclaimed property correspondence or phone call that you have received."

VFW Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars met July 7 at the Legion Club. The meeting was called to order by president Karla Capps. The opening ceremonies were led by chaplain Sharon Sells. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Treasurer Charlotte Gentry gave the treasurer's report and it was approved. Treasurer Charlotte reported membership standing of 20 life and 94 continuous members.

Some plans were made for the district meeting to be held Aug. 27 in Falls City. All other plans will be finalized at the August meeting. Some plans were made for the Cobblestone Festival. Bills were paid. Anniversaries and birthdays were honored. Karla Capps had the anniversary and Sharon Sells had the birthday. The meeting closed with prayer to reconvene Aug. 4 at 6 p.m. with a potluck to celebrate the club's birthday.

Concordia Guild

Thirteen members and five guests, Kristen Holder, Ramona Godemann, Karson Simpson, Glenda von Behren and David von Behren, attended the July 21 meeting of Falls City Chapter of Concordia Guild of Seward.

Vice President Connie Rowland called the meeting to order and Ruth Groothuis introduced the program speaker, David von Behren, student home for the summer from Cleveland (OH) Institute of Music.

David gave a presentation on his travels to Europe this summer. He was invited to study with the Harvard University Organ Society, and the group of 10 spent two weeks learning, playing and performing in Canada, France and the Netherlands. During their time in Montreal and Paris the students had the opportunity to perform French pieces on organs in major cathedrals and also traveled to the Palace of Versailles, France, to play in the Royal Chapel. The second week of study was spent in Amsterdam, Netherlands, and included playing on the historic organs in the surrounding area. Throughout the two weeks, David and other members of the Harvard Organ Society had the opportunity to participate in master classes with world-renowned organists. David concluded his presentation saying he was happy for the opportunity and looks forward to more time studying overseas.

Following the program, Connie Rowland gave the devotion for the day based on 1 Corinthians 14:33. The devotion closed with prayer.

She then called the business meeting to order. Minutes of the April meeting were placed on file. Marleen Mehlin gave the treasurer's report. The nominating committee, Norma Roland and Dorothy Vollmer, reported that all current officers were contacted and would return: Jan Huebner, president; Connie Rowland, vice president; Ruth Groothuis, secretary, and Marleen Mehlin, treasurer.

The next meeting will be at Zion Lutheran Church, Pawnee City, on Oct. 20 at 1:30 p.m.

Muriel Docker and Norma Roland were the auctioneers for the food and craft auction after which the group enjoyed refreshments served by Marjorie Eames and Ruth Groothuis.

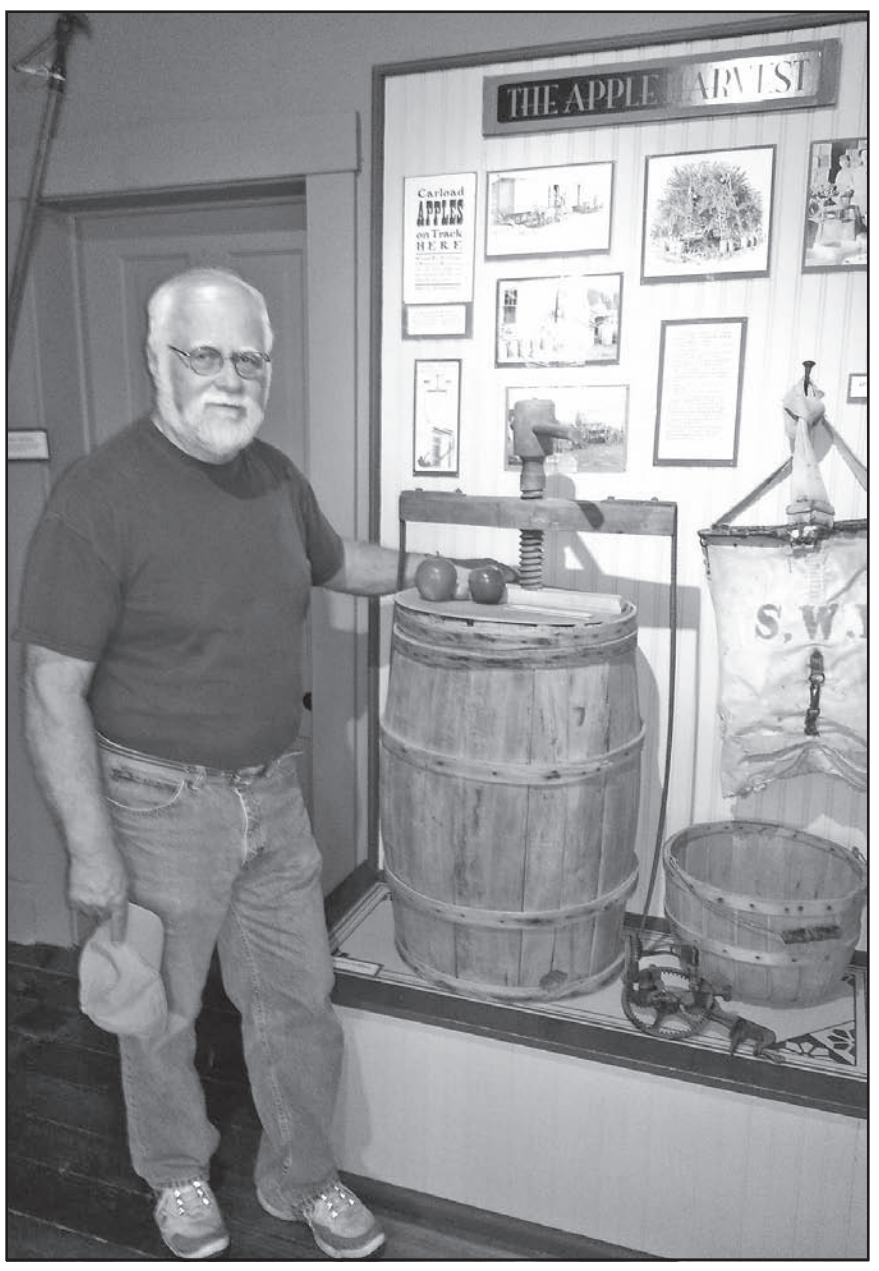
Forever classmates. From left, Debbie Wisdom White (Manhattan, KS), Joyce Chandler Armbruster (Rulo), Vera Duerfeldt Ploeger (Falls City), Janet Allen Beach (Horton, KS) and Marcella Honea Cavaness (Bonner Springs, KS). Their T-shirts read: "Sisters sharing lives, holding hands, loving hearts, then, now & forever." When the Falls City High School class of l974 meets this weekend for their 40th reunion, these five members who have remained friends for over 50 years will be among the classmates. Debbie and Joyce started kindergarten together, Marcella came in the lst grade, Janet came in the 6th grade and Vera joined them as a freshman. On graduation day, Debbie's mother told Janet and her that they probably would grow apart as the years passed by. But that has not been the case. They have been close friends the past 40 years spending weekends together one or twice a year, making phone calls and sending emails.



Artist William Coulter, pictured, has redesigned the Gov. Furnas House Museum in Brownville, complete with displays and artifacts pertaining to Furnas' career in Nebraska.

New hours for Furnas House Museum

The Brownville Fine Arts Association announces new hours for the Gov. Furnas House Museum for the summer of 2014 of 1-4 p.m. Thursday through Sunday until Sept. 28. Tours are also available at other times by appointment. The house has been completely redesigned as a true museum by artist William Coulter, complete with displays and artifacts pertaining to every facet of Furnas' career in Nebraska including the governorship. Governor Furnas lived in the house in Brownville from 1878 until his death in 1905 at which time he was buried in Brownville's Walnut Grove Cemetery.

In March, 1856, Mr. Furnas came to Brownville, NE, bringing with him a printing press and outfit and again ventured into the journalistic field. He established, published and edit the Nebraska Advertiser, which is still published in Nemaha County, and in 1868 published and edit the Nebraska Farmer, the first agricultural paper edited in Nebraska. He served in the territorial Legislature, Union Army, as Indian Agent, as Governor, on the State Board of Agriculture, on the first board of regents of the University of Nebraska and much more.

Visitors can tour the upper level museum, the lower level living quarters with period furnishings, the Gov. Furnas Arboretum including the bronze statue of the Governor planting a tree by the celebrated artist Tom Palmerton and his unique grave site at the Walnut Grove Cemetery (all within walking distance).

For more information or appointments for tours, please call Jan Chism Wright at 402-825-4992. Enjoy a little Nebraska History on your summer vacation.

I didn't know I had so many friends, but I am grateful to have you all. Thank you for helping me celebrate my 85th birthday. I'd just like to say that I got to spend time with a lot of old friends and a lot of new friends and I love you all. I hope when I have my 90th in five years that all of you and a few more can be there to help me celebrate again.

Sabetha Christian Women's Club

The Sabetha Christian Women's Club held its July brunch on July 8 at the Buzz Steakhouse in Sabetha. About 40 ladies were in attendance for the morning's themed program: "The American Dream."

We mixed things up a bit by having the music before the meal. Sabetha's Jackie Rokey shared her beautiful voice with some patriotic songs. Just before the delicious meal was served, Jackie sang a stirring version of "Lord, I Need You."

Chairwoman Alice Zahner introduced the speaker, Jean Ramsey. In "A Fairy Tale Life" Jean shared some lessons she has learned throughout her life. On the surface Jean's life has been pretty good – her parents never divorced, she has been married for 44 years, and has been blessed with three healthy children. But every life or story has 'bumps'. For Jesus said, "When you have trouble…" not "If you have trouble…" What a comfort to know that God is with us – in good times and in bad. As Jean ended her presentation, she requested Jackie to sing "Lord I Need You" to close the meeting. We thank both of these talented ladies for coming to share their gifts with us.

Our next brunch will be at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 12. The theme for the morning will be "Piecing it All Together." Frieda Wagner and Mary White from "Creative Collectible Quilts & Crafts" in Humboldt will join us. Kristi Burchfiel will join us from Wichita, Ks to present "When Best Laid Plans go Awry."

A morning of food, information, and encouragement — all for $8. We sure hope your summer schedules will allow you to join us. Reservations are needed, so call Marcia Adams at (785)284-2299 by Thursday, Aug. 7, if you plan on attending. There is a free nursery available with prior reservations by calling Linda Whittaker at (785) 284-2075 by Friday, Aug. 8.

Anybody interested in joining or starting a Stonecroft Bible Study can contact Jocelyne Strahm at (785) 284-3133.

Nine members and six adults were present. Sarah Thiltges read the secretary's minutes and Kathryn Bieker read the treasurer's report. Upcoming events were announced.

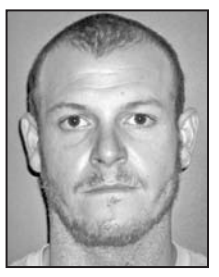
Shubert man, 28, accused of strangling girlfriend, threatening her with knife, gun



Lucas L. Vice

A 28-year-old Shubert man was arrested on suspicion of terroristic threats, strangulation and use of a firearm to commit a felony last Wednesday and is still being held in the Richardson County Jail.

Lucas L. Vice, 28, allegedly assaulted girlfriend Bailey Jones at their home in Shubert over a period of several days. Richardson County Sheriff Randy Houser responded to a call in which Jones claimed that Vice had strangled and threatened her with a knife and a firearm.

Vice appeared in Richardson County Court following his arrest Wednesday, where cash bail was set at $75,000 — percent allowable. His arraignment is scheduled for Aug. 11.

One accused burglar enters plea agreement; another accused of stealing gun from parents

Keith Ferris

David "Ryan" Davis, 31, of Falls City, entered into a plea agreement with the Richardson County Attorney last week and in District Court plead no contest to a misdemeanor charge of theft by unlawful taking or disposition in connection with a September 2013 burglary at J.P.'s Butcher Block in Rulo. Sentencing is set for Sept. 2.

Davis was orginally charged with a felony count of burglary after authorities alleged he stole the cash drawer from the Rulo business.

Davis still faces a felony burglary charge in connection with a break-in at the former Mickelberry Meat building (800 block of E. 5th St.).

Another Falls City man already accused of felony burglary is now facing additional felony charges after police say he stole a pistol from the home of his parents.

Keith Ferris, 29, is accused of stealing a .22 caliber pistol from a locked safe inside the home of Jeff and Tina Ferris in the 800 block of Pacific Street some time in late June or early July. Last week the convicted felon was charged with burglary, a Class III Felony, and possession of a firearm by a prohibited person, a Class ID Felony. If convicted, Ferris faces a minimum of three - and maximum of 50 - years in prison on the firearm charge alone.

In leading the Falls City Travelers to the championship of the USSSA Class C World Series title July 20 in Topeka, KS, catcher Brooke Scheitel, left, was named Defensive Player of Tournament and shortstop Syd Armbruster was the Most Valuable Player. (EDITOR'S NOTE - In its reporting of the Travelers' triumph - as it, regrettably, also did a week prior in detailing the team's runner-up finish at the ASA Class B State Tournament in Norfolk - The Falls City Journal referred to the standout shortstop as Syd Merz, an athlete chronicled regularly in these pages in the latter years of the previous century. The writer responsible apologies for the error and offers no reasonable explanation. - J.S.

UNL Extension

WHAT ABOUT INSECTS IN TREES?

By Gary Lesoing, UNL Extension

It appears several insects are showing up in trees this year. The oak lace bug is usually common in area, and may be identified as feeding on your oak trees. Healthy trees can usually withstand feeding from oak lace bugs without treatment with an insecticide. Some people have seen a few bagworms. They are later than usual this year and can be showing up on coniferous trees and shrubs, such as junipers, red cedar, arborvitae and spruce. There are several types of sprays that can be used for control the bagworm this time of year. If you want to use something natural, BT is effective in controlling bagworms and can be purchased as Dipel from most garden centers. The small larvae can be controlled chemically by Sevin, Eight, DeltaGard, Orthene or malathion, among other things.

Another pest very similar to an insect that is again causing problems this summer is the spider mite. Spider mites are usually a problem on some of the cedar and spruce trees each year. People have seen them this year as well. If left untreated, they could kill a small evergreen tree. Trees infested with spider mites turn a yellow or bronze in color. Spider mites are very tiny, being only about 1/50 inch when adults. Many are web producing and will coat the foliage with a fine silk web that collects dust and gives it a dirty appearance. For control of the spider mite, the use of horticultural oil and insecticidal soap are a couple of the safer methods of control. These products work by contact only, so thorough coverage of the plant is important.

Some insecticides are classified as weak miticides but are available over the counter. These include Orthene, Kelthane and malathion. There are also miticides available to use for control, with some being restricted use chemicals. Whatever product you use be sure to follow label directions. Check your local garden center for products available to control spider mites. We have a guide that provides control measures for several pests and also individual guides that discuss specific control of pests.

Feel free to contact me at the University of Nebraska Extension office in Nemaha County (402) 274-4755.

WILL SOYBEAN APHIDS BE A PROBLEM THIS YEAR?

Is there potential for aphids in soybeans this year? Several years ago we had a late season infestation of soybean aphids and some producers treated fields late in the growing season as soybean aphids reached economic threshold levels in southeast Nebraska. The cool temperatures we experienced last week were conducive to soybean aphid population increases, but this week the hot temperatures we have had to date and our expecting to have, should slow down or stop aphid reproduction. Aphids usually do not start populating in southeast Nebraska until July. It is just important to scout fields to see if you have an infestation and then monitor the population. It is also important to observe the number of natural predators of aphids in your soybean fields, i.e lady bugs and/or lacewings. Treating fields early for convenience if populations are not at threshold levels or just for convenience is a waste of time and money and you may kill natural predators of the soybean aphids and actually have to treat again.

If we have high temperatures (90 degrees or higher) the remainder of July and in August, this will help to limit population increases. While I have not identified any soybean aphids in soybean fields yet in southeast Nebraska, remember soybean aphid populations can increase at extremely high levels under favorable conditions. Ideally soybean aphid population increases are fastest when temperatures are 70-800 F. Populations can double in 2-3 days. If we have a period of cool weather conducive to soybean aphid growth and development in August, soybean aphids could reach economic threshold levels. The economic threshold for treatment of soybean aphids is 250 aphids per plant average for a field (25 plants) with the population increasing. This is generally for soybeans through the R4 (full pod stage).

It is important to scout for soybean aphids on a weekly basis, especially when soybeans are flowering and begin setting pods. If you are in your soybean field, the recommendations for scouting are to randomly check 20-30 plants per field and determine the average aphids per plant for this field. If the level of aphids is 250 per plant, you have about seven days to schedule treatment. If you have a lot of natural pests in the field, such as lady beetles, green lacewings or see several aphid "mummies" treatment may not be necessary. Also if temperatures increase during this period, aphid populations may not increase. Check your field again to determine if populations are increasing and if treatment is necessary. There are several insecticides labeled for use on soybean aphids. Pyrethroids have a relatively long residual and work best at temperatures below 900 F, while organophosphates have a heavy fuming action and may work well in heavy canopies or high temperatures.

If you have questions about soybean aphids or other soybean pests, feel free to contact me at University of Nebraska Extension in Nemaha County in Auburn at 1824 'N' St at the courthouse (402) 274-4755.

Study: Zilmax has no apparent detrimental effect on cattle health

The cattle feed additive Zilmax has no noticeable detrimental effect on cattle health or well-being, according to research by scientists from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service.

The study was undertaken after Zilmax's maker, Merck Animal Health, temporarily suspended sales of the additive last year when concerns emerged in some quarters that it might cause lameness in cattle, said Ty Schmidt, a UNL animal scientist, who worked with colleagues including Jeff Carroll and Nicole Sanchez, both of USDA-ARS.

During the 26-day study, scientists collected blood, via catheters; body temperature; and video images from 20 heifers, which were divided into two groups, with half receiving Zilmax at the recommended dose and half not receiving it. On the last day of the trial, four days after Zilmax supplementation was discontinued, heifers were exposed to a simulated stress event to mimic the stress response that would be anticipated in cattle being shipped from the feedlot to packing plant. At the conclusion of the trial, heifers were harvested at UNL and their hearts, liver, lungs, kidneys and adrenal glands were studied.

Results from the study demonstrated some differences in physiological and endocrine markers of stress and muscle accretion in heifers that were supplemented with Zilmax compared to heifers not fed Zilmax. Heifers fed Zilmax had an increase in parameters that indicate increased muscle mass. The increase in these parameters was expected, as the drug label for Zilmax includes statements pertaining to increases in creatinine and creatine phosphokinase, Schmidt said.

Results from this study, he added, also demonstrated that heifers supplemented with Zilmax had a decreased production of the stress hormone cortisol, and decreased body temperature during the simulated stress event. Histopathology of the heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, and adrenal glands revealed some differences between the heifers supplemented with Zilmax and the heifers not receiving Zilmax. The livers and right adrenal gland of the Zilmax heifers were slightly smaller than heifers that were not fed Zilmax, but there was no difference in lungs, kidneys, or heart.

"Overall, the results of this trial indicate that while there are variations in the body temperature, endocrine and metabolic parameters and histopathology of major organs of Zilmax supplemented heifers, these differences are minor and show no indication that supplementation of Zilmax is detrimental to the health or well-being cattle," Schmidt said.

The frame building which appears to straddle a railroad track is the Box Butte County Courthouse, which was moved from Hemingford to Alliance by train in the summer of 1899. NSHS RG3152-3-1

Whiskey and House Moving

Files of early Nebraska newspapers include many reports of instances in which a moving train struck objects on the tracks—vehicles, animals, pedestrians, or property left on the rails. The Omaha Daily Bee on November 29, 1887, under the title "Whiskey and House Moving," reported a "peculiar and ludicrous accident" in which a train struck a house which was being moved to a new location.

The Bee said: "Train men on the B. & M. report a peculiar and ludicrous accident on their road which occurred about 7 o'clock Saturday evening between Aurora and Hastings. Midway between these two towns a lonely country highway crosses the track through a deep cut. John Seaver and family have for the past ten years occupied a small frame farm house just north of the railroad. Sometime since Mr. Seaver purchased a farm on the south side of the track and last fall a foundation was built on the new place suitable for the old house."

On a designated morning Seaver began moving his house and at 7 p.m. had reached the brow of the incline above the tracks. A messenger had been sent to Case station to obtain the time at which trains would pass and he returned about 8 o'clock with the information that all trains were delayed and that none would pass until after midnight.

Seaver's family then retired for the night. Two hired men were to assist Seaver in moving the cottage across the track while the family slept. "To make a dead sure provision against any possible accident, two others were given a bottle of whiskey each, one sent down and the other up the track to signal any train that might approach. The house mover then began his deadly work and soon the cottage containing his family was moving down the hill toward the iron rails."

However, all did not go as planned. The hired man sent to the east "imbibed so freely from the bottle that he became stupefied and forgot his mission. Just as the house reached the track along came a train and notwithstanding the cries of three excited and dancing farmers, struck the house nearly 'amid ships,' knocking it to one side. There were howls of distress from the interior, but soon there rushed forth two females, clad only in their night dresses, and three small children likewise attired.

"Fortunately no one was seriously injured, but all were badly frightened. The cottage was badly wrecked, but can be repaired."

PSC ball team earns national character award

The Peru State College baseball team was recently named as a 2013-2014 Buffalo Funds Five Star Champions of Character Team Award winner. Only one team from each of the NAIA's 23 championship sports is selected as a winner each academic year. There are currently 188 NAIA institutions with a baseball program with Peru State being selected as the best.

The Buffalo Funds Five Star Champions of Character Team Awards are presented at the end of respective season. Teams that receive this prestigious award demonstrate in every day decisions integrity, respect, responsibility, sportsmanship, and servant leadership. These institutions and athletic programs strive for excellence in and out of competition and are part of communities throughout the country dedicated to character-driven intercollegiate athletics.

It is believed that this is the first time a Peru State athletic team has received this recognition.

Bobcat head coach Wayne Albury was thrilled to learn of the award.

"It was very exciting to learn of this recent recognition for our baseball team, as well as, Peru State College. Knowing that we were the only baseball team to be honored in the NAIA makes this award even more special," Albury said.

The Bobcats were selected at the conclusion of the spring sports season after a review of the application submitted by the athletic department to the NAIA. Four different aspects of each program nominated were requested.

Peru State Athletic Director Steve Schneider, too, was pleased to learn of the recent honor.

"Congratulations to Coach Albury, his staff, and the student-athletes for earning this recognition – what is believed to be the first in Bobcat history since the inception of the Champions of Character program. To be the top team out of 188 is pretty impressive," Schneider said.

Linda Lee Buthman Bedwell

Linda Lee Buthman Bedwell died on Monday, July 21, 2014 after a courageous battle with a Parkinson's-related disease that robbed her of everything but her spirit. She was 79. A Nebraska native and a longtime resident of Omaha, Linda and her husband, Bill, moved to the Minneapolis area in 2011 so that they could be near three of their four children. She died in her home there, with Bill holding her hand and her family at her side.

Linda radiated passion. She completely dedicated herself to each task at hand, from her careers in volunteerism, public relations, women's fashion and retail to her commitments as a loving wife, mother and friend. Her family was everything to her and she coined the phrase, The Bedwell Fan Club, to remind us that we must always love and support one another, whether to celebrate one another's victories or to offer comfort each other through difficult times. Her zeal for life was contagious and she could captivate a room with her stories and laughter. She loved nothing more than a healthy debate and it was a sad irony that her disease took her ability to communicate away from her.

Linda was born in Falls City to William A. (Boots) Buthman and Ruth Simanton Buthman on Jan. 25, 1935. An only child, she developed her lifelong love of flowers growing up across the street from the greenhouse that was the family's business. She attended Falls City High School and was the 1953 Class Salutatorian.

She and her parents spent each summer at the Twin Bay Shores resort in Crosslake, MN, and that area of the country became a large part of her life. Eventually her parents purchased the cabin where they stayed and Linda's children and grandchildren also spent summers there, fishing, waterskiing, boating and delighting in the area's natural beauty. Linda never tired of admiring the birch woods or listening to the sound of the Loons calling across the lake. When her father, Boots, died in 1996, the family established Grampa's Run For The Walleye, an annual 5k race that raises funds to support the Walleye population on the Whitefish Chain of Lakes. The race held its 18th event on July 5 this year.

Linda attended The University of Nebraska, where she majored in Journalism and Home Economics. She was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, The Kappa Tau Alpha Journalism Scholarship Society, The Sigma Phi Journalism Honorary Socitey; editor of the 1957 "Cornhusker" Yearbook and was elected to the Mortar Board.

She married Bill, her childhood friend and high school sweetheart, on June 9, 1957 and started their married life at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, MS.

Eventually they settled in Omaha, where Linda contributed significantly to the city of Omaha through her many volunteer efforts. She held several leadership posts with The Junior League of Omaha, including Education Chairman, Provisional Chairman and First Chairman of the Omaha International Tennis Tournament. Her executive positions included Omaha Delegate to the National Junior League Convention, Secretary, Member of the Board of Directors, Vice President and President.

Linda was also a member of the Ak-Sar-Ben Women's Ball Committee; President of the Girls Club of Omaha; Budget Committee Member for the United Way; Chairman of the Clarkson Hospital Gift Shop; Chairman of the Joslyn Art Museum Family Membership Division; and Chairman of the 2nd Annual Omaha Symphony Designer Showhouse. She served on the Directors' Boards for the Clarkson Hospital Service League; The Joslyn Woman's Association; The Omaha Ballet Association; The Omaha Symphony Guild; The Salvation Army Auxiliary and The Omaha Volunteer Bureau.

In 1979, Linda accepted her first paid position as the Public Relations Director that helped re-elect Mike Albert as the Douglas County Commissioner. From 1980-1987 she was a buyer and sales representative, for Topp's of Omaha, a woman's fine clothing store. She also worked at Mailboxes, Etc. and The Mole Hole gift shop before retiring in 1999. In retirement, Linda served on the Alter Guild for All Saints Episcopal Church.

In addition to Bill, Linda is survived by her four children, their spouses and her seven grandchildren: Laurie Bedwell Sawatzky (Randy Sawatzky); Marci Bedwell Roesler (Tim Roesler); Todd Bedwell (Chris); and Jeff Bedwell (Nancy); Noah Sawatzky; Carolina Roesler; Madeline Roesler; Sam Tomia; Logan Tomia; Jeffrey Bedwell Jr; and Daniel Bedwell. She also leaves behind many dear friends, who were part of her and Bill's lives for more than 40 years.

In one of Linda's last conversations with her oldest granddaughter, she offered some advice that will remain with us always: "Where ever you are, make the most of it." We're certain she's in heaven doing just that.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday, July 28, 2014 at Mount Olivet West, in Victoria, MN and at 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 2, at All Saints Episcopal Church, 93rd and Blondo Streets, Omaha.

The family would also like to thank the remarkable caregivers who watched over Linda in her final days. We are grateful for their incredible and compassion, which gave all of us so much comfort.

Spanning the Missouri: Nebraska's pontoon bridges

Nebraska City's pontoon bridge spanning the Missouri River was opened with much fanfare on August 23, 1888. Constructed by Col. S. N. Stewart of Philadelphia as a toll bridge, it claimed to be the first such bridge across the Missouri River and the largest drawbridge of its kind in the world. The pontoon section crossing the main channel was 1,074 feet long, with a 1,050-foot cribwork approach spanning a secondary channel between an island and the Iowa shore. The roadway, including two pedestrian footways, was 24.5 feet wide. Opening the "draw" (the V-shaped portion that could swing open for boats or flowing ice) provided a 528-foot-wide passage.

Several months later, in October of 1888, Stewart's representative, Lyman Banks, was in Omaha promoting the building of a similar pontoon bridge between that city and Council Bluffs. The Omaha Daily Bee on October 6 said:

"The cost of the bridge at Nebraska City was $18,000 and Mr. Banks stated that one could be built here for the same money. The bridges are built on boats ten feet wide and twenty-four feet long, giving a roadway sixteen feet wide besides ample passage ways for foot passengers. Mr. Banks stated that such a bridge could be built and maintained for fifteen or twenty years for less money than is required to pay the interest for one year on one of the expensive iron and steel structures."

The Bee admitted that the proposal had aroused "much diversity of opinion," especially because two bridges across the Missouri were already in operation in Omaha. Nevertheless the Bee felt that many Omahans would back the proposal: "Citizens generally will hail with a hearty welcome any and all bridges that can be built. There is a feeling in favor of having a bridge at every street, if capitalists want to build them. 'The more the merrier,' is the motto."

Stewart's proposal for a pontoon bridge between Omaha and Council Bluffs was not acted upon. However, a pontoon bridge spanning the Missouri was built the next year, in 1889, linking Covington in Dakota County with Sioux City, Iowa. The Bee said on April 23: "Work on the new pontoon bridge at Covington is progressing rapidly. Already sixty-five of the 200 pontoons are completed, and a gang of five men are at work on the remaining ones, which are expected to be completed in about six weeks." The pontoon bridge there yielded a daily income of around $100, with a toll of five cents each way. The bridge operated from 1889 until 1896, when a new bridge opened for business.

In 1890 a pontoon bridge was installed over the Missouri linking Yankton, South Dakota, with rural Cedar County, Nebraska. To protect against ice damage, the pontoon structure was disassembled each year before the winter freeze. It was replaced by the Meridian Highway Bridge, completed in 1924.

Pontoon bridge at Plattsmouth

Plattsmouth celebrated Labor Day in 1902 by opening its new pontoon bridge across the Missouri at that point. Built at a cost of ten thousand dollars by the city's businessmen, it lasted only until the summer of 1903, when the boats forming the bridge broke loose and were carried down the river.

Strong quarterly EDGE report

Rebecca Cromer, Executive Director of Falls City Economic Development & Growth Enterprise gave a positive second quarter EDGE report at the July 21 meeting of the Falls City Council.

"We have some good employment numbers and people are actively hiring," Cromer said.

Cromer also said that EDGE is finalizing its work with the Falter museum group and that work should start in the next 2-4 weeks on the improvements to the old PJ's Jewelry building. Cromer said EDGE has hopes to open the Falter museum by Thanksgiving.

The council last week also gave final approval to an ordinance to allow all-terrain and utility vehicles on streets within city limits. Permits for these vehicles will be available Aug. 5.

First reading of an ordinance to change the City Planning Commission from nine members to seven members was also approved, as was a request by Eric Froeschl for a special designated liquor license for a Cobblestone beer garden.

The Falls City Council will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 4, to further discuss night a proposal that would limit parking along just one side of the street in the area adjacent to FC Sacred Heart School.

The proposal was made by Mark Meyer, of 1903 Nemaha Ave., who cited safety concerns as a result of overcrowded streets exacerbated by the impending Sacred Heart Activities Center, which is scheduled to open in about one year from now, in conjunction with the beginning of the 2015-16 school year.

Meyer proposes parking be designated to one side of the street for a sizeable area around the school, including: 17th, 18th and 19th Streets, from McClean Street to Valley Avenue (including the 1700 block of Dewey Avenue); Fulton and McLean Streets from 17th to 20th Streets (including one block of E. 20th between Fulton and McLean); Nemaha Avenue north of 19th to the dead end; and Valley Avenue from 17th to E. 21st Street. Parking on Fulton Street in this area is already limited to the west side of the street.

Mayor Tim Hersh said he has noticed the problem before and thanked Meyer, saying "I'm glad people like you are willing to step up and come forward."

Councilman Kirby Robidoux said that even if they make the proposed streets one-sided, people would just start filling up other streets, creating the same problem.

"If the problem goes on, beyond, what I'm hoping for is for those citizens to have no parking on that side as well," Meyer said.

Councilman Steve Scholl brought to attention the fact that many business and homes may run out of places to park if the parking rules were enforced at 17th and McLean Streets.

Meyer's motivation for action is a belief that the new FCSH gym will cause an uptick in traffic and, more to the point, a greater premium on parking.

FCSH School Principal/AD Doug Goltz said the new gym will be utilized for practice, not games, which will continue to be played at Prichard Auditorium. Goltz, who lives two blocks from the school on a street that would be affected by the proposal, said he "wouldn't be opposed" to Meyer's proposal, and it "may help alleviate congested traffic." He added that there are 87 parking stalls on the school's campus and room to add more, if the need arises.

"We had talked about parking as soon as we started the project. As far as one-sided parking around the school, that would make our school safer anyway. Now, as far as going to 17th and McLean streets, I don't know about that," Goltz said.

Councilman Jerry Oliver suggested that council not make the decision too hastily and take some time to think about the issue before voting.

Other items on the Aug. 5 Council agenda:

— Second Reading – Ordinance 2014-104 – City Planning Commission change from a nine-member board to a seven-member board.

Meets The Need

DENA BAWINKEL
Generations have found the answer to restlessness and anxiety.
The answer?
God's presence.
Oh, God is present always; we just need to embrace our Lord.
Experience the presence of God this week in church.
I shall be satisfied.

2.0 INFORMATIONAL ITEMS/REPORTS

2.1 Staff/Student/Organization Report: There was no report made at this meeting.

2.2 Principal Reports: There were no reports made at this time. Martin recognized the presence of and welcomed Elementary Principal Shawn Emerson at this meeting.

2.3 Board President's Report: President Martin had no report at this time.

2.4 Superintendent's Report:

2.4a Legislative and Organizations Report: The Education Committee is in the process of developing a common statewide vision for education in Nebraska, as a result of the enactment of LB 1103 this past legislative session. The vision will eventually consist of goals, objectives, priorities, and practical strategies, and will assist in guiding current and future policy makers in identifying priorities. On July 16, NRCSA will be facilitating an LB 1103 discussion via videoconference at seven ESU's around the state of Nebraska involving members of NRCSA Standing Committees (Executive, Legislative, Scholarship & Recognition). The objective for the meeting will be to discuss and have the opportunity to provide input on LB 1103 that will then become part of the discussion at a TEEOSA meeting in Kearney on July 28-29.

NRCSA District dues for the 2014-2015 school year will remain unchanged at $700. Our continued membership in NRCSA helps assure NRCSA's ongoing effort to continue community rural school advocacy. NRCSA had 180 member school districts and Educational Service Units in 2013-14 representing over 69,000 students across 87 counties and 24 legislative districts throughout Nebraska.

This District remains a member of GNSA which consisted of mostly Class A and Class B School Districts. No dues were charged last year.

2.4b Building & Grounds Update: Summer facility projects completed to date include painting projects at the elementary, all exterior and interior door replacements at all buildings, swing set border and mulch at South School, hallway ceiling tile replacement at South School, classroom doors and locks on 2nd floor at Middle School, Lifeskills window replacement at the High School, synthetic turf maintenance, and primary gym floor sand/paint/and finish. The roofing projects are partially completed.

Heckenlively noted that there are problems with the boilers. Board members feel that TRANE should be contacted as it was the engineer of the HVAC project at the time it was installed.

Additionally, Art Dean started with the district beginning July 7 as the Grounds/Transportation support employee.

2.4c Continuous School Improvement & District Goals: Continuous School Improvement Plan Goal: All FCPS students will increase their achievement in math problem solving across all content areas.

Rule 10 Accreditation: On June 6, 2014, the State Board of Education voted to classify the FCPS system as Accredited for the period July 1, 2014, through June 30, 2015. This action follows a recommendation of the State Accreditation Committee and is based on records indicating the FCPS operated in compliance with the accreditation requirements in Nebraska Rule 10 for the 2013-14 school year. This action confers upon the school district the legal right to fulfill provisions of the compulsory education law, to promote students, and draw upon and expend tax funds.

Early Childhood 0-3 Program – Sixpence: Falls City Sixpence has been growing quickly over the past six months. We're pleased to say that we reached capacity with 24 families involved. Attendance at home visits and meetings has been excellent with families enjoying pizza, tacos, Subway, and hot dogs while learning about Safe with You, Seat Belt Safety, Community Activities, and Water Safety. We've provided families with information on child development, safety, nutrition, discipline, and also support to help them reach family goals. First book has provided us with many low cost books to give to families. We have recorded health records on children to be sure immunizations are up to date and helped families connect with community services.

Falls City Sixpence has recently been awarded a $30,000 Mini Grant. It will be used for literacy, family engagement materials, a parent meeting room and toddler playground. We're hoping to have much of this work completed by fall. The full grant award for the period July 1, 2014 through June 30 2015 is $180,000. More information will follow.

2.4d Policy Planning: The following policies are up for first reading upon review: 1) 4261 Internet Safety; 2) 4262 Electronics Management and Records Retention; 3) 4264 Bring Your Own Device.

The following policies are up for final reading upon review: 1) 2500 Smoking and the Use of Tobacco; 2) 5310 Purchasing; 3) 7111 Attendance and Excessive Absenteeism; 4) 7115 Student Conduct; 5) 7138 Bus Safety Program; 6) 8510 Concussion Awareness.

2.4e Preliminary Budget Information: A preliminary budget is being built for expenditures, receipts, and transfers. Although preliminary estimates are known, Aug. 20 remains the key date for tax valuation to be certified by the county assessors in Richardson and Nemaha Counties. We need to set a budget workshop meeting that will need to take place before the September 8 regular Board meeting. Superintendent Heckenlively recommended an evening meeting be scheduled the week of August 25. It was the consensus of the Board to meet on Monday, August 25, at 6 p.m. The date and time for the budget workshop will be an action item at the August regular Board meeting.

2.4f Bus/van per student use rate (non activity): Current rate is $7 per student, or a charge of the current district/state mileage rate, or a defined rate set by the Superintendent. No change is recommended at this time.

The last real cowboy just rode off
With a big smile on his face
Into the waiting arms of the Lord
And his amazing grace

His ride has been a long one
He's known laughter, and he's known sorrow
But every night he went to bed
With great hopes for tomorrow

Through Golden gates,
He'll hear God's voice Say
"Come, abide with me"
But for now I can only say
"God speed"
And ---- Wait for me

Nancy Fairbanks, of rural Grand Island, creates unique decorative and functional pottery and sculpture. He works appear at the Schoolhouse Art Gallery in Brownville through September.

Pottery collection on display through September

The Brownville Fine Arts Association announces a new artist show by Potter Nancy Fairbanks.

New hours for the Schoolhouse Art Gallery for the summer of 2014 will be 1-4 p.m. Thursday through Sunday until Sept. 28. Tours are also available at other times by appointment.

Nancy Fairbanks creates unique decorative and functional pottery and sculpture at her rural Grand Island studio. She earned her degree from Nebraska Wesleyan University in studio arts. Nancy is an artist-in-residence for the Nebraska Arts Council, and teaches various pottery methods in schools across the state.

Private collections across the world include Nancy's pottery and sculptures. The Sheldon Art Gallery and Museum of Nebraska Art also have pieces in their collections. Her work is very popular at regional art fairs, and is available at art galleries across the United States. She has produced the Governor's Art Awards for the State of Nebraska.

Her works are inspired by the movement and freedom of nature. Clay is a great material capable of expressing this fluidity. Various firing techniques add to the unique surface textures of her works. Nancy's artwork is meant to be touched.

Nancy experiments with many unusual firing techniques. The results are truly unique works of art. Pit firing is a method used by ancient Native Americans in Nebraska. These pieces are fired in a hole in the ground using natural fuels for the fire. Due to the unpredictability of the elements in nature, each piece is different. The combination of Earth, wind and fire create a subtle yet dramatic surface which no glaze can match.

Raku is a Japanese method of firing which involves direct interaction between the artist and the fire. The pots are pulled from the flames of the kiln when the glaze is molten, and various techniques at this point will create dramatic metallic and iridescent surfaces on the clay. There is much to be experienced, discovered and shared.

For more information or to book private tours please call Carie Allen at 402-274-4575.
